MELLON PROGRAM BOON TO INDUSTRY, FINANCIERS ASSERT

WOULD STIMULATE BUSINESS

'ADMIRABLE,' BANKERS' VIEW

Wall Street, However, Doubtful About Adoption Because of Bonus and Radical Senators.

A reduction in taxes on earned incomes as proposed by Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, would prove a greater boon to American industry and national prosperity than any other single act that could be passed by Congress, according to the views of bankers, railroad men and industrial leaders. For far reaching benefit there is probably only one single development which could exceed in importance a revision of tax rates, so far as American industry is concerned, and that would be a complete settlement of the European reparations problem, financiers assert.

Wall Street, however, was by no means confident yesterday that the Secretary's recommendations would be followed. In explaining why, several financiers showed concern over the power that some of the Middle Western Senators may exert in Congress this year, and who, they presumed, would oppose the Secretary's program. Another reason for doubt was found in Mr. Mellon's statement that a program aimed to lift the heavy tax burden off industry would have to be thrown into the discard should the soldier bonus bill be passed.

An element of encouragement was found in the Washington dispatches, which indicated that President Coolidge would support the tax revision plan. Should Mr. Coolidge favor the bonus measure—a point on which there was much doubt—it was reasoned that he could not consistently advocate a tax reduction.

Calls Plan Admirable.

Francis L. Hine, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the First National Bank, said regarding Secretary Mellon's program: "It is admirable."

Lewis L. Clark, President of the American Exchange National Bank, said: "I am 100 per cent. for it. With taxes as they are now, one cannot expect business to expand."

Others in the field of industry and finance who commented on Mr. Mellon's program were E. H. Gary, Chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation; Paul M. Warburg, Chairman of the International Acceptance Bank, and Jules S. Bache of the New York Stock Exchange firm of J. S. Bache & Co. A large number of industrial leaders and bankers declined to comment for publication, although their expressions were in line with those of Judge Gary, Mr. Warburg and Mr. Bache.

"Wall Street approval of a legislative plan often means its damnation," said one of the largest bankers in the financial district, "and for that reason we've learned to keep quiet. In the present case, however, the proposed revision is so far reaching and would benefit so many people that the point could properly be waived."

In almost every institution where inquiry was made it was asserted that the reduction would benefit business, benefit labor and benefit the United States Treasury. High taxes have defeated the aim for which they were imposed, it was contended, because wealthy men have diverted their moneys from productive enterprise into tax exempt bonds. Business has suffered for a like reason, and labor has left the burden in the form of a smaller employment demand growing out of the curtailment of industrial expansion. High costs of materials are also attributed to high tax rates.

Would Benefit Country.

"From what I have read in this morning's newspapers," said E. H. Gary, "I think the recommendations of Secretary Mellon concerning income taxes are sound and just and, if adopted by Congress, will result in great benefit to the country. The total effect will be larger revenues and increased prosperity. Burdensome taxes during the last few years have been a great hindrance to development, progress and prosperity. Mr. Mellon is a very able man and his official administration is excellent."

Mr. Warburg emphasized the boon to industry such a reduction would prove. "I believe," he said, "that the gradual reduction of the present extreme rates of taxation will act as a healthy stimulant to business. Mr. Mellon's program seems to be a sound and highly commendable step in that direction."

Mr. Bache said: "I am cordially in favor of Secretary Mellon's program.

Britain to Pay $92,000,000 In Liberty Bonds on War Debt

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The British Government has notified the Treasury that its next payment on the War Debt, due Dec. 15, will be made in Liberty Bonds. The payment will include $23,000,000 on the principal of the obligation and $69,000,000 interest.

The formal notice from the British Government through its Embassy here merely stated that the payment would not be made in gold or available funds, leaving the alternative of the Liberty bonds which the refunding settlement permits.

Under the terms of the debt agreement between the United States and Great Britain, the United States will accept Liberty bonds at par value, regardless of the price actually paid by Great Britain. In this way, it is estimated, the British Government has effected a saving of more than $1,500,000 and less than $2,000,000.

BONUS BILL BACKERS TO FIGHT TAX CUTS

RADICALS FOR HIGHER TAX

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Secretary Mellon's recommendations to the Ways and Means Committee of a reduction of approximately $323,000,000 in Federal taxes met with general disapproval today among members of Congress favoring a bonus bill, but were strongly endorsed by opponents of bonus legislation.

Opposition exists not so much to the tax reductions outlined, because conservative members of Congress and those who have studied taxation agree with Secretary Mellon that the reductions should be along the lines he mentioned in his letter to Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee. The real objection, according to the comment made, is that Congress cannot carry out the reductions and provide funds for adjusted compensation to the ex-service men.

Bonus adherents in Congress see in the Secretary's recommendations, advanced three weeks before the assembling of Congress, an attempt by the Treasury to cause a reaction among the taxpayers for lower taxation, which will make it possible for members of Congress to oppose the bonus and favor sweeping tax reductions.

The general opinion here today was that the taxpayers undoubtedly would favor a tax reduction. Many Representatives, who view the bonus merely as a vote-getting proposition said privately they hoped the taxpayers would accept the recommendations of the Secretary and that sentiment would be so effective as to permit members of Congress to ignore the bonus and take their stand on the side of tax reduction. It is generally believed, however, that unless there is a pronounced change in the sentiment as now accepted by members of Congress, there will be no change in the tax or tariff laws in the next session, if tax changes are to mean abandonment of bonus legislation. A bonus bill, judged by the expression of Senators and Representatives, is inevitable, even over the protest of President Coolidge.

The situation in Congress, shown in interviews obtained from members, is that those who are opposed to the bonus favor most of the Mellon recommendations. Those who are supporting bonus legislation are opposed to them, largely because they are ready to admit that bonus legislation will make tax reduction impossible and probably will require additional taxation.

There are several lesser leaders in the Republican Party who believe the re-

Birkenhead and Austen Chamberlain Said to Have Pledged Aid in Campaign.

OPPOSITION IS MILITANT

Macdonald Plans to Attack Government Today for Failure of Policies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—As a result of political developments today there is trustworthy authority for stating that the session of Parliament which will begin tomorrow will last exactly three days, and that on Thursday Parliament will be prorogued with a view to immediate dissolution.

Definite steps were taken today toward securing complete reunion between the Government and Lord Birkenhead, Austen Chamberlain, Sir Robert Horne and other former ex-Coalition Unionist Ministers. There was a series of important conferences at 10 Downing Street. First Lord Birkenhead was called and it is understood was invited by Premier Baldwin to take an active part in the coming electoral campaign.

Lord Birkenhead, it is stated, while in favor of a policy of full Dominion preference on the lines laid down by Joseph Chamberlain, intimated his willingness to support the Government's plan at this juncture. He suggested, however, that as he and Austen Chamberlain wish to act together in this matter the Prime Minister arrange another meeting in the afternoon at which the two ex-Ministers could be present. Mr. Baldwin readily agreed to the suggestion, and in the afternoon Lord Birkenhead returned to Downing Street with Austen Chamberlain.

Birkenhead and Chamberlain to Aid.

Both men then informed the Prime Minister that they would give him all the help in their power, though it was understood that in the event of the Unionist Party being again returned to power they would expect Ministerial offices of at least the same importance as those which they held under the coalition. Obviously a matter of that kind could not be settled at a minute's notice, and this aspect of the question was left open for consideration.

The Prime Minister also saw Sir Robert Horne in the course of the day. There is no indication, however, that Sir Robert's position has changed since he saw Mr. Baldwin in May. While he is willing to give the Government his general support, he has no wish, in view of his heavy business commitments, to take up a Ministerial career again at present.

The parliamentary correspondent of The London Times says:

"It is believed that the Prime Minister made it clear that he has no intention of asking the country to endorse the full policy of imperial preference. His pledge not to tax wheat or meat holds good, and the election will be fought on that understanding. Some of his Unionist supporters who favor a complete system were urging that it would be possible to ask the country to endorse the full policy with the assurance that if the official cost of living figures show an increase in the price of foodstuffs or a result then the duties on the foods in question should be reduced automatically.

"The general feeling, however, was that Mr. Baldwin would be well advised to go to the country as far as possible on the one question of release from Mr. Bonar Law's pledge, without going into too much detail. Almost the last advice given to the Prime Minister by Mr. Bonar Law was to expound the general policy without going into more detail

THE HAGUE, Nov. 12.—Professor Albert Einstein arrived hurriedly at Leiden from Berlin yesterday and will stay there with his friend, Professor Ehrenfest, until general conditions improve and the anti-Semitic hatred subsides in Berlin.

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Menacing letters from anti-Semites received by Professor Albert Einstein since his return from Russia several days ago convinced the scientist of the advisability of his leaving Germany for Holland. The letters contained clear intimations that attempts would be made on his life.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS ALIEN LAND LAWS

BUTLER DELIVERS OPINION

Says Statutes Conflict Neither With Fourteenth Amendment Nor Tokio Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Laws of California and Washington, which prohibit Japanese and other aliens from owning land in those States, were upheld by the Supreme Court today in opinions handed down by Associate Justice Butler. In the Washington opinion, which constituted the principle, Justice Butler denied that the law of that State was in conflict either with the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution or with the treaty with Japan.

He held that the State had the authority to prevent ownership of land by aliens who had not declared their intention to become good citizens of the United States or who were prevented from assuming citizenship. Justices MacReynolds and Brandeis dissented. They stated in their opinions that cases dealing with leasing of land to Japanese should have been thrown out by the Supreme Court on the ground that there was no justiciable question before it.

The Washington case was brought by Frank Terrace, his wife, Elizabeth Terrace, and N. Nakatsuka, against Lindsay L. Bompson, the Attorney General of Washington, to prevent him from enforcing laws of his State. Section 33, Article 11, of the Washington Constitution estops ownership of land by aliens other than those who, in good faith, have declared their intention to become citizens of the United States. The case came to the Supreme Court from the Western District Court of Washington.

No Unjust Discrimination.

"The inclusion of good faith declarants in the same class with citizens does not unjustly discriminate against aliens who are ineligible, or against eligible aliens who have failed to declare their intention," said Justice Butler.

"The classification is based on eligibility and purpose to naturalize. Eligible aliens are free white persons and persons of African nativity or descent.

"Generally speaking, the natives of European countries are eligible. Japanese, Chinese and Malays are not. Appellants' contention that the State act discriminates arbitrarily against Nakatsuka and other ineligible aliens because of their race or color is without foundation. All persons, of whatever color or race, who have not declared their intention in good faith to become citizens are prohibited from so owning agricultural lands.

"Two classes of aliens inevitably result from the naturalization laws—those who may and those who may not become citizens.

"The rule established by Congress on this subject, in and of itself, furnishes a reasonable basis for classification in a State law withholding from aliens the privilege of land ownership as defined in this act.

"We agree with the court below that: 'It is obvious that one who is not a citizen, and cannot become one, lacks an interest in and the power to effectually work for the welfare of the State, and, so lacking, the State may rightfully deny him the right to own and lease real estate within its boundaries. If one incapable of citizenship may lease or own real estate it is within the realm of possibility that every foot of land within the State might pass to the ownership or possession of non-citizens."

Held Not to Conflict With Treaty.

In the opinion of the Supreme Court, Justice Butler said, the State act was not in conflict with the American-Japanese Treaty.

"The preamble," said the opinion, "declares it to be a 'treaty of commerce and navigation' and indicates that it was entered into for the purpose of establishing the rules to govern the commercial intercourse between the two countries.

"The only provision that relates to owning or leasing land is the first paragraph of Article 1, which is as follows:

"'The citizens or subjects or each of the high contracting parties shall have liberty to enter, travel and reside in the territories of the other, to carry on trade, wholesale or retail, to own or lease and occupy houses, manufactories, warehouses and to employ agents, &c.'

"For the purpose of bringing Nakatsuka within the protection of the treaty, the amended complaint alleges that in addition to being a cash-lease farmer, he is engaged in the business of trading in farm products.

"To prevail on this point appellants must show conflict between the State act and the treaty. Each State, in the absence of any provision conferring the right, may enact laws prohibiting aliens from owning lands within its borders. Unless the right to own or lease land is given by the treaty no question of conflict can arise."

General Issues Statement Saying Parole Oath Is Merely Provisional.

HIS ATTITUDE UNCHANGED

He Considers Himself Still Free to Support and Work for Nationalists.

MUNICH, Nov. 12.—Adolph Hitler, leader of the recent revolt, was arrested last night at Essing, forty miles from Munich. His only injury is a grazed shoulder, said to have been suffered by throwing himself on the ground too energetically in his desire to take cover when the Nationalist forces were fired on by Reichswehr troops in Odeonsplatz on Friday.

The news was common property in Munich this morning, but Dr. von Kahr's newspaper, the Münchner Zeitung, has issued a denial, stating that the Government has no official knowledge of the arrest.

General Ludendorff has issued a statement today to the effect that the oath he gave when he was released on parole only binds him to refrain from any political activity against the existing Government of Bavaria while this particular incident is under consideration. Beyond this he still considers himself free to work for and to support the program outlined by the Nationalist fighting organization at Nuremberg on Sept. 1, when Hitler was present.

There have been practically no further demonstrations in the town, and curfew hour has been extended until 10 o'clock. Tomorrow the theatres are to reopen.

Ehrhardt's men have returned to Munich from Coburg and are said to have placed their services at von Kahr's disposal.

Students of the University this morning passed a resolution which amounted to a vote of no confidence in von Kahr and demanded that he should be deprived of his honorary degree. The general opinion is that von Kahr must go, but the matter will be postponed for a time and will be arranged with as little outward friction as possible.

Hitler in ex-New Yorker's Home.

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Adolph Hitler, leader of the Fascisti in Bavaria, was arrested after his flight from Munich in a villa belonging to Ernest Hanfstaengl, formerly a New York art dealer The villa is located in Uffing, Bavaria.

Hanfstaengl is credited in Berlin as being one of Hitler's financial backers.

Ernest Frans Hanfstaengl, son of a prominent art dealer of Munich, was graduated from Harvard University in 1910. While at Harvard he rowed with the varsity crew, and was also a cheer leader. After graduating, Hanfstaengl came to New York and opened an art store at 546 Fifth Avenue. He joined the Harvard Club here, and because of his musical ability and his knowledge of art he made many friends in New York society circles.

With the outbreak of the war and the strong pro-allied sympathy manifested at the Harvard Club, Hanfstaengl, with a number of other German members, resigned in March, 1916.

In July, 1921, Hanfstaengl sold his art shop, which by this time had moved

Agreement With Ruhr Industrialists Expected by French to Be Signed Today

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 12.—Hopes again run high in French circles that a definite accord will be signed with Stinnes, Thyssen and the rest of the Ruhr industrial magnates tomorrow.

It is stated that during a long meeting held today between the industrialists and the French mission an agreement was reached on the main points—the amount of the coal tax to be paid for the last ten months and the future amount of coal to be handed over on reparations account, the amount to be delivered for use of the army and the amount of by-products to be delivered.

All accords are purely provisional and subject to inclusion, alteration or annulment should the general terms of a reparations settlement be at any time made by the Reparation Commission.

WILSON'S ATTACK ANGERS THE FRENCH

The Temps Says It Comes With Particularly Ill Grace From Him.

'WASTE PAPER' STINGS MOST

Journal Protests That France Holds to the Treaty We Refused to Ratify.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The semi-official Temps replies tonight to ex-President Wilson's attack upon France and Italy, saying:

"Former President Wilson—we shall never forget that he personified during the decisive phase of the war the admirable spirit of the American people—seeks to get back into partisan politics, and in a message issued to his fellow-citizens speaks of France and Italy. On the anniversary of the common victory he accuses these two allied nations of having made the Treaty of Versailles a scrap of paper. That seems to be an allusion to the Ruhr occupation and the Corfu affair.

"The accusation is profoundly unjust. France and Belgium occupied the Ruhr only after a default had been declared according to the treaty. They made use of the right accorded by the treaty to the respective Governments, which permits them to act individually in such a case. Italy occupied Corfu and obtained justified limited amends, so justified that the other powers of the Entente judged them indispensable, so limited that, Greece having accorded them, the Italians quitted Corfu on the day set.

Resents White Paper Imputation.

"No one has the right to charge that France and Italy throw treaties into the wastebasket; but if any one ought carefully to avoid starting such a controversy it is Mr. Wilson. Mr. Wilson came to Europe five years ago to negotiate the treaties which should close the great war and construct a new Europe. The chief of a party, he did not consult the representatives of the opposing party. The chief of a constitutional state, he appeared to forget that the American Senate, according to the Constitution, had a part to play in making treaties. In the delegation he chose his own Secretary of State did not always know the President's ideas. His decisions had the greatest influence on making the Treaty.

"The European Governments submitted because Mr. Wilson appeared the incarnation of the American people and because the stipulations suggested by him seemed to be sanctioned in advance by the powerful authority of the United States. France made sacrifices to remain in agreement with Mr. Wilson; she made them because he promised her guarantees.

"Would these have become effective if sickness had not laid Mr. Wilson low? Would the American Senate have rat-

POINCARE PLANS A GERMAN INQUIRY

Will Propose Committee of Delegates of Powers in Reparation Board.

WITH TECHNICAL EXPERTS

Is Now Prepared to Give Berlin a Hearing and to Enter Into Negotiations.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Premier Poincaré has decided to propose the creation of a Committee of Experts for the purpose of investigating the question of German reparations.

The committee, as suggested, would be composed of delegates from the powers represented on the Reparation Commission; its duties would be to establish Germany's external and internal resources; where the exported German capital lies and how it can be brought back; how and in what amount the resources of the Reich can, at the present moment, be utilized for reparations, and how Germany can re-establish her financial positon.

It is further proposed that a technical expert be added to the committee for each country. The investigation would last two months at least.

In taking up on his own account a plan for a committee of experts, M. Poincaré was moved by a desire to furnish fresh proof of his resolution to leave no method likely to lead to a solution of the reparations problem untried. The Premier, it is announced, would by no means refuse to enter into negotiations with Germany, now that passive resistance has ceased and wilful defaults in deliveries in kind have stopped, thanks to the direct agreement with the German industrial leaders.

Germany Likely to Be Heard.

Accordingly, M. Poincaré has instructed M. Barthou, President of the Reparation Commission, to ask that body at tomorrow's sitting to designate this committee of experts. At the same time the commission will have to pass on the German demand to be heard on the Reich's financial situation, action on which was postponed on the motion of Sir John Bradbury until the outcome of the negotiations with the United States became known.

It is expected that the commission will decide on this point tomorrow and that a hearing will take place in Paris as soon as the Reich sends representatives.

If, as there appears no reason to doubt, the commission appoints a committee to inquire into Germany's capacity to pay, the proposals the German delegates may make in the course of the hearing will be sent to this committee to be reported on. In the French view, the committee's task should not be limited to this study; it ought in the first place draw up a statement of Germany's resources, external as well as internal.

With this end in view, the French contend, the committee ought particularly to search out the location of the German capital improperly exported and study measures to bring it back to Germany. The committee ought also to indicate in what way and to what extent German resources can be used at once to finance reparations, and, finally, it will have to say in what way Germany can proceed to restore its financial position.

Issues Barred by France.

The work ought to be essentially of a practical character and deal with existing facts, rather than with hypothetical estimates of the future prosperity or poverty of Germany. The French Government considers that there should be no question either of the legality of the occupation of the Ruhr or the economic results of this occupation. The committee, it is suggested, might be made up of assistant delegates at the Reparation Commission, who already form a committee on guarantees, to which could be added a financial expert from each power represented on the commission.

The committee could take German or neutral testimony, or it could go to Berlin for a thorough investigation, and its task would last at least two months. In the final report the Reparation Commission would have to pronounce on these questions and take the decisions it considers called for. In any case the commission could not make any remission of any sums to Germany. Article 234 of the treaty only recognizing that right to the Governments, and the French Government itself could use it only after a vote of Parliament.

On the other hand, while the Reparation Commission can grant time to Ger-

Long Conference Is Held, but Nothing Is Divulged—Kaiser Gets Cipher Messages.

OELS AWAITS CROWN PRINCE

Berlin Reports He Will Be There Today—Germany Defends His Presence.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—The former German Emperor is preparing to return to the Fatherland. He already has in his hands passports for himself and his suite, and the Brussels Gazette goes so far as to say that it is expected the Hohenzollern monarchy will be restored on Dec. 4, with William or his son, the former Crown Prince Frederick William, ascending the throne.

Private advices from Doorn received by the Agence Telegraphique Belge, say that a courier, von Hoechst, arrived at Doorn at 4 o'clock this afternoon with twelve German passports, for the ex-Kaiser and his immediate entourage.

A telegram in cipher was received there in the morning, and early in the afternoon there was a long conference between William and those close to him. Later a high Dutch official, Dr. Kan, of the Ministry of the Interior, called and was closeted with the former Emperor for thirty-five minutes.

A wireless system has been installed at Doorn House, which has been the residence of the head of the Hohenzollerns during the later years of his internment in Holland, and messages are received from Nauen at noon daily.

Amsterdam Heard of Passports.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—A dispatch to The Matin from Brussels says that the correspondent, in view of the press reports on the subject of the return of former Emperor William to Germany, telephoned to Amsterdam and was told that nothing was known in official circles concerning the reports.

He learned, however, that there were reports that the former Emperor had received passports. The correspondent points out that Dr. Kan of the Dutch Ministry of the Interior, who had a half hour interview with the former Kaiser, played a role in the preliminaries for the departure of former Crown Prince Frederick William from Holland.

PARIS, Tuesday, Nov. 13.—This morning's newspapers carry dispatches from The Hague, Amsterdam and Brussels stating that the ex-Kaiser is all prepared to return to Germany.

The servants at Doorn House state that everything is packed up ready for immediate departure, but they are sworn to the strictest secrecy and not permitted to leave the estate.

The reports reached Paris at midnight. Officials were immediately advised and I understand a stiff warning will be sent to The Hague tomorrow. The Dutch Government is responsible for the gravest circumstances if the ex-Kaiser is permitted to leave Holland.

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 13.—The Daily Express understands that prompt action has been taken in the case of the ex-Kaiser. One paper adds that the ex-Kaiser, unlike his son, is probably Anglophile

Hugo Stinnes and Harry F. Sinclair Plan $20,000,000 American Oil Corporation

Hugo Stinnes, the German industrial leader, plans to organize an American oil company in which his chief associate, according to reports in the financial district yesterday, will be Harry F. Sinclair of the Sinclair Oil Corporation.

It is understood that Stinnes is looking about for a supply of crude and refined oil to be used by the numerous German shipping companies, steel mills and other industrial enterprises, which he controls. His competition with Standard Oil for refined is expected to be confined to Germany, where the Standard of New Jersey has a subsidiary, but it is understood that he will compete with the Standard and all other companies in all parts of the world for acreage to assure a constant supply of crude.

Walter C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, when asked yesterday about the Stinnes activities, said:

"We have no knowledge of Mr. Stinnes's intentions as to his future operations in the oil business, nor do we know whether his rumored investments would mean the acquisition of a source of supply other than for his organizations operating in Germany."

According to cables received yesterday, Stinnes has arranged for the incorporation in this State of the Hugo Stinnes-Paedrek Mining and Oil Company, with a capital of $20,000,000. This is the company in which, it is said, Sinclair will have a substantial interest. This company will either acquire oil acreage in this country or buy up a supply from various companies, principally the Sinclair corporation. Sinclair, however, is not expected to sell any of the company's acreage to the new concern, but will only supply refined oil at first and probably crude oil later. When the present program of expansion is completed Sinclair will have a daily refining capacity of 75,000 barrels.

The Stinnes organization in Germany has been buying oil in large quantities from the Sinclair organization, both in this country and through foreign organizations owned or controlled by Sinclair. Hugo Stinnes Jr. and Sinclair are now in Texas going over the Sinclair properties in that State.

Capital Observers Say Wilson Speeches Have Revived League Issue for Democrats

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Opinion in Washington is that ex-President Wilson's utterances on the League of Nations and this country's refusal to participate in the restoration of stability in Europe will have no effect on the Administration's foreign policy, but may force the Democratic Party to take a position on foreign affairs in advance of the isolation policy of the Republicans.

Mr. Wilson hopes to be considered in a pronounced way by his party leaders when they come to write the planks in the next platform dealing with foreign affairs, according to a prominent Democrat, who only yesterday conferred with the ex-President a few minutes after he had reaffirmed his faith in the League of Nations.

Republicans generally were unwilling to discuss the effect of Mr. Wilson's two speeches. Most of them said that they would not force the League of Nations to the fore, and that the Republicans would ignore them, as they did his demands at the time of the Senate's discussion of the Treaty of Versailles.

Friends of Mr. Wilson are saying today that the Democratic Party and candidates cannot avoid reviving in some form the demand for American acceptance of the principle of the League of Nations. Democratic leaders, many of whom are opposed to any injection of the League into the coming campaign, declare that the two speeches and the nationwide revival of discussion of foreign affairs make it almost necessary that the party platform shall favor the United States aiding Europe, at least through an association of nations.

Today John W. Davis, who was successively Solicitor General in the Department of Justice and Ambassador to London under the Wilson Administration, was mentioned as the most probable compromise candidate for the Democratic nomination. He is willing to accept some of the principles of the Wilson Administration and is regarded as progressive along the same lines, yet as fundamentally a Democrat.

Mr. Davis, while not an active candidate, is in the same frame of mind as four years ago, when he was receptive, and his candidacy was advanced by his friends in West Virginia. The same friends are now behind him, but they are encouraged to spread their activities to other States in the hope of making a good showing on the early ballots and willing in the final balloting after the expected deadlock between Underwood and McAdoo. Mr. Davis is reported as strong in the Middle States and, of course, would command sporadic support in the South.

in the peace treaty as the person mainly responsible for the war and the illegal acts of the German forces against the Allies. It has been made quite clear to him that his only hope of avoiding serious consequences of his acts during the war lies in his willingness to remain in his present place of refuge.

Dutch Official at Doorn.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Dr. Kan, an official of the Ministry of the Interior, left for Doorn this morning for a conference with the former Emperor William.

Late dispatches from Doorn, where former Emperor William has resided since his internment in Holland, announced that he was maintaining close relations with the leaders of the German monarchist movement and was said to be hopeful that the events in Germany would turn in his favor.

It was also reported that the Dutch Government was anxious to consult with the Allies before granting permission to either the former Emperor or the former Crown Prince to quit Holland, but when the Crown Prince did depart from that country the Dutch Government denied any responsibility for him under international law.

Holland, according to recent French advices, might be regarded as an insufficiently secure retreat for the ex-Kaiser, in view of the flight of Frederick William. This was stated on the authority of the French Foreign Office, and it was suggested that a second St. Helena might be chosen for him.

The dispatch from The Hague announcing that Dr. Kan of the Dutch Ministry of the Interior had gone to Doorn for a conference with the former German Emperor may have an important bearing on the news which now comes out of Brussels that William is about to return to the Fatherland.

That has been his ambition for a long time past, and the ex-Kaiser has been kept in close touch with the changing political conditions in Germany. Whether he would ever be able to get back his throne has been problematic all along. But his great desire has been to keep the Hohenzollern name to the front, so that if the Monarchists eventually were successful in their activities a Hohenzollern could return as ruler.

Ambassadors May Act.

It is believed to be clearly within the province of the Council of Ambassadors, possessing the mandate of the Allied Supreme Council, to demand the surrender of William of Hohenzollern by the Government of the Reich the moment the former Kaiser sets foot in Germany.

In 1920 it was so manifestly impossible that the Supreme Council of the powers which had drafted, negotiated and signed the peace treaties could remain permanently in session that the power to execute these treaties was handed over to a council composed of Entente Ambassadors accredited at Paris, who would sit under the Presidency of the French Foreign Minister. Since the inauguration of this council M. Jules Cambon, former French Ambassador at Washington, Madrid and Berlin, has represented the French Foreign Office in this capacity. His colleagues now are Lord Crewe, Baron Avezzana and Baron Ishii, respectively representing Great Britain, Italy and Japan.

In the exercise of the power thus conferred upon it the council last week made representations both to the Government of The Hague and to that of Berlin against the return of the Kaiser's eldest son to the Fatherland. The representations reached The Hague too late to be acted upon.

Regarding the former Kaiser, Article 227, Part VII., of the Treaty of Versailles reads:

"The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II. of Hohenzollern, formerly German Emperor, for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties.

"A special tribunal will be constituted to try the accused, thereby assuring him the guarantees essential to the right of defense. It will be composed of five judges, one appointed by each of the following powers: The United States of America, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

"In its decision, the tribunal will be guided by the highest motives of international policy, with a view of vindicating the solemn obligations of international undertakings and the validity of international morality. It will be its duty to fix the punishment which it considers should be imposed.

"The Allied and Associated Powers will address a request to the Government of the Netherlands for the surrender to them of the ex-Emperor in order that he may be put on trial."

Others Demanded as Criminals.

Article 228 provides for similar treatment of "persons accused of having committed acts in violation of laws and customs," and the handing over of such persons to the Allied and Associated Powers, to be found within the territory of Germany. The former Crown Prince fell within this category, but the article was never executed because Germany offered the compromise of trying these war criminals herself, which was done to a certain extent before the High Court of Leipzig.

Article 227, as finally drafted, was supposed to voice not only the sentiment of all the allied and associated powers but the sentiment of their nationals as well. Among the speeches made foreshadowing it was one by the then British Prime Minister, Mr. Lloyd George, at Newcastle-on-Tyne. He said on Nov. 29, 1918, just eighteen days after the armistice:

"The Government asked the Attorney General to refer the question to some of the greatest jurists in this country. They have investigated it, and have come finally to the conclusion, quite unanimously, that in their judgment the Kaiser was guilty of an indictable offence, for which he ought to be held responsible."

Twenty-two powers signed, in the following July, the demand to the Government of the Netherlands for the surrender of William of Hohenzollern, who, since his flight from Germany had been the guest of Count Godard Bentinck, at Amerongen. The Dutch Government declined to grant the petition of the powers on the ground that to do so would be a grave breach of national asylum.

On the other hand, several Dutch jurists believed that the surrender of the ex-Kaiser on the indictment contained in the Versailles Treaty was not only equitable but required. They cited Hugo Grotius, the "father of international law," in support of their opinion, as the ex-Kaiser's status was that of "a culpable stranger" liable to extradition, according to the famous Dutch jurist.

Most of the general elections held in the Entente countries in the Winter of 1918-19 had in the Government platform as a plank confirming the culpability of the Hohenzollern and assuring the people that he would certainly be brought to trial. And nowhere was this more emphasized than in England, where the demand for his extradition and trial continued through the month following the signing of the Versailles Treaty. The former Crown Prince wrote to the Supreme Council, saying that he was ready to take his father's place before the court, but his request was ignored. Premier Lloyd George affirmed early in July that preparations had been made with the consent of the Allied and Associated Powers to have the trial of the former German Emperor take place in London.

Trial in His Absence Suggested.

On July 8 the American commission at Paris asked President Wilson by wireless if he had promised to support Lloyd George in such an undertaking, for neither Secretary Lansing nor General Bliss, then in Paris, had ever heard of the scheme. It was finally decided in legal circles that the British Prime Minister in the event of not obtaining the surrender of the Hohenzollern from the Netherlands, would ask his allied colleagues to have the court convened nevertheless, and have him tried in contumacia, so that if a verdict of guilty were obtained the Kaiser could, according to the prevailing Continental law, be executed whenever found and immediately sent to serve his sentence without a second trial.

But this theory was proved to be unfounded, and in the subsequent meetings between the German financial experts and the Reparation Commission less and less was heard of bringing the former Emperor to trial. Still Article 227 is in force, and has never been subjected to compromise, even in spirit or by exigency, as has Article 228, referring to other war criminals.

REPORT CROWN PRINCE HAS GONE INTO HIDING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OELS, Silesia, Nov. 12.—The ex-Crown Prince has not yet arrived here. He spent last night at Saabor, Princess Hermine's chateau near Gruenberg, but up to midnight tonight Oels was without information of his present whereabouts.

Even Major von Mueller, the Crown Prince's former adjutant, could supply no information. Von Mueller is now active here as manager of Frederick William's property, and it was he who obtained from Chancellor Stresemann permission for the ex-Crown Prince's return. This was done in strictest confidence, however, and few members even of the ex-Crown Prince's household were informed that he would come to Oels.

According to confidential information, when the Crown Prince learned that he Entente would make representations to Berlin for revocation of his permission to return to Germany, he determined to disappear until the Entente's anger had passed. He may remain under cover for four or five weeks. He is said to be acting on patriotic motives, to save the Berlin Government any embarrassment, and knowing also that his return would be resented by the German people if it should entail further harsh sanctions on Germany. What he seeks to avert, under all circumstances, according to inside information in Oels, is that Germany on his account should be exposed to new reprisals or sanctions by the Entente.

The small town of Oels betrays not the slightest interest or concern about the Crown Prince's return. Neither official nor private preparations on the part of the populace have been made for a "welcome home." Crown Princess Cecilia had urgently requested that no popular welcome or celebration be organized.

The sole attention thus far has been shown by the neighbors of the landed aristocracy and industrialists, who have sent their cars to the Chateau of Oels laden with floral tributes.

The ex-King of Saxony sent flowers and greetings from his near-by schloss, Sybillenort. This afternoon the Crown Princess Cecilie sent word to the numerous correspondents that it was uncertain when the Crown Prince would come to Oels, if at all, and she advised the correspondents to leave.

The Crown Prince was met at Bentheim, on the Dutch-German frontier, by a high official of the German political police, who gave instructions for the route to be followed. A schedule was worked out to the minutest detail of the itinerary from Bentheim to Oels, which the Crown Prince was forced to follow as one of the conditions for permission to return to Germany. Frederick William spent the first night on his estate near Heringen, then went on to the Pahlen estate, by Hildesheim, owned by Count Bassewitz, father-in-law of the Crown Prince's brother Oscar, where he had once functioned as godfather to Oscar's youngest son.

Here Frederick William met his oldest son, Wilhelm, aged 18. It was said to have been a touching reunion. Last night the Crown Prince stayed at Princess Hermine's estate at Saabor, since when all trace of him has been lost.

Berlin Reports Prince Due Today.

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Frederick William is due at Oels Tuesday, according to semi-official information here. He is reported to have made several convenient stops on his way from the border, spending Saturday and Sunday nights on the estates of his old friends in Southwest Brandenburg. While it was rumored that he was in close proximity to Berlin, official quarters deny this and declare that he is living up strictly to the promise he gave to Chancellor Stresemann.

Speaking at Halle yesterday, Chancellor Stresemann said the return of the Crown Prince, whom he characterized as "not the worst of Germans," to his German home could not be refused, the decision in this case being purely a question of internal policy and one which the German people could not allow to be taken from their hands.

Referring to the Munich revolt, the Chancellor said Germany would have had to suffer a long time for the damage that would have resulted had Hitler become arbiter of Germany's fate. The Chancellor remarked that the behavior of General Ludendorff in the affair was highly regrettable.

BRITISH THINK PROTEST WOULD PROVE FUTILE

Legal Aspects Are Called Obscure —Newspapers Urge Move for Allied Unity.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—In the absence of any official announcement the disposition here is to ask what the British Government can do about the German Crown Prince. It is much disturbed by his return home. It realizes that he must be a permanent source of trouble. But the Allies have no authority to interfere with him.

The Treaty of Versailles took no note of him except as he may be included under the war criminal clauses, which have already been found unworkable, and there never was any legal prohibition to his return to Germany if the German Government gave him a passport.

The Allies did, indeed, protest to Holland when they heard rumors of the Crown Prince's intentions, but their note was most curiously delayed, so that it was only delivered six hours after he had left Dutch soil. Now the Allies can protest to Berlin, and presumably will do so. Chancellor Stresemann will, it is assumed, reply that it is none of the Allies' affair, and that there the matter will rest.

Germany, it is pointed out, enjoys all the privileges of an insolvent debtor. She is immune from all but moral suasion. This, it is thought, the Conference of Ambassadors will proceed to apply.

Regard Legal Aspect as Obscure.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Great Britain is not likely to take individual action looking to the ejectment of ex-Crown Prince Frederick William from Germany, nor is it at all probable that she will stress his banishment in any collective representations which may be made through the Council of Ambassadors, it was declared here today.

The Government's law experts regard the legal aspects of the case as uncertain and obscure. It is true the Kaiser's heir appeared on the original list of war criminals, as did ex-Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, but the failure of the Allies to follow up the prosecution of these men is regarded as imparting the legal merits of any allied claim that Frederick William should be banned from Germany.

If, however, Great Britain's allies should demand collectively of Germany that the ex-Crown Prince be banished again it is considered likely the Government will give its consent to such a step in order to preserve the semblance of allied unity.

Newspapers Urge Allied Unity.

Although the press here has not been greatly excited over the return of Frederick William to Germany, there is much speculation as to weather more is behind the incident than would be implied merely by a consideration of the Prince's personal insignificance.

Some commentators argue that Frederick William's personality has little to do with the situation. The Morning Post, for instance, says he is neither a heroic nor an honorable figure, but that history shows that a small person is sometimes used to launch a great enterprise and that is is impossible to dissociate his return from the outbreak in Munich.

The Daily Chronicle also thinks the presence in Germany of the former Crown Prince must immediately create a focusing point for monarchist plots.

No one attaches much importance to the undertaking of the Prince or the German Government that he will abstain from meddling in politics, and there is a pretty general assumption that his return connotes a bid for the throne. One contention is that his reappearance should convince the Allies of the necessity of ceasing to squabble among themselves.

The Morning Post, elaborating this point, assumes that Premier Baldwin will now persist in his endeavors to arrange an allied settlement, notwithstanding the failure of the negotiations for the conference of experts.

Referring to the report of its Washington correspondent that "the American people are beginning seriously to question their hitherto aloof attitude toward European problems," the newspaper maintains that some such change is absolutely necessary before there can be any real solution of the international tangle. The editorial continues:

"Until the United States are prepared to put into a common pool of sacrifice and adjustment their European debts, the reparations issue will drag on until doomsday. * * * Preliminary to an allied settlement is a business understanding with America. When that settlement is reached the Crown Prince can come and go as he pleases.

Say Stresemann Engineered Return.

How the new situation strikes a detached observer in Germany is given by The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic expert, who professes to be able to furnish the gist of a report on the crisis dispatched to his Government on Saturday by "a neutral diplomat in Berlin who is on intimate terms with the German Ministers and political leaders." According to this statement, Chancellor Stresemann himself deliberately engineered the return of Frederick William.

Knowing, says the writer, that both the Bavarian and Prussian extremists are bent on overthrowing the Central Government, the Chancellor conceived the idea of saving and consolidating his own position by providing his opponents with an apple of discord in the form of the return of the Prince. He persuaded his colleagues, asserts the newspaper article, that the safety of the present régime in the Reich lay in splitting the ranks of the Monarchists. William in Silesia would neutralize Rupprecht in Bavaria.

The writer argues lengthily that Dr. Stresemann thus played a deep game, and hitherto has played it with skill and success, but the newspaper's informant sees the possibility that the scheme may react as a boomerang upon the Chancellor himself.

Another view is supplied by the Berlin correspondent of The Daily Express, who thinks it is only a question of days before a Nationalist Government will rule Germany and who believes it is in no wise impossible that Chancellor Stresemann will be its head.

ANTI-SEMITIC PAPER HAILS PRINCE'S RETURN

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The reactionary and anti-Semitic Deutsche Zeitung, organ of the most extreme Right Deutsche Völkische Party, is torn with conflicting emotions over the Crown Prince's return. It charges that the Crown Prince has committed himself as being pro-Jewish; nevertheless it is glad to see him come back, though hoping that he will confine himself to a retired family life.

The newspaper's editor, Max Maurenbrecher, whose checkered career so far has run the gamut from evangelical Kaiserism to ardent socialism and thence to extreme reaction and anti-Semitism, says:

"With the Crown Prince's return a shame and disgrace has been taken from the German people's shoulders which it bore silently, but heavily, for five years. It was a disgrace that there was no place in the German Fatherland where the Kaiser and his son, in honor and security, could live their lives in private retreat. It was a disgrace that he who for a generation had borne the majesty of kaiserhood, and in his person represented the German nation to foreign nations, could now not even live on German soil. Therefore, today we hail the return of at least the Crown Prince as a partial wiping away of this shame.

"But in this first hour we will not fail unequivocally to assert that, perhaps from a different viewpoint, the Crown Prince's return fills us with anxiety. The Crown Prince entrusted the writing of his war memoirs to a Jewish author (Karl Rosner). The latter, with deliberately conscious intent, made the Crown Prince say in those passages that he knew no difference between Jews and Christians; that all German citizens were equally endeared to him, regardless of religion. Thereby the Crown Prince put himself, from the Deutsche Völkische point of view. He abandoned the idea that only conscious elimination of Judaism and a rallying of the Teutonic racial self-consciousness can bring Germany again to honor and power.

"Furthermore, in his memoirs the Crown Prince knowingly emphasized the parliamentary monarchy of Edward VII. as his ideal for the model of a new monarchy in Germany. Thereby the Crown Prince abandoned the rugged majesty of the Teutonic racial Kaiser idea, and characterized that most disastrous pioneer of the international Jewish banking world as a model for German Kaiserdom of the future.

"That may please Guttman, Flach, Warburg, &c., but the racially-feeling Teuton wants no Kaiserism by the grace of Judas."

He said that while he had received several letters from Hanfstaengl on his return to Germany he had not heard from him during the last year.

Francis Rogers, Secretary of the Harvard Club, verified the report that Hanfstaengl was open in his denunciation of the Allies, and that the anti-German feeling among many members of the club had been responsible for his resignation.

Ehrhardt Takes Hitler's Place.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—The situation in Bavaria is shaping up to practically what it was before Hitler's beer hall putsch, but without Hitler. The news reached Berlin tonight that Captain Ehrhardt of Kapp Putsch fame had openly placed himself at the head of the Hitlerite Kampfverbaende in place of Hitler, arrested and believed to be discredited for good.

Ehrhardt announced his assumption of leadership of the Kampfverbaende at an enthusiastic mass meeting of Munich students whom he addressed following the news of Hitler's arrest near Munich last night.

There was one mild doubting Thomas at this students' meeting who asked Ehrhardt why he was not among those present on Nov. 9.

Ehrhardt parried by saying that he never went in for anything deemed in advance to failure. He thus scored by intimating that it was not the psychological moment for a successful putsch, but that under his leadership the Nationalistic movement would continue to flourish until the psychological moment came.

The strongest official dementis were available tonight of reports that von Kahr had committed suicide.

Ludendorff came out openly in a statement to the effect that he would continue heart and soul with and active in the Nationalist movement, and that such action would not violate his word of honor. He said he had merely given his word of honor not to escape and to undertake nothing against the Constitutional Government.

The Munich students are having the time of their lives. Owing to their disagreement about local politics between the faculty and students with compromise so far impossible, all lectures and university work has been suspended. On the other hand, students beat up Professor Sauerbruch, who addressed them today on current politics.

The Bavarian People's Party will hold a caucus in Munich tomorrow to take an attitude on the so-called von Kahr problem. The Catholic peasantry and mountaineers of the Chiemsee District at Bally today came out strongly for von Kahr and against the Hitlerites.

The Bavarian Minister, President von Knilling, will arrive in Berlin tomorrow for a conference with Chancellor Stresemann on the Bavarian situation.

BELGIAN THREAT TO BERLIN.

Action on Indemnity for Officer's Murder Is Demanded.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 12.—The German Government has been notified by Belgium that punitive measures will be taken if a satisfactory answer is not soon forthcoming to the Belgian demand for an indemnity for the assassination of Lieutenant Graff, who was killed near Dusseldorf early last year. The indemnity demand, phrased in terms savoring of an ultimatum, was sent to Berlin last week.

A dispatch from Aix-la-Chapelle on Jan. 27 last said four members of the German Green Police had been sentenced to death by a Belgian court-martial for the assassination of Lieutenant Graff, and on Aug. 4 it was reported that their appeals for a new trial had been denied.

Lieutenant Graff was shot on March 26, 1922, while riding in a street car between Ruhrort and Walsum. His slayers pleaded mistaken identity, saying they believed him to be a Belgian agent named Schmitz, whom they were seeking in order to avenge a German police officer killed by Schmitz.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—New sanctions against Germany, perhaps of the dramatic kind, it is rumored tonight, may be asked by France when the conference of Ambassadors assembles on Wednesday to reconsider the question of the return of the Crown Prince to Germany and the declaration of Chancellor Stresemann that he finds the moment inconvenient for the re-establishment of disarmament control.

During the past week and especially since Stresemann's reply to the ambassadors was made public, French attitude with regard to the Crown Prince has greatly changed. When last Monday the British Ambassador called at the Quai Dorsay to ask Premier Poincaré for his opinion on what should be done, the latter inclined to think that neither the presence nor absence from Germany of the former War Lord's heir made much difference. But since then there has come the attempted coup détat at Munich and the Stresemann reply.

These facts have altered the outlook considerably, and though there is nothing in the treaty which forbids the Crown Prince's return to Germany, his presence in the list of the war guilty is a fact which the French in the present circumstances are not in the least disposed to overlook.

"The deliberations of the conference of Ambassadors on Wednesday," says The Matin, "will be of capital importance, and we have good hopes that in the affair, which interests the security of all the victorious nations, there will not be a discordant voice.

"A peace of the world must be taken seriously. In our opinion, definite sanctions must this time support our demands on Germany, whether they be the occupation of new territories or the seizure of new revenues of Germany at the maritime and land frontiers."

It is believed to be likely that the French members of the Ambassadors' Conference will ask that the Allies send a joint warning to Stresemann that unless disarmament control is permitted some such sanctions will be taken, and there will probably be a time limit imposed.

Berlin Upholds His Return.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—The Allied Council of Ambassadors practically washed its hands this afternoon of the case arising from the former German Crown Prince's flight from Holland by referring it to their Governments.

A note from the German Government replying to the Ambassadors' representations in the matter was received in the morning, stating that the Berlin authorities saw no justification either in right or in fact for opposing the return of a German subject to his family in Germany.

The reply being addressed to the Ambassadors, it was thought necessary that the council take cognizance of it, although it was agreed yesterday between London and Paris that the affair should be taken from the Ambassadors' Council and settled by the usual diplomatic negotiations. The ambassadors decided, that in the absence of instructions from their respective capitals, Germany's reply should be referred to their Governments.

Chancellor Stresemann's negative reply to the allied demands for protection for the interallied military control mission in Germany was also briefly discussed by the Ambassadors this afternoon, but action was deferred until the meeting on Wednesday.

Italy Adheres to Allied Protest.

ROME, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Italy has adhered to the protest of the Allies against the return of former Crown Prince Frederick William to Germany, and also against the refusal of Germany to re-establish the Interallied Military Control Commission, says the Giornale d'Italia.

This is new proof of the full solidarity of the Allies in maintaining the validity of the treaties, the newspaper adds. It asserts that Premier Mussolini has given instructions in this sense to Baron Avezzana, Italian Ambassador to France, and that it is understood the Allies are awaiting Germany's answer before exchanging views with regard to the penalties to be exacted if Germany disobeys the demands made of her.

Belgium Would Act Under Treaty.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 12. — The Belgian Government will support any measures or penalties agreed upon by the Allied Council of Ambassadors regarding ex-Crown Prince Frederick William under Article 228, Paragraph 2, of the Treaty of Versailles, requiring Germany to surrender war criminals. The Belgian Ambassador in Paris has been instructed to this effect.

Cabinet Under Bley and Meyer at Speyer Says Farmers Support Republic.

MAYENCE, Germany, Nov. 12.—A government under Heintz Bley and Otto Meyer has been installed in the provincial government building at Speyer, following the proclamation of a Palatinate Republic, according to advices received here.

The Republicans in their proclamation declare their movement is supported largely by the farmers and will extend its jurisdiction over the four industrial districts of Ludwigshafen, Frankenthal, Deux Ponts (Zweibruecken) and Pirmasens.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—It is reported that two Separatists were killed in fighting for the possession of the Government building at Speyer, the capital of the Bavarian Palatinate.

Separatists from Neustadt went to help their comrades in Speyer, but were attacked by peasants en route and lost eight killed.

FRANCO-GERMAN RAILROAD ACCORD

CO-OPERATION IN FUTURE

All Repair Work Turned Over to Private Shops and Expelled Rhinelanders Taken Back.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 12.—An agreement has been reached between General Degoutte and the German Government concerning the future status of the railroads in occupied territory and establishing a modus vivendi with the State railroads in unoccupied Germany. The preliminary protocol has been signed, containing three main points:

First—The return of 30,000 freight cars and a large number of locomotives which were rushed from the Ruhr as the French arrived.

Second—The future return of "empties" dispatched to Germany from the Ruhr with goods under French export licenses.

Third—The return to the Régie of statistical documents and plans of railroad organization essential to exploitation, and future exchanges of such documents.

This agreement is signed by Councilor Wolf, representing the German Government; Colonel Frid, representing General Degoutte; M. Baudoin, representing the Régie, and Major van Buylaces for Belgium.

Final Agreement Pending.

This marks a further step in the abandonment of passive resistance by the German Government. The final agreement will be signed when Councilor Wolf has discussed its technical execution with the chief of the Régie, M. Breaud.

A slight difficulty has arisen in connection with the return of expelled railroad men. The Régie says that is a purely military matter and will only guarantee the return of those rail men expelled in order to make room for French workers and not those expelled for open resistance and sabotage. It is also the intention only to take back Rhinelanders, the Régie refusing to employ natives of Prussia and other parts of Germany.

So far 120,000 applications have been received and 35,000 men enrolled. This week that figure will be brought up to 90,000. The balance of 30,000 are non-Rhinelanders. The total figure of men formerly employed on the Rhineland railroads is frequently given as 180,000, but that comprises 60,000 repair shop and unskilled men. Most of the repair shops have been handed over to private industry by the French. The largest of these, situated at Dortmund, will be given back to the German State Railroads. The French therefore do not need repair men and will not enroll the unskilled, so that a certain number must seek employment elsewhere.

ARMY AND NAVY DINNER.

Representatives of Nine of Our Allies at Armistice Celebration.

Speakers representing nine of this country's allies in the World War repledged their countries' devotion to ideals of peace and friendly co-operation at the annual armistice dinner of the Army and Navy Club of America at the clubhouse, 112 Central Park South, last night. Brouget, French Consul in this city; Dr. Paul Roasi, Vice Consul of Italy; Charles Hallaert, Belgian Consul, and representatives of Japan, Poland, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

There were 170 members and guests present, including Major Gen. Robert L. Bullard, Major Gen. James G. Harbord, Rear Admiral Bradley M. Fiske, S. Stanwood Menken, Representative Martin Vogel and Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright.

POPE APPEALS FOR UNION.

Issues Encyclical Asking for Return of Schismatic Churches.

ROME, Nov. 12.—Pope Pius has addressed an encyclical to all the Bishops of the Catholic world on the occasion of the third centenary of the death of St. Josaphat, Archbishop of Polotsk, now Molihev, who suffered martyrdom in working for the union of the Eastern Church with the Church of Rome. The saint's day is celebrated on Nov. 14.

The pontiff expresses in the encyclical a desire for the return of the Orthodox Church to the Church of Rome after centuries of schism, in order, he says, that the Slav liturgy may shine again in the Catholic Church, where Greeks, Slavs, Syriana, Copts, Armenians, Chaldeans all can join in the worship of God in communion with the Apostolic See, "forming one family, with the faithful of the Latin rite, in beautiful equality."

ified the Treaty of Versailles if the American President could have finished his speaking trip? Would Mr. Cox have been elected President in 1920 if Mr. Wilson had remained well? We offer no supposition on these retrospective problems of American politics. But, whatever opinion one has upon what might have happened if something else had not happened, all should agree that it is not for Mr. Wilson to criticize the nations which did ratify the treaties and which have incurred them. Non-ratification by the United States, an eventuality which the tone of Mr. Wilson did not authorize us to foresee, has rendered the task of the Allies much more difficult.

"For the treaties, including the Covenant of the League of Nations, were built so as to presuppose American co-operation and were arranged in accordance with the advice and sometimes the threats of Mr. Wilson, as if this keystone could not fall.

"However, Mr. Wilson had not the power to promise American co-operation, and failed to produce it. The peace of Europe has somewhat the appearance of a ruin, let not Mr. Wilson criticize those who try, in spite of everything, to keep the edifice from falling.

"True, Mr. Wilson attacks violently the present policy of the United States. But the excess of these attacks tends rather to harm in France the cause of which Mr. Wilson made himself the champion.

"However, the language of Mr. Wilson perhaps contains a lesson and confirms the existence of grave difficulties. The Government of the United States cannot intervene half way in European affairs. If it wishes to cease staying entirely outside, it can scarcely avoid engaging itself deeply in all the great European problems, even in the problem of the interallied debts, even in the problem of territorial guarantees. We are sorry that this is true, for it results from it that each time the United States tries to approach Europe it returns to its isolation.

"But we must recognize the embarrassment of the American Government. Let it begin to speak of Europe, and the irreconcilables cry, 'No entanglements!' And, even when it defies the irreconcilables and insists on an inquiry in which it would take a part which would be unlimited, Mr. Wilson blames it for doing nothing and accuses it of taking an ignoble attitude.

"For our part, let us avoid these disputes. Let us not urge the United States to change its position. Let us only ask it not to cast upon France the responsibility for the present illusion. Let us preserve Franco-American friendship. In the years to come it may be useful."

Chagrin Felt in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Ex-President Wilson's address, broadcast throughout the United States Saturday night, created a disagreeable impression here. This feeling was not concealed in official quarters, although there was studious reserve in comments on the address. Mr. Wilson's reference to France as making "waste paper" of the Treaty of Versailles was particularly resented.

One person familiar with the French Government's views declared that this statement by the former President was unfortunate, since the only thing he had offered France, in exchange for the measures of security he refused to give her, was afterward treated as "a scrap of paper."

It was remarked in the same quarter that the insistence by France on the strict execution of the Treaty of Versailles was precisely what had brought on divisions between her and Great Britain and between her and the United States. If France had been unable to agree with Secretary Hughes in his view of the scope of the expert committee it was because M. Poincaré had adhered strictly to the treaty.

"It is beginning to appear," he added, "that whatever France does she is bound to be wrong with her allies and former associates."

British Officials Agree With Wilson.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—British officials are unwilling to discuss publicly ex-President Wilson's statement that the Treaty of Versailles has been reduced to a scrap of paper by the action of France and Italy, but privately all admit that Mr. Wilson was accurate in his description of the situation.

"France tore up the treaty when she went into the Ruhr, which step we have always considered illegal and unjustifiable," said a leading diplomat. "Italy tore it up in Corfu, which, if not a direct violation of the treaty, was a violation of the League covenant, which is part of the treaty. We still hope it can be pasted together again and something saved, but it can only be done by the good-will and co-operation of all the signatories."

CALLS WILSON IDEA RIGHT.

But He Was Ahead of His Time, Says C. G. Dawes.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A plea for more effective participation in world affairs was voiced last night by Charles G. Dawes, speaking at the Armistice Day celebration of a local post of the American Legion.

"The place of the political demagogue is certainly not in world affairs," said Mr. Dawes. "This business of A and B getting together and telling C how to do something for D won't get us anywhere. Neither will a strict isolation policy. It seems that every time a proposal for us to render a little effective aid to Europe is made there is a howl from California warning us to keep our hands off. President Wilson had the right idea, but he was ahead of his time.

REED CHALLENGES WILSON.

Senator Denies America's Role is Cowardly and Dishonorable.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 12.—Woodrow Wilson's declaration that America has played a "cowardly and dishonorable" rôle since the World War was challenged by Senator Reed in addressing an American Legion meeting here yesterday.

"I deny that America played an ignoble part before, during or since the war," he declared. "I assert that the noblest page of history ever written is the story of America's part before, during and since the war."

The Democratic Senator said he objected to calling England, Belgium and Italy "our allies," as the former President referred to them in his radio address.

"They were not our allies," he asserted, "and every State paper refers to them, not as allies, but as associates."

many, it cannot postpone beyond 1930 the payments due. The French delegate would not be authorized to agree to that, and unanimity of the commission would be requisite for any extension beyond that date.

While, in the French view, the decisions which the commission might reach would not settle the reparations problem as a whole, its investigations might, by baring the causes of Germany's bankruptcy, lead the heads of the Reich to introduce reforms indispensable for the restoration of Germany's finances.

BALDWIN'S HANDS TIED.

Can't Act Decisively on Experts' Inquiry With Elections Near.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The practical breakdown of the negotiations for the appointment of an expert committee to investigate Germany's financial condition, and the return of the Crown Prince to German territory, have confronted the British Government with fresh difficulties in its foreign policy at the very moment when the imminence of the general election makes it almost impossible to take strenuous action. Officially it is considering the situation; unofficially there is belief that it will do nothing.

Strong influences are indeed being brought to bear on it to take a strong line in regard to the experts' committee and to make efforts to persuade the United States to join in. The Imperial Conference declared that after consideration it could see no hope for Europe except through the co-operation of America, and that in the event of the scheme for a common inquiry followed by common action breaking down, the British Government should "consider very carefully the alternative of summoning a conference itself."

Such views coming from the dominion statesmen after six weeks' study of the European problem must carry great weight, but it has to encounter a pessimistic feeling in political circles. These believe that the conditions of American participation have no chance of being fulfilled, and they cannot see, unless Washington consents to alter its attitude, how Great Britain can accomplish anything by trying to bring off its own financial conference.

France, it is argued, would never consent to a wide enquiry, as by any value, and it is hard to believe that Belgium, though she may be under French domination, would be willing to break away sufficiently to join an investigation in which France was not represented.

Consequently there remains only Italy, and an Anglo-Italian inquiry would carry none of that prestige which alone could modify the policy of Poincaré. So unless some new proposition can be advanced with the concurrence of both the American and British Governments it appears that for the present Great Britain is likely to do nothing.

POINCARE TO FACE THE CHAMBER TODAY

Is Expected to Refuse Interpellations and Force Vote on Question of Confidence.

PARIS, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—After four months' recess, the Chamber of Deputies will reconvene tomorrow. The Poincaré Cabinet will be faced with some forty interpellations dealing with foreign and international policies.

Although no official announcement has been made to that effect, those close to the Premier say he will raise the question of confidence immediately, refusing to discuss any interpellations, whether dealing with internal or foreign affairs, and request that such matters be postponed indefinitely. The Government will contend that in the fact of the present troubled and unsettled situation, the unsolved problems of reparations and inter-allied military control in Germany, this is no time for discussion of such questions in the French Chamber.

Whether M. Poincaré will make an official declaration is not known, but a majority of the Deputies are of the opinion that he will not do so, while others are inclined to think he will make a short one. M. Poincaré will stake the fate of the Cabinet on his unalterable decision of "no immediate discussion", and the general impression is that the Governmental viewpoint will be upheld by a large majority.

Interpellations emanating from Socialist and Communist quarters on the Ruhr question are certain to produce a large volume of notes, but no one among the hundreds of deputies circulating in the Chamber lobbies this afternoon—not even the interpellators themselves—expressed the opinion that there was the slightest chance of placing the Government in danger. The Socialists virtually admit that the Chamber will overrule their demand for an immediate discussion, and they will concentrate their attack on the Cabinet when the question of supplementary credits for the 1924 budget comes up.

SAYS NATION NEEDS MELLON PROGRAM

Tax Reduction Will Aid Prosperity, Asserts Legal Adviser to Industrial Council.

BONUS WOULD PREVENT IT

Secretary Right in Saying People Could Not Have Both, Lawyer Declares.

James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Industrial Council, who was the principal speaker at the first session of the twelfth semi-annual meeting of the Advisory Committee of the council at the Hotel Astor yesterday, warmly praised Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's program for tax reduction and against the soldiers' bonus. He characterised Mr. Mellon as "one of the ablest financiers in public life since Alexander Hamilton."

Mr. Emery declared that tax reduction was much needed for the sake of the prosperity of the country, but that Secretary Mellon was absolutely right in stating that if Congress passes the bonus legislation all hope of reducing taxes must be given up for many years.

"The soldier bonus will generally increase the burden of taxation," said Mr. Emery. "It is impossible to reduce taxation and still pay a bonus. The cost of a bonus will not be less than $1,000,000,000 or more than $4,500,000,000, which will be added to the public debt to begin with, entirely aside from the cost of administration throughout the years, which would be tremendous.

"Can any one suggest a form of bonus which will please the applicants and which will tend to reduce taxation?

"When Secretary Mellon first mentioned a tax reduction some time ago there was a wave of approval from all sides. Just as soon as the farm group realizes that it cannot escape taxation it will be opposed to further taxation. The important thing is to bring home to every community the inescapable burden of taxation from a soldier bonus.

"A bonus means not only an increase in the national debt, but an immediate increase in the cost of living. It means also that wages will buy less.

"There must be improvement in tax administration. Dr. Adams of Yale, an authority, in the national conference at White Sulphur Springs recently, said that unless the administration of taxes is improved the whole increased tax system will break down. The 1917 income taxes have not been adjusted yet, and those from 1917 to 1923 have not been met.

"Two possible means for bettering tax administration are by legislation and by administrative action. There ought to be a board of appeals set up by legislation, separate from the Department of Internal Revenue, to settle disputes between the income taxpayer and that department."

Taxation, Mr. Emery said, was one of the four things certain to engage the attention of the next Congress, the others being immigration, an attempt to repeal or modify the transportation act, and an attack on the judiciary. Referring to the number of radicals elected to the Senate and the probability of a radical onslaught to change the Constitution, he predicted that many constitutional amendments would be urged at the coming session, but that none would be adopted. He scored conservatives, especially manufacturers and business men, for indifference to their obligations as voters, which, he said, was one of the reasons for recent radical successes.

In the last Presidential election, he said, only 49 per cent. of the qualified voters participated in the balloting.

"If we examine the vote by which the so-called Senate radicals were elected," he continued, "we discover that 35 per cent. of the registered vote of North Dakota elected Senator Frazier, 32 per cent. of Nebraska's registered vote elected Senator Howell, 30 per cent. of Montana's Senator Wheeler, 29 per cent. of Iowa's Senator Brookhart, 28 per cent. of Wisconsin's Senator La Follette, 17 per cent. of Washington's Senator Dill, 16 per cent. of Michigan's Senator Ferris."

Hears Voice of 6,000,000 Voters.

From The Herald.

Secretary Mellon's letter on tax reduction is a great document. It has the clearness which, in the discussion of economic matters, goes only with a perfect comprehension of the subject. It has the firmness of a sure man.

The purpose of the revision advocated by the head of the Treasury Department is the chief purpose of real democracy—the greatest good of the greatest number.

Secretary Mellon's proposal is of such personal concern to many people as to make it the liveat issue in the coming Congress. There are, for instance, nearly 6,000,000 persons who pay taxes on incomes ranging between $2,000 and $6,000 a year. Almost all of these are voters; some of them, married men, represent two votes. Mr. Mellon is a banker-statesman, not a politician. But there are politicians in Congress who will give thought to the reaction certain to occur among their constituents if the Mellon plan should be discarded.

Gives Country a Clear Choice.

From The Tribune.

Secretary Mellon has offered Congress and the country a clear choice between tax reduction and readjustment and a bonus largely for the benefit of undisabled soldiers. * * * It is inconceivable that Congress for political reasons will deny the people as a whole the enormous benefits of tax reduction and adjustment in order to bestow a bonus on one class of voters.

Declares All Groups Benefit.

From The Sun and Globe.

The opportunity for a revision of an illogical tax structure is too good to be missed, and the Secretary proposed to secure revision at the price of a general reduction. The proposal is an instance of careful and comprehensive planning to meet a definite situation, of which all the factors, direct and indirect, have been taken into account. It is difficult to see how the plan can be successfully attacked on behalf of any group, since all groups benefit. Mr. Mellon has given a magnificent demonstration of the way in which public men ought to handle public problems.

Considered Right and Courageous.

From The Evening Post.

If President Coolidge has decided to stand behind Secretary Mellon a bonus bill will not become law unless it is passed over his veto. Such action would amount to a repudiation of his leadership on the eve of a Presidential campaign. In this matter Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon are as right as they are courageous. They should have such outspoken support from the country as to cause Congress to think several times before it throws their policy into the scrap basket.

BOSTON.

Finds Move Against Bonus.

From The Globe.

Secretary Mellon's plan for a reduction of income and surtaxes is likely to bring many gray hairs to the members of the incoming Congress. Its crosscuts politics and public policy in a manner which seems to promise worry both among the "fors" and among the "againsts." The Harding Administration successfully blocked the soldiers' bonus legislation of Congress by issuing a statement that the Treasury was faced with a deficit. That "deficit" now turns out, according to Mr. Mellon, to be a surplus which promises to run as high as $300,000,000 a year for the next five years, so Mr. Mellon, whose fears about a deficit were adopted by President Harding as a means of killing off the bonus plan, now switches tactics and proposes to block the soldiers' bonus by spreading upon the counter various proposals for reducing income taxes, provided and if there is no soldiers' bonus legislation passed.

Expects Coolidge to Back Mellon.

From The Herald.

Secretary Mellon deserves the praise of the country for his insistent endeavors to obtain a reduction of our present excessive schedule of income taxation. And it is only what we should expect that he has President Coolidge behind him in all these common sense recommendations. Nothing would do the business of the country greater good or contribute more effectively to the comfort and welfare of the great masses of our people than a reduction of the taxation which is now locking the fortunes of the capitalists in unproductive investments.

Believes Bonus Can Be Paid Too.

From The Transcript.

The thoroughly specific and practical nature of Mr. Mellon's statement proves once more the advantage to the country of having at the head of the Treasury a man of such weight, ability and experience. At the same time that he demonstrates the possibility of making a marked reduction of taxation, Mr. Mellon proves the practicability of paying the soldiers' compensation. A more equitable adjustment of taxation, with a stoppage of a good many leaks, would ease the national burden without destroying the chance to pay the soldiers' compensation.

PHILADELPHIA.

Income Tax System a Nuisance.

From The Inquirer.

The whole income tax system is an abominable nuisance, for that matter—unscientific and wretchedly discriminating. It is high time that it should be overhauled. But the bonus is in its path, and since it is the evident intention of Congress to put that legislation through, what hope can there be for lower taxes?

Reduction for All Taxpayers.

From The Public Ledger.

The strength of the Mellon proposal rests in the fact that it would mean an almost horizontal reduction of the taxes paid by every one of the 7,250,000 income taxpayers. It places squarely up to the taxpayer, the nation and Congress a tax reduction for the many against a bonus for the comparatively few. It offers Congress a choice between the greatest good for the greatest number and a doubtful good for a lesser number.

Poses Bonus Against Tax Cut.

From The Record.

Secretary Mellon is determined to put Congress in a distressing dilemma by offering it the choice of reducing taxes or of voting $4,000,000,000 for the bonus. It would be a very popular thing to vote the bonus. It would also be a very popular thing to reduce taxes.

ALBANY.

Sound Argument May Succeed.

From The Knickerbocker Press.

Secretary Mellon's scheme for a reduction in direct Federal taxation seems to be predicated on the possible success of the Administration to resist the demand for a bonus for veterans of the World War. Senator Smoot, himself an opponent of the bonus, has said that he believes advocates of the proposal will have a commanding majority in both branches of the new Congress, and that a bonus is inevitable. While it is altogether probable that the situation is accurately measured by Senator Smoot, there remains the possibility that sound argument and sober appeal to reason may be effective, and that the nation may be saved from embarkation on an expedition false from an economical standpoint, essentially wrong in that it runs counter to national ethics and patriotic principles, and mischievous in that it runs counter to national ethics and patriotic principles, and mischievous in that it encourages the feeling among citizens of dependence upon a paternalist Government.

BALTIMORE.

Plan Forestalls Radicals.

From The Sun.

Secretary Mellon in his tax-reduction letter shows that he is wiser than many of the so-called financial authorities in Congress. Senator Smoot, declared himself opposed to any attempt at tax revision at the coming session of Congress on the part of the Administration, on the ground that wild men in the House and Senate would run away with the measure and create a general smash. Inaction on the part of the Administration would not prevent action on the part of radical groups. The best way is to forestall them with a sound, sensible and scientific plan of revision that will mean tax reduction without loss of revenue. Mr. Mellon has raised a sharp, clean issue, which the practical politicians in Congress will dodge at their peril.

INDIANAPOLIS.

Supports Mellon Plan.

From The Star.

The plan under which we are operating was worked out hurriedly and in a war emergency. It should be adapted to the permanent business conditions of the country. No one who has kept in touch with recent developments doubts the seriousness of the flow of money into tax-exempt securities. As Secretary Mellon explains, all that money must be paid eventually, principal and interest, by taxation. A revamping of our schedules such as Secretary Mellon proposes would distribute the burden equitably and produce more revenue for the Government and more business for every one.

CHICAGO.

Ready for Financial Revision.

From The Tribune.

Secretary Mellon's proposal of a reduction in income taxes and other internal revenue marks the high point in a career of financial administration which must give him a permanent place in the history and admiration of this country. The proposal reflects nothing less than genius. That he ties the proposal up with a reservation that the Government shall not assume the cost of a soldiers' bonus is outside this discussion. The finances of the Federal Government have been put in such condition under Mr. Mellon's direction that in spite of our tremendous war debt, in spite of reductions already made in Federal taxes, and in spite of a period of financial stringency, it is now possible to cut off $323,000,000 of Federal income and continue to maintain the Government on its present plane.

BUFFALO.

Can't Have Cake and Eat It.

From The Express.

Secretary Mellon warns the country that we cannot have our cake and eat it, too. If Congress heeds the call for a soldier bonus the Secretary of the Treasury points out that a reduction in taxes next year will be impossible and a reduction for a number of years unlikely. Thus is the issue sharply defined. Congress will have no excuse for side-stepping. A bonus bill means taxes. Let there be a special tax for the bonus and let all the reductions proposed by Secretary Mellon go into effect next January. Segregating a fund for the payment of a gratuity to the men who helped to win the war would have a salutary effect on taxpayers. Every patriotic citizen would pay cheerfully if he knew definitely that the money was to go into the pockets of the young men who blithely marched away in 1917 and 1918.

CLEVELAND.

Doubts Chances in Congress.

From The Plain Dealer.

How far the President could get with this [the Mellon] plan, if it should be accepted as an Administration program and urged upon Congress, is a serious question. But in tying up with income tax reduction with his scheme to attract capital now invested in tax-exempt securities back into industry the Secretary of the Treasury has considerably increased the likelihood of favorable action. The tax complexion of Congress is well enough known to indicate that the surtax reduction scheme had practically no chance of acceptance alone. With a plan calling for reduction all along the line the going will be better.

DETROIT.

Hails Truth on Surtax Evil.

From The Free Press.

Secretary Mellon tells the truth about the evil effect of the high surtax on the the mouthings of a few demagogues country in a plain way that ought to be an effective warning not to listen to who are trying to make political capital out of class prejudice and are advocating measures whose passage would make a bad situation much worse. The high surtax rate seriously impedes the development of productive enterprise. The muleting by the public Treasury is confiscatory.

CINCINNATI.

Separates Tax Cut From Bonus.

From The Commercial-Tribune.

To his proposal Secretary Mellon attaches a large-sized "if." In principle he places the bar sinister on the bonus bill; tax reduction is feasible "if" there is no bonus allowance. A soldiers' bonus has no legitimate place as argument for or against tax reductions in abstract sense. The United States owes her former service men a bonus recognition of merit in sacrificial service, or the United States does not. If the former, she should pay it regardless; if the latter, let's forget it.

ST. LOUIS.

Bonus and the Cost of Living.

From The Globe-Democrat.

Than an announcement of reductions in Federal taxation, coming from so authoritative a source as the present Treasury head, there could hardly be better news. If the bonus is granted, instead of a reduction in the present offensive rate of Federal taxation, there must be oppressive increases, and not only during a few years, but during a long term of years. The bonus, if voted, will give each soldier only a few hundred dollars. Probably there is no soldier living who would not, in the next ten years, pay out in increased living costs more than the amount of his bonus allotment.

LOUISVILLE.

Puts Decision Up to Congress.

From The Courier-Journal.

It is a carefully worked out plan for tax reduction which Secretary Mellon will present to Congress—a plan which, if adopted, will materially cut down Federal income taxes, whether exacted of little or big taxpayers. It is a welcome assurance from such an authority as the present Secretary of the Treasury that such reductions can be made provided increased extraordinary expenses be not incurred—provided especially that a soldiers' bonus be not authorized. Secretary Mellon's proposal, therefore, puts it squarely up to Congress whether it will reduce the taxes of the people or increase those taxes by voting a bonus for a few people.

RICHMOND.

Says Mellon Discredits Critics.

From The Times-Dispatch.

In urging his program of tax reduction Secretary Mellon, with a fine courage that takes no thought of partisan political capital, warns that the lifting of the present tax burden, which is sapping the sources of national prosperity, will be impossible of accomplishment if Congress should persist in its purpose to vote the soldiers' bonus. Thus once more Mr. Mellon discredits the critics who branded him as a representative of "big business" and stands forth as the friend of the individual taxpayers and concerns of small means.

KANSAS CITY.

Asks Soldiers to Forego Bonus.

From The Star.

By sacrificing the bonus, the soldier can contribute to a reduction of taxes, to a lowering of the cost of living and to the stimulation of business and employment, in all of which benefits he will participate, even if not to the extent of the proposed cash bonus. By demanding and procuring the bonus he would make taxes still higher for a very long period, delay prosperity and generally retard the country's recovery from the costly war in which he served his country with unselfish devotion.

ST. PAUL.

Fears Partisan Defeat of Plan.

From The St. Paul Dispatch.

The very wholesome proposal of Secretary Mellon, the salvation of a precarious situation, may be chased from two quarters. There is a possibility that the prestige to the present Administration of such a taxation reformation may stir up Democratic antagonism on the eve of a Presidential election. There is the same possibility of the radical hostility on a still lower and meaner basis. Beneficial results from the policy advocated by Secretary Mellon will deprive the demagogue in Congress and elsewhere of his chief argument—that piling the tax on the rich takes the burden from the poor. Mr. Mellon's program appeals to all classes but to no one at the expense of another.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Calls for Public Commendation.

From The Republican.

It is the Republican's conviction that Mr. Mellon is advocating a sound financial policy. No bonus bill should be passed. If one should be passed, the President should veto it. The people must support the Secretary of the Treasury by unmistakable expressions of opinion if his policy is to prevail. His letter to Chairman Green will serve as a test of public sentiment. He specifically declares his belief that the country would prefer a substantial reduction of taxation to the increased taxes that would necessarily follow from a soldiers' bonus.

NEW ORLEANS.

Says Tax Cut Pays Debt to Soldiers.

From The Times-Picayune.

Three hundred million or a billion in money of continued taxation should not weigh against any debt justly due and payable, especially to the former soldiers of America. But there is no money debt justly due in the form of "adjusted compensation." Reduced taxation, quickened industry broadened opportunity would put the former service men far better off than the pittance each would get as a bonus that in the aggregate would be onerous to the nation.

SYRACUSE.

Sees Tax Cut Foe in La Follette.

From The Post-Standard.

The La Follette-minded Congressmen defeated Mellon before and they can probably do it again. They can probably defeat his $10,000 exemption. How they will stand on the reduced rate on normal income and primary surtax will call for some caucusing. Senator La Follette's group is bitterly opposed to any reduction which reduces the taxes of the rich. So there will probably be nothing done.

PROVIDENCE.

Declares Mellon Is Right.

From The Journal.

Secretary Mellon finds the revenues of the Government are sufficient to justify substantial tax reductions. Manifestly, however, no program for tax reduction is going to be feasible if the Government is to be committed by Congress to new and extraordinary expenditures. Secretary Mellon puts it plainly—a soldiers' bonus would postpone tax reduction not for one, but for many years to come. There we have it—the tax-burdened people versus the bonus hunter.

NEW HAVEN.

Gives Opportunity for Study.

From The Journal-Courier.

Secretary Mellon has performed a distinct public service in making public these proposals now, so far in advance of the meeting of the new Congress. He is giving the people of the country an opportunity to study his recommendations.

PITTSBURGH.

Reduction a Business Proposition.

From The Gazette-Times.

The major fact is that Mr. Mellon has laid before Congress and the country a comprehensive plan for taxation relief where it is most needed that bears the stamp of practicability. It is a business man's proposition and it should be considered as a business proposition.

SALT LAKE CITY.

Doubts Action by Congress.

From The Tribune.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will receive the support of a majority of the people of the United States in his effort to bring about a reduction in Federal taxes, but we are by no means certain that Congress will take the necessary action.

LOS ANGELES.

Calls Bonus Undesirable.

From The Times.

Secretary Mellon has announced in effect that we can have a tax reduction of something over $300,000,000 or a soldiers' bonus, but not both. The proposed bonus legislation is unwise and improper, but not on the grounds that it would prevent the United States from saving $300,000,000. If the bonus were necessary and desirable it should be passed, no matter what it costs. But in the opinion of The Times it is not necessary or desirable.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Says Earners Will Rally to Plan.

From The Chronicle.

The proposal of Secretary Mellon, by discriminating in favor of "earned" incomes, would especially benefit our great middle class, which is feeling the pressure which in Europe has destroyed the middle class in some countries. It includes professional men and salary and wage earners, and doubtless will have their enthusiastic support. Congressmen will do well to make note of it.

COLUMBUS.

Thinks Mellon Position Sound.

From The Ohio State Journal.

Secretary Mellon, doubtless with President Coolidge's earnest approval, puts the question squarely up to the country—Federal tax reduction or a soldiers' bonus. Thus the Administration arrays itself against a general soldiers' bonus law. Its position, we think, is particularly sound, for the greatest good of the greatest number.

BONUS BILL BACKERS TO FIGHT TAX CUTS

action against bonus proposals will be so insistent in another month as to compel the party leaders to force through tax reductions without a bonus bill. Prominent Republican leaders, however, feel that the party is committed to the bonus and therefore have expressed the opinion that this legislation cannot be avoided.

Another aspect of the agitation for a tax reduction is the assertion by members of the radical Republican group that if the tax laws are opened up for revision they will offer a counter proposition. These leaders say that Secretary Mellon's proposal does not lift the burden from the shoulders of the less able to pay, but lightens the tax bills chiefly of the rich and those more able to contribute to the cost of Government. This group, headed by Senator La Follette, and including Senator Norris and five others in the Senate, and about twenty-five House members, is represented as controlling the balance of power in Congress.

It was indicated today that the program backed by the radicals would include a restoration of the tax on excess profits, higher surtaxes on large incomes, legislation to prevent stock dividends unless they are taxed and a constitutional amendment to stop tax-exempt securities. One of these leaders said today that if this program was enacted the burden would be lifted from the poor and there would be enough taxes to provide a reasonable bonus.

Look for Deadlock on Legislation.

Since this radical group has the balance of power on the Republican side, the feeling exists that the Administration forces in Congress not only will be unable to enact tax revision, but will come to a standstill on nearly all important legislation. This is the conclusion of important Republican leaders who viewed both sides of the tax revision program today.

Senator Smoot, who will be Chairman of the Finance Committee, holds this view. He is opposed to the bonus, but feels that Congress will be forced to pass such a law. He is against tax revision because the chances are that the opening up of this subject will make it possible for the radicals, in combination with the Democrats, to enact legislation deemed un-Republican and against the best interests of the country.

Treasury Department officials took the attitude today that a tax revision program along the lines suggested by Secretary Mellon not only would give substantial relief to the smaller taxpayers, but was essential to the continuation of industrial activity on a basis which would prove most helpful to all classes of taxpayers.

It was said to be the opinion of Secretary Mellon that, whatever may be the fate of the general proposals made because of the attitude Congress takes in regard to bonus legislation, action by Congress to reduce the high surtax rates, which were declared to be driving capital to turn to tax-exempt securities for investment purposes, is absolutely necessary.

It was pointed out by the Treasury Department officials, among them Mr. Mellon, that the high surtaxes unquestionably were defeating the very purpose for which they were erected, namely, the collection of large sums in revenue from large incomes. Facts and figures in the possession of the Treasury Department, it is said, is unassailable evidence that revenues from large incomes are decreasing each year, while investment in tax-exempt securities by those possessed of large incomes are increasing.

The transfer of capital from industry to tax-exempt securities, it was stated, was forcing railroads and other large industries to pay higher rates of interest for capital necessary to their operation, and such a situation could have no other effect than to build up living costs and increase the indirect tax burdens of the ultimate consumers.

Some of the Treasury officials, it is said, feel that the situation is becoming so serious that Mr. Mellon's proposals for a reduction of the high surtax rates must receive consideration by Congress, even if it is necessary, because of refusal to put aside bonus legislation, to abandon all other features of the Mellon program. The Treasury officials continue to maintain that reduction of taxes on smaller incomes cannot be made unless Congress will agree to defeat bonus bills.

Coolidge Believed in Favor.

There was no intimation today as to the attitude which President Coolidge may take in his message to Congress, but it was pretty generally accepted that Secretary Mellon would not have made public his letter to Representative Green unless his program was acceptable to the President and at least a majority of the Cabinet.

Views of Senators and members on the Mellon program, which promises to be a live subject for debate on the assembling of Congress, follow:

Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia—"I very earnestly favor a reduction in the great tax burden which the American people are now enduring, and I am utterly opposed to the bonus proposition, both for sentimental and economical reasons.

Senator Norris, Nebraska, of the radical group—"I do not agree with the Mellon recommendation at all. If this program is presented to Congress undoubtedly there will be a counterproposal presented. I am sure that those who do not agree with the reduction proposed will seek to restore excess profits, the higher surtaxes on incomes, and will find means to prevent stock dividends, unless they are taxed."

Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon—"I am for bonus and, of course, hopeful that Congress may be able to pass bonus and reduce taxes."

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana—"I do not believe Congress will accept Secretary Mellon's recommendations. Its first duty is to provide compensation for the ex-service men."

Senator Kendrick, Democrat, Wyoming—"I am not in favor of a tax reduction which ignores a bonus long promised by Congress. In my opinion, the first duty of Congress is to the soldiers, and they should have compensation even if the present high tax rates must continue. I do not believe Congress will accept Secretary Mellon's recommendations."

Senator McKinley, Republican, Illinois—"I favor Congress passing a Bonus bill, and I think one might be passed and a small tax reduction be made at the same time."

Senator Moses, Republican New Hampshire—"I think well of Secretary Mellon's recommendations, and I hope they can be carried out."

Senator King, Democrat, Utah—"I think that Secretary Mellon is right on the bonus question, and the people desire a reduction in the tax burden."

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho—"I stand with Secretary Mellon absolutely on the bonus. I am studying the tax situation and expect to have something to say about it in a few days."

Smoot Predicts No Cuts.

Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah: "I am of the same opinion I originally had after reading Secretary Mellon's recommendations. This Congress will not change the Revenue or or Tariff acts."

Senator Cummins, Republican, Iowa: "I doubt if the recommendations will meet with anything like general approval in Congress. The people want taxes reduced, but Congress cannot reduce this burden and provide a bonus at the same time.

Representative Nelson, Wisconsin, one of the La Follette group—"I do not favor the Mellon proposal. It merely lifts the burden from one shoulder and puts it on another."

Representative Oldfield, Democrat, Arkansas—"I do not favor the proposal that the surtax on incomes over $100,000 or more should be 25 per cent."

Representative Green, Acting Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee—"I stand where I did in the Summer when I called at the White House. If we can cut down appropriations, then we can cut down taxes."

Representative Graham, Republican, Illinois—"I am not in accord with Mr. Mellon, and it was poor judgment to express his views at this time. The people in my country are opposed to changing the surtax rate on incomes. I disagree with Mr. Mellon as to the bonus."

Speaker Gillett—"I do not think I ought to comment on Mr. Mellon's recommendations. The statement tells its own story."

Representative Madden of Illinois, Chairman of the Appropriations Committe, expressed the opinion that reduction in the taxes of smaller incomes could be made, even if bonus legislation were adopted. He advocated financing a bonus by heavy luxury taxes.

SAVES CINCINNATI $3,000,000.

Mellon Plan Approved by Business Executives of Ohio City.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Influential Cincinnatians today approved the proposal of Secretary Meson for reducing the national taxes about $300,000,000. This would mean that Cincinnati would pay about $3,000,000 less in taxes, a $7.50 reduction per capita.

"The suggestions of the Secretary are admirable," said Charles A. Hinsch, President of the Fifth-Third National Bank. "They will do more to give encouragement to business than anything else and help the vast number of men who earn their living by their own work. The plan to reduce surtaxes is another step in the right direction. I wish he had taken steps to release trading in real estate from its present tax handicaps."

"Secretary Mellon's proposals in general meet with my hearty approval," said D. C. Keller, President of the Chamber of Commerce. "There is no question but what the excessively high surtaxes now in effect are a deterrent to business. His stand against the soldiers' bonus is sound patriotism and sound finance. I disagree with him to some extent in the matter of limiting allwances for capital losses to 12½ per cent."

Philadelphia Bankers Say Mellon Plan Will Put Capital in Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 12.—It was the opinion among Philadelphia bankers that enactment of the reduced tax program as proposed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon would make bonds more attractive, especially because persons with incomes of $10,000 or less would be enabled to save the surtaxes on their income from investments.

Charles M. Vaughan, President of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, considers the Mellon proposal of prime importance. "Because the relief of the man of moderate income is getting to put a great deal of money into channels from which it will reach industry."

"Secretary Mellon's tax cut proposal is a very progressive step. It will give a tremendous stimulus to business," said Hollingshead N. Taylor, President of the N. & G. Taylor Company, tin plate manufacturers.

Walter P. Miller, President of the Walter P. Miller Company, paper box manufacturers, said it was the most satisfying proposal that has come out of Washington in a long time from the standpoint of the business man.

MELLON PROGRAM A BOON TO INDUSTRY

particularly his suggestions regarding a reduction in surtaxes. This will help toward the solution of one of our most serious problems, the flight of capital into tax exempt securities."

Among those who did not care to make any formal comment, but who said they were pleased with the Mellon program were officers of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Kuhn, Loeb & Co.; the First National Bank; the Guaranty Trust Company; Bankers Trust Company, and a large number of investment banking institutions and New York Stock Exchange houses.

Bankers, it was stated, have been persistently emphasizing the necessity of a tax reduction. Recommendation to this effect have been made to Congressmen and individual institutions have prepared numerous arguments against the high tax rates now in effect. In the reduction proposed by Secretary Mellon, the financiers see a ray of light for which they have been waiting ever since the surtax scale was adopted, but this optimism is tempered with apprehension that the next Congress will be too evenly balanced to permit of the passage of any legislation over which a storm might arise.

The problem now facing the country, as a result of a drying up of money available for industrial enterprises, is not fully appreciated, one banker declared. "The conversion of funds from productive enterprise into tax-exempt bonds," he said, "has been amazing. Before the war, for instance, we had on our books the names of men who could be depended on to take $100,000 blocks of stock or bonds for the benefit of newly organized companies as well as old companies in whose prospects they had faith. Today, these same men ask why they should risk their money in that way.

"If the venture proves successful, they say, the Government will take half our profits, and if it fails we're out just so much money without having had the satisfaction of a real run for the money involved.' And in one very large bond issue which we helped to bring out the average subscription was $3,000 instead of the pre-war average of ten to fifty times that amount."

To get men with big incomes back into the industrial fields is one of the day's problems, it was suggested. At the present men of average incomes are providing the sinews for American business and, as their incomes increase they, too, are shifting into the tax-exempt field.

Mr. Mellon's proposed reductions, it was generally conceded, were sufficiently attractive to correct this process and a far reaching change in industry would be the direct result.

COMMENT OF THE NEWSPAPERS ON MELLON'S TAX PLAN

Editorials in newspapers of different cities received last night in response to a request made by THE NEW YORK TIMES commend the tax revision proposal of Secretary Mellon. Excerpts from the editorials follow:

NEW YORK.

Puts Choice Up to People.

From The World.

By Secretary Mellon's letter the Coolidge Administration gives notice that the people can have lower Federal taxation or they can have the soldier bonus; they cannot have both—and whatever their choice may be they should bring that choice to the attention of Congress. In the case of the proposed Federal bonus there is, and there can be, no referendum to the people. The responsibility of decision is thrown upon Congress and the President. Undoubtedly a bonus bill will be passed. As an alternative not higher taxation but lower is proffered, is feasible, is within reach in time to affect next year's tax bills. The entire list of reductions should act, if realized, as a spur to industry and so serve the general welfare.

The question now is before the voters. They can have lower Federal taxes or a Federal soldier bonus with increased taxes. Which shall it be? Let Congress know!

PEDDLED WALTON'S NOTES FOR HOUSE

OIL MAN TOOK $30,000

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Financial transactions by which Governor Walton acquired a $48,000 residence here last May, involving a canvass of wealthy men of the State in an effort to dispose of six $5,000 notes which the executive gave to Walter D. Caldwell, the owner of the property, were detailed before the Senate Court here today in the Governor's impeachment trial.

In purchasing the house Governor Walton paid to Caldwell, a local oil man, $18,000 cash and gave the notes for the balance. These notes were sold to E. W. Marland, President of the Marland Oil and Refining Company at Ponca City. The Governor is charged in the impeachment bill with thereby obligating himself to Marland, who is described as owning "several millions of dollars of taxable property in Oklahoma." The bill charges that the transaction was "willfully corrupt," in that the Governor is Chairman of the State Board of Equalization, which assesses property.

Caldwell told the Court that he negotiated the sale of the notes and that Marland told him to see Judge Hayes, his attorney, before the deal was closed. He thought Maryland would buy the notes before the deal was closed. He admitted that he told Chauncey B. Nichols, manager of the Oklahoma Portland Cement Company, that he "would talk with the Governor in regard to Nichols's difficulties if he would purchase one of the notes."

Nichols declared that Caldwell told him the "would be a sucker" if he did not buy the note, and that Caldwell asserted he "would try to fix things up with the Governor" if the note was taken.

C. J. Wrightsman, a wealthy Tulsa oil man, testified that he declined to purchase three of the notes after he had already contributed more than $12,000 to Walton's campaign expenses.

The first attempt to inject the Ku Klux Klan issue into the trial failed today when the Senate court by an oral vote refused to permit a witness to answer a question that bore directly on the Governor's opposition to the organization.

Homer D. Martin, who testified he had guarded the Executive's residence at night on occasions during the last eighteen months, had said the Governor's life had been threatened.

"Wasn't that about the time Mr. Walton, as Mayor, issued a proclamation directed against the Ku Klux Klan?" defense counsel asked.

The prosecution objected and Tom Anglin, President of the Senate, moved that the reference to the Klan be stricken from the record. The court supported his motion by an oral vote.

Martin testified that he shot at one man who tried to enter the premises.

TWO AUTOISTS WOUNDED.

Warrant Issued for Man Who Fired at Car After It Killed His Dog.

HARRISONVILLE, N. J., Nov. 12.—Angered at the killing of his dog by a motorist, Denny Tomarchio of Harrisonville today fired at the automobile and wounded J. T. Burk of Trenton and his daughter, Elizabeth, according to the State police.

The two were treated by a physician, and Burk then had a warrant issued for his alleged assailant, who fled.

The dog was chasing a rabbit when it darted into the path of the machine and was killed. Burk was said to have offered to pay Tomarchio for the loss of his pet, but the latter refused. Burk drove off and Tomarchio, the police said, fired birdshot at the automobile.

Governor Orders South Dakota Gasoline Sale at 16 Cents.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 12.—Governor W. H. McMaster again entered the gasoline price war in South Dakota today when he announced that tomorrow the State would start selling gasoline again at 16 cents a gallon at the State oil supply depot at Mitchell.

The Government's announcement followed the action of the Standard Oil Company and independents in advancing the price of gasoline to 17½ cents in the Sioux Falls district and 18 cents elsewhere in the State.

W. E. D. STOKES FAILS TO DELAY WIFE'S SUIT

Justice Wasservogel Marks Case 'Ready' for Today or Tomorrow.

The effort of W. E. D. Stokes's counsel to delay the trial of his wife's suit for separation proved unsuccessful yesterday when Supreme Court Justice Wasservogel denied the motion for a two weeks' adjournment. Upon Samuel Untermyer's request the case was marked ready and will begin either today or tomorrow. Nine other cases preceded it on the calendar.

Isadore Gainsburg of 291 Broadway, who was trial counsel for Stokes in the dower case and at the hearing on alimony and custody of Mrs. Stokes's two children before Justice Finch, will represent Stokes in the separation proceedings.

Miss Rebecca Arenwald of Mr. Gainsburg's office and Daniel F. Nugent, Stokes's attorney of record, argued for the delay, asserting that the case should not be tried until motions in the divorce action had been heard and passed upon by Justice Mahoney.

"Judge Mahoney," said Mr. Untermyer, "hasn't any more to do with this case now than a man in the street."

Mr. Untermyer said he was willing to simplify matters by resubmitting during the present trial the testimony adduced before Justice Finch, adding to it new testimony by other witnesses. Neither Miss Arenwald nor Mr. Nugent made any comment upon this suggestion.

Mrs. Stokes and her mother, Mrs. Miller, were in the courtroom during the short argument. Mr. Stokes was not present. Max D. Steuer, his lawyer during the divorce case, conferred with Justice Wasservogel after the case had been marked ready.

BERLIN NOTE PRINTERS OUST STRIKEBREAKERS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 12.—It is promised that from tomorrow morning on, paper marks will be printed under Reichswehr auspices with strong, heavily armed detachments guarding the strike-breakers manning the presses. Fighting took place this morning in and around the Reichsbank's plant. After having read General von Seeckt's Sunday proclamation forbidding the quitting of work in the note printing plants which he called a necessary of life, and heavily penalising interference with willing workers, some 2,000 printers turned up for work at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing this morning.

The strikers' pickets quickly gave a signal calling their forces into action. They invaded the pressrooms and succeeded in throwing out most of the money printers who had returned to work before the belated police arrived. Incidentally Berlin's Police President is a Social-Democrat named Richter. Much comment was made on the fact that Commander von Seeckt's edict was not backed up by the readiness of the police.

Printers out of work and now enjoying unemployement doles will be asked, even urged, which is tantamount to an order under the present martial law, to go to work to fill the places of the strikers in the Reichsbank. Unemployment support will immediately be withdrawn from those who refuse. In this way it is hoped to mobilize enough strike-breaking printers to issue notes of 10,000,000,000,000 upward as well as contonue to print the so-called stable value currency, including the new rentamarks, of which large stocks are expected to be placed in circulation for the first time on the 16th, despite the printers' strike.

Farmers and the peasantry are increasingly unwilling to part with foodstuffs for paper-marks. To combat the resultant potential famine General von Seecket has authorized the Federal States and provinces, even municipalities, to issue their own stable value currency to pay for the harvest. This means that any German State or subsidiary, province, city or town can print its own dollar denomination currency. Berlin is already doing so.

SEEK A SOLUTION ON RUSSIANS' FUNDS

OWNERSHIP IS IN DOUBT

Statement Made That the Society Is Same Now as Before Revolution.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Twenty-fifth Jubilee Congress of the Russian Co-operative Association—the "Centrosoyous"—now sitting in Moscow has been approached by an American group consisting of a former official of the Russian branch of the National City Bank and two legal advisers of the American "Centrosoyous" representative with regard to large funds—amounting, it is stated, to upward of $3,000,000—deposited in New York to the credit of the "Centrosoyous" prior to the revolution, but not available to the association's use owing to the absence of legal proof that the present organization really is the same as in pre-revolution days.

On that Ground, it is stated, American authorities instructed the National City and other banks to hold the money until further notice. Frank Wise, formerly a high official in the British Civil Service, now in London director of the "Centrosoyous" and director of the new Anglo-Russian Company formed to handle the "Centrosoyous" quota of the Russian grain export, said to the THE NEW YORK TIMES representative today: "We do not anticipate the slightest difficulty in proving the "Centrosoyous'" ownership to these funds, once the mechanism is established for validating the Russian legal documents in the United States as provided for in England by a special clause in the Anglo-Russian trade agreement. The fact that we now are celebrating the twent-fifth anniversary of the Russian Co-operative Association shows that there is no legal—or for that matter, any other—distinction between the present association and the pre-revolutionary association.

"Moreover, some 50 per cent. of the present directorate of seventeen members were officials, or members of the association prior to the revolution. All were duly elected according to the usual system. It is true that during the period of intense nationalization, the Soviet Government informed the board that it wished to nominate certain persons—a minority I may add—to the board.

"This the board accepted, and at the next annual meeting some of them were confirmed by election, and others were dropped with the concurrence of th Soviet Government.

"Unlike the case of other Russian funds in America, in this matter there is no rival claimant. It is simply a question of the validation of our legal claim."

Mr. Wise expressed high hopes in the new mixed Grain Export Company. Representatives of a big British shipping firm, which is handling the sea transport have arrived in Moscow on their way to Southern ports, and 50,000 tons of the half to three quarter of a million tons of grain comprising this year's export program is already on seas or has reached its destination.

Mr. Wise added that Lloyd's Bank, which is financing the deal in London, was besieged by inquiries from British business men interested in the Russian market directly the news was published.

"I am confident that if our program is carried out as satisfactorily as there now appears no reason to doubt, large sums of capital will be forthcoming from London to assist the Russian economic reconstruction," Mr. Wise said. "We have had inquiries from five or six countries with a view to the formation of similar companies. Naturally America is not interested in the importation of Russian grain, but there is a fair possibility of an American and 'centrosoyous' agreement in regard to the export from Russia of other commodities and the importatin of American machinery."

KELLOGG SEES COOLIDGE.

New Ambassador to London Also Consults John W. Davis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Frank W. Kellogg, former Senator from Minnesota, who has been named by President Coolidge as Ambassador to the Court of St. James, conferred today with John W. Davis of West Virginia, former occupant of that post, and a personal friend of Mr. Kellogg.

Mr. Kellogg called at the White House twice today and talked with President Coolidge on his new duties as Ambassador-designate. He was accompanied by Secretary Hughes.

The Ambassador said after his conference with the President that the date of his sailing for London had not yet been determined.

Young Mothers Admit Stealing.

Two young women, mothers of small children and living in comfortable homes, were sentenced in Special Sessions yesterday to the House of the Good Shepherd for shoplifting. They gave their names as Mrs. May Dannals, 24 years old, of 168 Hamilton Avenue, West New Brighton, S. I., and Mrs. Dorothy Drebbers, 24 years old, of 420 Third Street, Brooklyn. They admitted the theft of goods worth $49.68 from Gimbels and were accused of thefts aggregating several hundred dollars.

BRITISH ELECTIONS ON DECEMBER 5 OR 12

Election Expected in December.

As regards the actual date of the general election, it is understood that the Prime Minister is willing to agree to whatever day the organizers of the Unionist Party may suggest; but it is certainly expected that it will take place either the first or second week in December, and the most favored day is Wednesday, Dec. 5, or Wednesday, Dec. 12. If the latter date is selected the proclamation dissolving Parliament may not be issued on Thursday, but deferred for a few days.

Today's events may cause an alteration of the program arranged for tomorrow's sitting of the House of Commons. The original intention of the Government was to submit a motion to take the whole time of the House for the remainder of the session, and it was thought that this motion would be opposed by J. Ramsay MacDonald, ex-Premier Lloyd George and others, who would demand statements from the Government on its attitude toward the problams of unemployment and free trade.

Now it is regarded as probable that Mr. Baldwin will anticipate this motion by moving the adjournment of the House to call attention to a matter of urgent public importance, namely, unemployment. He may then declare that in the opinion of the Government the problem of unemployment has become so acute that it is impossible for the Government to find a solution for it without adopting the policy of protection for the home market.

It is realized, however, that the Government must couple with its new policy a definite policy of social reform and amelioration of existing conditions affecting various sections of the community. It is expected, therefore, that the Prime Minister will at the same time announce his intention of devoting the proceeds of the protective duties toward three distinct objects: (1) The relief of agriculture; (2) the development of cotton growing within the empire, and (3) the reduction of the existing duties on tea and sugar. It is assumed this will be the broad platform upon which the coming election will be fought.

Elements to Which Government Appeals

It is felt that with these shots in its locker the Government will be in a position to appeal effectively to the agricultural interest, to the cotton industry of Lancashire and to the working classes generally by the promise of a lighter burden upon the breakfast table. As regards the prospects of the various parties at the polls, it is pointed out that, although no definite step toward Liberal reunion has yet been taken, Liberal unity will be an accomplished fact before the general election takes place. At the same time no prospect is held out that the Liberals, even if united, will be returned to power. In this connection The London Times says:

"The independent Liberals and the National Liberals may kiss again with tears; Asquith and Lloyd George may stand on the same platform and assure their hearers and each other that at heart they were never divided, but neither they nor—what is more important—their former adherents can delude themselves with the expectation that either group of Liberals or both groups together will come back from the country with a majority. The old high and dry Free Trade orthodoxy is a creed outworn. The generation which has lived through the war sees that its hidebound dogmas have ceased to be applicable to the wholly changed condition of a new world."

Dissolution Unpopular With Labor.

In a survey of party prospects at the polls The London Times says:

"If dissolution is unpopular among a section of Unionists, it is positively hateful to most of the Labor and many of the Liberal members of the House. Labor in particular regards the appeal to the country as premature, and therefore unpropitious. The fight has come much too soon for the Labor organizers, who in any event had hardly dared to hope that they would return more than 200 members out of 615 to the next Parliament. Their leaders realize fully that the Labor Party is not yet capable of forming an alternative Government. They will probably not put as many candidates into the field as at the last election. They hold at the moment many vulnerable seats, and they will probably be satisfied if they increase their present Parliamentary holding by twenty or thirty seats."

MacDonald to Attack the Government.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—Addressing a labor meeting in London tonight, J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, said he would tomorrow challenge the Government in Parliament on its unemployment policy and its European policy, which had sacrificed every ideal and left Europe more militaristic and more warlike than in 1914. He denounced the Government's Protectionist proposals as a cure for unemployment and declared that he had never known the Labor Party so enthusiastic for a straight fight.

The Premier tonight appointed a committee to advise the Government in connection with the preparation of proposed duties of manufactured goods. The committee is composed of Lord Milner, Chairman; Sir Alfermon Firth, Sir Peter Rylands, Sir William Ashley, W. A. F. Hewins and A. Pugh, the last named being an experienced labor leader.

SEPARATIST ENVOY NAMED BY FILIPINOS

Roxas, Speaker of House, Will Present Anti-Wood Plea in Washington.

QUEZON TO BAR WOOD'S MEN

He Says That They Will Not Be Allowed to Speak in the Senate.

MANILA, Nov. 12 (Associated Press).—The Philippine Independence Commission has approved the sending of a delegation to Washington for the purpose of presenting the "Filipino side" of the controversy between Gov. Gen. Leonard Wood and native legislators.

Manuel Roxas, Speaker of the Insular House of Representatives and a leader of the Coalitionist Party, has been designated as the sole member of the commission. He will be accompanied by four technical advisers. The delegation is to sail on Wednesday, via Hongkong.

Quezon to Fight Wood's Men.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

MANILA, Nov. 12.—In the course of a banquet on Saturday Manuel Quezon, leader of the anti-Wood coalition, declared that the Governor General's appointive legislators would not be permitted to speak or participate in any of the Senate's work while he was President of that body. Quezon is also manoeuvring toward having General Wood's appointees expelled from the Independence Commission.

If Quezon carries out his threats against the appointive legislators, it is said the Democrata members will strike. Meanwhile, the House is holding five minute sessions daily and the Senate is devoting its time to the policies of Quezon.

Growing opposition toward Quezon's anti-Wood campaign is indicated. Governor Olimpio Guanson of Pampanga Province on Sunday published a signed statement in The Manila Times in which he said:

"According to the theory of the Coalitionists, in order to be a patriot one must be anti-American or anti-Wood. May I ask what bad things America has done during the twenty-five years she has been on Philippine soil, that she should be treated thus? Is it because she implanted here freedom of culture, education, speech, petition and the press? Because she reorganized the Administration?"

The Governor asks forty questions of a similar nature.

Contrastingly, Dean Jorge Bocobo of the University of the Philippines Law School, a Quezon follower, addressed the American Chamber of Commerce on Sunday declaring that the deleterious influences of American contact with the Filipinos outweigh the benefits, mentioned jazz, cabarets, prize fights, extravagance and lack of religion as some of the harmful influences, concluding that the Filipinos should be allowed to "determine their own mode of life, to the end that they may fulfill their own allotted mission on earth."

GREEK KING WILL LEAVE COUNTRY FOR A TIME

Will Comply With Governing Faction's Request Pending Clearing of General Situation.

ATHENS, Nov. 12.—King George will comply with a request made by the military-republican faction that he leave Greece for a brief period pending the clearing of the general situation. It is understood that the King will be gone for two months and that he will either appoint a Regent or ask the Government to constitute a regency. Dynastic questions will be discussed by the Assembly later.

The request that the King absent himself from Greece was transmitted to him by George Roussos, former Greek Minister in Washington, who was deputed by the military-republican faction for that mission. King George replied that he would adopt the suggestion.

Two of the King's chamberlains, MM. Nicolaidis and Viachos, alleged to have been implicated in the recent mutiny, have been liberated.

PNEUMONIA REMEDY DISCOVERED BY A SWISS

Serum Is Hailed by Marchiafava, Noted Italian Doctor—Called Antimicrobum.

PARIS, Nov. 12—Professor Marchiafava, one of the most eminent of Italian physicians, has announced the discovery of a remedy for pneumonia and other lung diseases by a young Swiss, Dr. Leandro Tomakin, who has been engaged for considerable time in research work in the royal laboratories here.

Already the treatment has been administered to numerous patients in the military hospitals with what are described as very successful results.

Professor Marchiafava says that the remedy consists of a complex chemical formula, which, for want of a simpler name, has been called "antimicrobum."

FRANCE KEEPS HOLD-UP MAN

Mourney, Wanted for Shattuck Robbery, Faces Charges Abroad.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—It was stated tonight that extradition to the United States of Gabriel Mourney, wanted in connection with the Shattuck jewel robbery in New York, would not be granted by the French authorities. Instead, he will be tried in France for a crime committed here, and later will be handed over to the maritime tribunal at Cayenne for trial on charges of escaping from the penal station there.

The French hold that they have a prior right to Mourney, as he is a French citizen.

Inspector John D. Coughlin, head of the Detective Division, had arranged to send Detective Sergeants James J. McCoy and Irving O'Hara to France this morning to bring back Gabriel Mourney, leader of a band that held up the family and servants of Albert R. Shattuck, a retired broker, at 19 Washington Square North, on April 2, 1922, and obtained gems worth $50,000, when word was received from officials in Paris last evening that the man could not be turned over to them.

McCoy and O'Hara were to sail on the steamship George Washington, but it could not be learned whether this trip will be cancelled. Detective Sergeant Barnard Flood of District Attorney Banton's office will sail on the George Washington for England to bring back P. Albert Stilwell, wanted here on an indictment charging him with swindling the orders of customers while engaged in the brokerage business last July. He was arrested in London recently, where he was conducting a brokerage business, at the request of the New York police.

The APOLOGIZER!

"The Viewpoint of the Employee is the Most Neglected Asset in Industry."

STANDING at this desk is one of your best salesmen. He has traveled hundreds of miles, and missed an important conference, to be in this picture to-day.

YET—he is selling nothing. He is merely endeavoring to placate a valuable customer. Something has gone wrong with deliveries. Somebody in your plant has failed in his duty. Quality has not been maintained. Production has not lived up to promises.

Whatever the cause, your business colors are being hauled down in a customer's presence. And on the dubious success of the high-priced apologies now being offered depends your ability to hold even the business already obtained from this client.

The only safeguard for any industry in these days of keen competition is a spirit of complete co-operation in the whole body of its employees.

This protection we can promise to any open-minded business man.

Executives, everywhere, have evidenced unusual interest in our booklet, "Stopping Payroll Losses." We will be glad to send you a copy gratis, on request. Please address Dept. 6.

COOLIDGE BEGINS WORK ON MESSAGE

Will Devote Next Three Weeks to Preparing Recommendations to Congress.

DOMESTIC TOPICS TO LEAD

Farm Relief, Taxation and Transportation Expected to Receive Chief Consideration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—President Coolidge has begun actual work on his message to Congress, and upon the result of his efforts his closest friends acknowledge will depend to a considerable degree his political future.

Mr. Coolidge is known to realize as much as do his friends the importance of his first message and his first pronouncement of policies, and for that reason he expects to devote himself assiduously to work on the document during the three weeks that intervene before the convening of Congress. By agreement with his Secretary, C. Bascom Slemp, the Executive will limit his daily appointments to those of necessity and let nothing interfere with his work on the message.

The groundwork necessary to the drafting of the message already has been done. Six days a week for three months Mr. Coolidge has been conferring with officials and private citizens respecting the problems before the Government. He has talked with experts in international affairs, railroad executives and employes, farmers, labor leaders, bankers, editors, politicians and plain ordinary citizens. In nearly every case the one who conferred with the President had the same experience—he presented his views and then was closely questioned by the Chief Executive. The result is that Mr. Coolidge has absorbed a lot of information on a lot of subjects.

Subjects to Be Treated.

With this information at hand, he sat down today to write the message. The principal subjects to be treated have become fairly well known to those who have followed the course of the President's mind and the nature of his conferences. They embrace agricultural relief, taxation, transportation, merchant marine, Government expenditures, immigration, reclamation, and international affairs, including the World Court and the recently negotiated conventions with Mexico.

Three subjects seem at this time likely to receive major consideration. They are agricultural relief, taxation and transportation. With respect to assistance to the farmers, the Chief Executive is expected by some to urge legislation to promote co-operative marketing and probably to ask creation of an agency, or authorization for an existing agency, to sell American farm products abroad.

The President's tax proposals most probably will follow the outline of those announced by the Treasury Department, with such minor modifications as Republican leaders believe are advisable.

In the matter of transportation the President has received much advice relative to consolidation of railroads and may urge legislation to that end. It is reasonable to expect that he will not give any measure of approval to the proposal that Congress by its own action reduce freight rates on farm products, as the Interstate Commerce Commission has instituted an inquiry to determine whether such rates can be lowered.

Merchant Marine Proposals.

The merchant marine recommendations will be guided by the advice of members of the Shipping Board and are expected to be along the line of encouraging private enterprise in ocean transportation.

The present immigrat law expires next June and Mr. Coolidge has let it be known that he will look to Congress to maintain at least the present restrictions.

International affairs, excepting the reference to the Mexico conventions, seem to those close to the President to be destined to occupy a secondary place in the message. The greatest interest will be in the manner in which Mr. Coolidge treats the proposal by Mr. Harding to the last Senate that the United States accept membership in the Permanent Court of International Justice. So far as has been revealed, Mr. Coolidge still expects to mention that the proposal is before the Senate for action and let the matter go at that.

Numerous minor matters undoubtedly will find a place in the message. These may include recommendations as to reorganization of the executive departments, reforestation, Veterans' Bureau administration, waterway improvements, public building and disposition of Muscle Shoals.

AWARDS TO AMERICANS FOR WAR DAMAGES

Ten Claims Are Allowed Against Germany, Three to Companies and Seven Personal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Awards were announced today by the Mixed Claims Commission in ten cases of Americans seeking to recover damages from Germany as a result of the World War. The total of the awards made was in excess of $3,123,000, and the greater part of the amount was included in the three cases of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, the Western Electric Company and the Texas Company.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company won an award for its claim of $900,000, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. annually from Jan. 1, 1920, to the date of payment.

The second award was to the Western Electric Company, the amount being $285,669.48, with interest at 5 per cent. from July 1, 1919, to date of payment.

The Texas Company obtained $547,845.63, with interest at 5 per cent. from Nov. 11, 1919.

The awards in these three cases were made upon the joint recommendation of the agents in negotiations in Berlin during the last Summer. The claim in each case was based upon property losses sustained in Belgium, partly sustained in the requisitioning of property and materials and in destruction of property.

The remaining cases, seven in number, for relatively small amounts, were for loss of personal property by the claimants while they were prisoners of war in the hands of the German authorities. These awards, which also bear interest at 5 per cent. from Nov. 11, 1918, to the date of payment, are: Frank J. Myer, $102; David B. Fowler, $25; Everett A. Strachan, $431; Harold A. Jones, $93; Herbert E. Fairchilds, $44.28; Joseph Lota, $33; James R. Mussett, $37.75.

ALDERMAN QUINN ARRESTED IN JERSEY

Cape May Sheriff Charges Him and Clarence Schmeizel With Interference.

QUINN'S CHAUFFEUR FINED

After Speeding Car Is Overtaken and He Is Subdued With a Blackjack.

William F. Quinn, Republican Alderman, just re-elected, who lives at 10 West Seventy-first Street, and Clarence Schmeizel of 31 West Eleventh Street, Republican politician and member of the New York State Boxing Commission, were arrested near Cape May Court House, N. J., on Sunday afternoon, according to Sheriff George Redding, for interfering with an officer. They tried, according to the Sheriff, to prevent the arrest of Quinn's chauffeur for speeding after a chase of many miles. The chauffeur was fined $100 for speeding and released in $1,000 bail for a hearing on a further charge of assault as the result of his encounter with the Sheriff. No charge was made against two women in the car.

The swift ride and the altercation with the Sheriff followed a visit of Schmeizel and Quinn to the Sea View Golf Club, where they missed Governor Alfred E. Smith, who was on the golf links, but lunched with William L. Ward, Republican leader of Westchester County.

Denies Being Arrested.

Mr. Schmeizel, who has returned to New York, said last night that "nothing had happened" except that the chauffeur had been fined for speeding. He denied that he or Mr. Quinn had been arrested at all, and adding that "they said something about interfering with an officer," and continued:

"They didn't know just who we were, but we got in touch with Senator Edwards and Congressman Bacharach and those highway Indians back there won't bother us any more. They said they never wanted to see us again, but the case of Quinn's chauffeur is to be reopened and the Alderman expects to get back the $100 check with which he paid the chauffeur's fine."

Sheriff Redding asserted that Mr. Schmeizel was in error, that both Schmeizel and Quinn would have to return next month for a hearing on the charge of interfering with an officer and that nothing had been "fixed up."

Inquiry at Police Headquarters in Cape May brought from a town official confirmation of the statement of Sheriff Redding. The official in question said that he had learned all the circumstances of the case from Justice of the Peace John T. Byrne, before whom the men were arraigned.

The speeding Minerva car was first observed in Cape May, where a policeman tried to halt it, it was explained. He failed, the car speeding away. Then a bridge tender saw it rushing toward his bridge and tried to stop it, but the car, driven by George T. Schmidt, Quinn's chauffeur, rushed on over the bridge and sped along the south Shore Road, seven or eight miles beyond Cape May Court House. Meanwhile, Sheriff Redding, advised by telephone of the car's wild career, had set out after it with Deputy Sheriff Hoffman. But the Quinn car ignored the Sheriff's efforts to halt it and sped on.

Forced to Halt.

Finally the Quinn party came to a stretch of road that was under repair and was forced to halt by adverse traffic. Then the Sheriff caught up. He ordered the three men to consider themselves under arrest, he said, whereupon Schmidt jumped out of the car and struck him.

"I hit the chauffeur over the head with my blackjack," the Sheriff added, "and Quinn jumped in and tried to push me away. The chauffeur was cut up some; he needed a doctor."

By that time Hoffman had drawn his pistol and the three men surrendered. Quinn furnished bail for his chauffeur after paying his fine, it was said, and Quinn and Schmeizel went each other's bail.

When the three were arraigned before Justice Byrne a "courtesy card," issued by the New York Police Department and signed by Police Commissioner Enright, was shown to the Justice, but it carried no weight.

LINCOLN IDEAL LEADER, SAYS COUNT APPONYI

Showed World How to Make War and Then Peace, Declares Hungarian Statesman.

Giving his impressions of America, gained in a six weeks' tour of the country, Count Apponyi, Hungarian statesman, who sails for home today, told an audience in Town Hall last night that the spirit of magnanimity and love toward one whose nation had been an enemy in the World War had left an indelible print on his mind. Speaking with great feeling he said he would carry back an infusion of the spirit of America, so greatly needed in his country as well as all Europe.

"Never during my visit to your shores have I been made to feel that I was an ex-enemy," Count Apponyi said. "Here I found an atmosphere of reconciliation, of oblivion to antagonism, of a willingness to do away with all bitter animosities and a desire to preserve only the memory of the glory and the self-devotion of the children of any nation who had fought in good faith."

Analyzing European conditions, he referred to the great danger that Lloyd George found democracies to be facing and offered his own remedy for the situation.

He was in accord, he said, with the suggestion of a coalition of the two English-speaking democracies and France, provided they did not remain isolated.

"If they adopt a policy of isolation it would mean violation of treaties and it would mean co-operation against us, which would never do. If the power of such a coalition is to be felt, not in the way of a menace but in the way of a spiritual propaganda for good-will, it must have the support of other democracies of the world, too. With this inclusion, I see great promise opening up to my country, which has for centuries been the centre of liberal democracy. Hungary is the country that can join in assisting the world."

Developing his theme that undue exercise of material power invariably leads to self destruction, Count Apponyi cited Napoleon III. and Bismarck as examples of leaders who had overstepped the bounds. Count Apponyi contrasted these leaders with Lincoln, who he said showed the world how to make war and then how to make peace.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker introduced Count Apponyi. Short addresses bidding him farewell were made by Irving T. Bush and Mgr. John J. Dunn.

The white roses forming the Klan's name were torn away but replaced, the cross afterward being kicked over by a one-armed legionnaire, who was arrested. He was finally released and the cross was peaceably removed.

Advertising Blossoms, Like Apple Blossoms, do not always produce fruit.

Courting people to turn their eyes toward these orchards of merchandise, to disappoint them, would be more than folly.

There's nothing in this paper truer than our page of carefully scrutinized announcements.

No chances are taken in collecting the merchandise nor in what is printed about the goods.

The buyers and orderers of goods must use microscopes, lanterns and all manner of chemical and other tests to avoid traps, errors and inveiglements.

Not to SELL But to Help You to BUY

Wanamaker advertising is written from the buyer's or consumer's point of view—from your point of view.

Advertising that attempts to sell is argumentative or combative. It forces its way before your eyes, into your mind. It tries to COMPEL you to buy.

Wanamaker advertising never forces itself upon you. It never strives to sell. It seeks to help you to buy. It is informative, not argumentative. It is cooperative, not combative.

There is no big stick in Wanamaker advertising. It may use big type or big space occasionally but only when the importance of the news warrants it.

Now, most other advertising proceeds on the opposite principles. Dominate the field—Use pages or double pages, or even four, six—anything to dominate the newspaper or magazine or city—Headlines in big bold type—In black ink until the news is submerged—Smash the message over to the public—Knock them cold—Force them to buy—of me, of me. And the fight is on, advertisers smashing their way in relentless competition, one with another, with black type, screeching headlines, big pictures, until the people begin to exclaim in disgust: "Oh, it is only advertising. Why pay any attention to it?"

But the pity is the people are saying more—to themselves. Are they not even now saying something like this:

"Advertising is forcing itself upon us without manners or taste or even morals. It mars our newspapers. It scars our landscape. It hangs its signs on our beautiful buildings. It flashes and blinks at us at night until we can hardly see where we are going. It howls and bawls at us by day, seeking to sell, sell, sell—as if we want to be sold, which we often are, worse luck!"

What will be the reckoning? Will newspapers have to curtail their advertising space or raise their rates to prohibitive figures, in order to save their news and their readers? Will laws have to step in and limit signs and displays? What is the solution of this wild effort to sell?

The solution is, we believe: Make all advertising a real service to the public, not by attempting to sell, but by earnestly helping people to buy.

Make advertising news! Helpful news of merchandise.

Wanamaker advertising is as newsy as the news section of a newspaper. Its reports are as vital to the woman who buys for the family as stock reports are to the man who invests.

Wanamaker advertising is, first and last—SERVICE; human service.

Wanamaker advertising is not type, not pictures, not brag, not insistence, not domination. It cares not so much about typography and artistic make-up except to make announcements easily read, pleasing to the eye, and easy to understand. It cares very greatly about clarity of expression, accuracy of statements, believability of the news—the helpfulness it can give the people in buying—the SERVICE it can render as a true expression of the store and the merchandise.

And so we have chosen to make the Wanamaker advertising exhibit at the Advertising Exposition merely the section of a Little Home, with people at work, offering a real service to the public.

It is "The Little Home That Budget Built" transferred bodily, as far as space would permit, from the Store to the Exposition. More than a hundred thousand people have visited this Little Home here in the Store. Other hundreds of thousands will see it at the Advertising Exposition. If it can show to the public generally the real heart of Wanamaker advertising—the living heart of all worth-while life, which is SERVICE—it will have served its purpose.

WARNS OF CRISIS IN MISSIONS FIELD

Dr. Speers Tells Presbyterians Free Giving Only Can Prevent Cut in Workers' Pay.

HOSPITALS ALSO IN DANGER

Denies Emergency Is Due to Lack of Confidence in Board's Orthodoxy.

A financial crisis is facing the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, and unless many thousands of dollars are given this year the stipends of missionaries will have to be reduced, and hospitals and schools in many parts of the non-Christian world will have to be closed, Dr. Robert E. Speer, a secretary of the board, told the Presbytery of New York at a meeting yesterday in the Chinese Presbyterian Church, 225 East Thirty-seventh Street. The Rev. Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, President of the board, presided.

Dr. Speer denied the contention of fundamentalists that "lack of confidence" in the orthodoxy of members of the board, salaried officials and missionaries had caused any marked slacking up of gifts.

"We began this fiscal year with a debt of about $657,000," said Dr. Speer. "If the receipts this year are not any greater than they were last year we will close this year with a debt of $1,200,000. The gifts so far this year do not indicate any lack of confidence in the board. So far they are $35,000 in excess of what had been donated to the board at this time a year ago."

Dr. Speer said the trouble was not due to a lack of generosity among Presbyterians at home so much as to the increased cost of administering the work since the war.

"It costs five times as much to get a missionary to New York from Tabriz, Persia, today, as it did five years ago, and it costs just seven times as much as it did for me to go there twenty-five years ago," Dr. Speer said. "Some one has said 'Why don't you retrench?' Well, it would cost more to bring the missionaries home than to keep them on the field.

"We have 50,000 men in the Presbyterian Church who could give $1,000 apiece, and this would clear up the situation. I look for a great outburst of loyalty before this year is done.

"It will not be possible for the board to carry a debt of $1,200,000. If we have such a debt it will be necessary for us to curtail our work, and to curtail it savagely. It may be necessary to cut down the salaries of our missionaries, and many of them are writing home making that suggestion themselves. It will be necessary to close hospitals and schools all over the land. It seems to me like drawing a knife through our foreign missionary operations which have been three generations in the building. All that is needed, it seems to me, is to lay this matter before the great life of the Church."

DEBATE ON ARBITRATION.

John O'Brien Presents Lawyers' View on Settlement of Court.

"Arbitration for Business Men" was the subject of a debate before the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel last evening. Moses H. Grossman, Vice President of the Arbitration Society of America, presented the case for arbitration, and John E. O'Brien of the New York County Lawyers Association and the State Bar Association opposed him. Robert H. Montgomery, President of the Society of Accountants, presided.

After telling of the work of the Court of Arbitration established a year and a half ago, Mr. Grossman pointed out that with delays in the courts, justice was not always done. Mr. O'Brien said he was not opposed to arbitration, but deplored thepractice of putting an arbitration clause in contracts. "The time when a man should be asked to determine whether he is willing to submit to arbitration is after the controversy has arisen," he said. As to the speed of arbitration he expressed the opinion that doubtless decisions may be rendered quickly, particularly if there be slight regard for order and small sense of responsibility. These speedy decisions, however, he said, are a fruitful cause of litigation.

CARTER IS BACK IN LUXOR.

He Is Expected to Resume Work Today on Tut-ankh-Amen's Tomb.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 12.—According to a member of Howard Carter's expedition, work on Tut-ankh-Amen's tomb will be resumed tomorrow. Mr. Carter returned to Luxor from Cairo this morning after protracted negotiations with the Egyptian Government concerning the press rights and whether the public should be allowed to enter the tomb this year.

Mr. Carter last year found these public visitors both embarrassing and the cause of delay, but the Egyptian Government has been anxious to placate visitors, particularly Americans, who come to Egypt in the hope of visiting the tomb only to find they are forbidden to stray from the public roadway outside the tomb.

The result of the negotiations over the press rights is not disclosed. The principal point in issue was whether the Government would issue a communiqué daily about the work in the tomb.

Julian Irizar to Take Charge of Naval Mission in This Country.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Buenos Aires on the Munson Line steamship Western World was Rear Admiral Julian Irizar of the Argentine Navy, who came to take over the post of Chief of the Argentine Naval Mission in the United States, relieving Captain Urquiza. His headquarters will be in New York.

The Admiral said that the Argentine battleships Rivadavia and Moreno, which were constructed in this country, will be reconditioned and reconstructed into oil burners. He said the Argentina did not contemplate building any more warships, at least in the immediate future. He was met at Quarantine by Ricardo Vago, Argentine Naval Attaché, and Captain John D. Wainright, U. S. N., Assistant Commandant of the Third Naval District.

SEARCH FOR YOUTH FATAL.

Man of 85 Is Found Dead After Using Illegal Preparation.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Stephen Flack, 85 years old, of Norwood, Ohio, met death in his search for renewed youth, it is believed. He was found unconscious on the street on Oct. 21, and died yesterday.

Coroner D. C. Handley said that an empty bottle found in his possession had contained a proprietary medicine which the Government barred from the mail, because of its disastrous effect upon the human system. It was advertised to restore youth to the aged.

FORBES TO TESTIFY TODAY ON CHARGES

Senate Investigators Clear Decks to Hear Ex-Director of Veterans' Bureau.

POLITICS IN THE HOSPITALS

Dr. Rogers Says Influence Kept Contract Institutions That Were Not Needed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Senate investigating committee cleared the decks today for the appearance before it tomorrow of Charles R. Forbes, former Director of the Veterans' Bureau, who has been the centre of fire in the inquiry.

Colonel Forbes will take the stand the first thing in the morning. The expectation is that his direct and cross examinations will take upward of two days. At the outset he will ask permission to read a prepared statement in reply to the charges which have been made against him. The committee also expects to recall for cross-examination Elias H. Mortimer of Philadelphia, whose charges against Colonel Forbes proved one of the sensations of the hearing.

Inquiry by the committee today was directed largely to the operations of the Medical Division of the bureau. Dr. L. S. Rogers, Director of that division, was the witness, and he stated that there had been great abuses in the use of contract hospitals, not only with respect to charges made to the Government, but also in the matter of the care of the veterans and the food served to them.

Politicians Kept Hospitals.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, developed that in some instances political influence has been used to keep contract hospitals in operation after examination by bureau officials has shown them to be unsatisfactory. The Senator pointed to the case of such a hospital in New England, which was not closed until two years after it had been found to be unfit.

Dr. Rogers declared there had been abuse in the matter of charges for the care of the veterans, the care given them and the food furnished. He also said contract hospitals are used when beds in Government hospitals are available.

"Wasn't this practice followed with a desire to have the owners of the contract hospitals profit?" General John F. O'Ryan, general counsel for the committee, asked.

"I don't know about the motive," replied Dr. Rogers, "but in many cases there is the desire to please the veterans."

Asked what had become of the officer in charge of the hospital in New England where Director Hines had found that 80 per cent. of the patients were outside the hospital grounds, Dr. Rogers said he "has been transferred to another of our hospitals."

"That's the favorite remedy," remarked General O'Ryan.

Conceding that discipline in the hospitals should be tightened, Dr. Rogers could not recall that any medical officer of the bureau had been punished for failure to maintain discipline.

Senator Reed, Republican, of Pennsylvania, Chairman of the committee, interjected that the records show that on Oct. 11 there were 5,956 patients in contract hospitals, whereas the total of vacant beds in Government hospitals was 5,212. Only in the case of neuropsychiatric patients was the total of beds available in Government hospitals less than the number of patients in contract hospitals.

Spiritualist Marriages in Hospital.

General O'Ryan asked Dr. Rogers if he knew what influence had kept the Thornycroft contract hospital at San Francisco in operation. Dr. Rogers was unable to say.

"Did you ever know from the records that the woman who ran that hospital received $70,000 a year for the care of forty men?" General O'Ryan asked.

"I did not," was the reply.

"Did you know that there were conducted at this hospital spiritualistic marriages with the souls of men who had died?" General O'Ryan pursued.

Dr. Rogers laughingly said that he did not.

Dr. Rogers could give little information as to alleged abuses in the matter of the appointment of guardians for mentally incompetent veterans, but Senator Reed said that approximately $8,500,000 is paid out annually to such guardians without proper safeguards as to its disposition.

Dr. Rogers agreed with General O'Ryan that in most cases the guardians bear no blood relationship to the veterans, and that frequently they reside at places remote from the institutions where the men are undergoing treatment.

"They know little or nothing about conditions of patients," said General O'Ryan, "and their only concern is to acquire monthly the allowance and, in one form or another, dispose of it in ways not to the best interest of the veteran."

Dr. Rogers said he could not answer as to that.

Questioned further by General O'Ryan, Dr. Rogers said it had not come to his attention that one Washington lawyer had made $100,000 out of guardianship cases.

Explains Transfer of Officer.

The witness could not recall that he had placed any limitations upon employes of his division in furnishing information to counsel for the committee. He said that he had given orders on April 3, 1923, that information be furnished to the committee. Later he issued a second order, under instructions of Director Hines, he added, under which errors in rating were first to be called to the attention of the rating section for immediate correction, and then to be referred to committee counsel.

Referring to the transfer of Dr. W. E. Clark from the central office to the Fourth District, General O'Ryan wanted to know if this transfer had not resulted from the activities of Dr. Clark in hunting information about cases for the committee.

"He was transferred for insubordination and insolence," Dr. Rogers replied, adding that the transfer order was issued by General Hines. The witness said he had made some representations to the Director about Dr. Clark's activities in searching out cases for the committee and neglecting his regular work.

It was disclosed that until a few months ago, clerks in the accounting office had passed upon bills of civil physicians for service in the examination of former service men. After this matter had come to the attention of General O'Ryan, two medical officers were assigned for this work. Since then Director Hines has appointed a committee to make a further check on these bills, which totaled several millions of dollars a year.

Dr. Rogers said that since these additional checks had been made the amount of the bills paid has been materially reduced.

Recalled at his own request, Lieut. Commander Charles R. O'Leary, U. S. N., former Director of the Division of Supply of the Veterans' Bureau, contradicted the testimony of Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer that it was Dr. Sawyer who stopped the shipments of property from the supply depot at Perryville, Md.

Says Forbes Ordered Sale Stopped.

Commander O'Leary said that when Dr. Sawyer arrived at Perryville he (O'Leary) had in his hand a telegram instructing him to stop the shipments, and that he was on the way to see the officer in charge to give the necessary instructions.

"Who signed that telegram?" asked Senator Reed, of counsel for Colonel Forbes.

"Charles R. Forbes," was the reply.

Commander O'Leary also took issue with Colonel Henry C. Smither of the Budget Bureau, who charged that the list of supplies to be sold at Perryville had been "padded" after the list had been cleared through the Budget Bureau as containing no material desired by other departments.

JERSEY TOWN KILLS HIGH DOG LICENSE

Mayor of Butler Wanted to Tax Them $15 and $30, According to Sex.

SAYS HE COULDN'T SLEEP

Conscience Kept Him Awake, Says Woman at Meeting Which Keeps Present Low Fees.

The dog license fee in Butler, N. J., will continue to be $1 for a male and $2 for a female. Mayor John A. Farrel's ordinance making it fifteen times the amounts mentioned died last night at a Council meeting in the borough hall, at which the six Councilmen found themselves hedged about with indignant citizens who packed all space. The Mayor, besides being a box manufacturer and something of a humorist, was a good sport about his pet measure—so much so that he offered to pay the expenses of a special election to decide what the people wanted. But the people turned him down and decided them and there.

The ordinance, introduced by the Mayor, had passed its first reading and was up for final action. Usually council meetings are tame affairs, slimly attended. Last night huntsmen had dashed from belated suppers without even stopping to change their clothes. And women who owned pet dogs vied with them for standing room in the chamber.

Said the Mayor, speaking for his $15 and $30 ordinance:

"There are too many bum tears shed on these sheep killing brutes. They cry over them more than they do over babies. There's too much slobbering over mutts; it's worse than Bob Ingersoll's eulogy for whisky. Why they run around and bark and howl so that I can't sleep at night."

"It's your conscience that keeps you awake," she shouted.

The line got over big. The audience howled with delight; it rocked with laughter. The Mayor sat down.

Then arose Joseph McLane, ex-Mayor and ex-Councilman who spoke of the faults of dog rearing, remarking that children, too, misbehaved if they were not brought up properly. Then he filed petitions bearing 500 names of those who protested against the ordinance.

Some one suggested letting the Health Board deal with nuisance cases. The Mayor said it wouldn't. Edward Bodmer, a member, rose and said it would. The Mayor explained apologetically that he had not known Mr. Bodmer was there.

Then the Mayor moved the passage of the ordinance, and proposed a special election to say whether it should be enforced. Some one mentioned the expense, and the Mayor said he would bear every cent of it.

There was a painful pause while the Mayor looked at the Councilmen who had been unanimous at the first reading. No one seconded his motion. So the thing died right there, the townspeople cheered and went tumbling out of the packed room into the frosty air, where they listened to the cheerful chorus of barking dogs.

Nightmare Victim Kills Himself.

WILL CONTEST REOPENED.

Yonkers Inventor Cut Off Relatives in Favor of Two Women.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The second trial of the contest over the will of the late Eugene Tymeson, inventor, of Yonkers, who left $226,000 to two women friends and cut off two sisters and eleven nephews and nieces, was begun today before Surrogate George A. Slater and a jury. Mr. Tymeson was 73 years old when he died on May 20, 1920. Since his death the estate has increased to $300,000.

Following a trial lasting seven days in March, 1921, Surrogate Slater took the case away from a jury and upheld the will. An appeal was taken to the Appellate Division, which reversed the Surrogate. The contestants are the two sisters and nieces and nephews. They are represented by Thomas J. O'Neill. The two beneficiaries named in the will are Mrs. Lillie Miller Hanratty and Miss Hattie Fredericks of Yonkers. They are being represented by former District Attorney Lee Parson Davis and Clarence Alexander of Yonkers.

Mr. O'Neill in his opening address cited many eccentricities of Mr. Tymeson, one being that he wore the same hat and overcoat for twenty years. He contended the two women friends had influenced Tymeson against his relatives. It was also alleged that Tymeson went about the streets picking up cigarette bezes and that he always carried an umbrella, rain or shine.

NEW YORK LEADER, LABOR DAILY, QUITS

HOPE TO RESUME LATER

Report That Newspaper Project Ate Up $100,000 in a Month Is Denied.

The New York Leader, which as a labor newspaper succeeded The New York Call, formerly the Socialist organ, suspended publication yesterday. The suspension was the result of the decision of a committee consisting of S. John Block, President of the Labor Press Association; Morris Hillquit, Socialist leader, and Osip Wolinsky, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

At the headquarters of the Labor Press Association it was said it was expected that the suspension was only temporary and that arrangements for the publication of a labor newspaper on somewhat different lines would be made later.

In announcing its suspension, The Leader said:

"When The Call, now The Leader, passed into the hands of its present owners it was their high hope that with the resources at their command it would be possible to create and sustain a labor newspaper. Events have shown that it was possible to create a paper with a wide and increasing appeal to labor and to the community. But they have also proved that the costs of sustaining that paper and the length of time necessary to bring it in measure the distance of self-support exceeded the hopes and the immediate capacity of the international unions.

"The cost has been set in newspaper stories at $100,000 for a month. This is grossly incorrect. So also is the statement that The Leader gained only 1,000 circulation over the circulation of The Call and employed an editorial staff of forty as against fifteen. It regularly employed twenty-seven on news, editorial, special features, magazine section and departments, including four on part time. This, of course, does not include a small allowance for space writers. It more than doubled the circulation of The Call—over 20,000, as against 10,000 when the new owners took over The Call.

"One hundred thousand dollars was the amount definitely subscribed to launch the present venture. It not only carried The Leader, but carried The Call from Aug. 13 until Oct. 1. This included the costly period of the pressmen's strike and provided for certain capital payments and loans to the printing company. For actual operations for a period of three months we had less than $75,000. In view of the financial situation, it seemed in every way right to suspend The Leader while it is solvent rather than to try to continue at financial hazard a paper of greatly reduced size.

"It is the hope of those who have the cause of labor journalism definitely at heart that the period of suspension will not be long. At a meeting held yesterday a committee was appointed to work on plans and possibilities of resumption within the next few months."

HURT IN FALL FROM AUTO.

Girl Who Accepted Lift From a Stranger Is in Serious Condition.

Miss Jeanette Carroll of 53 Caroline Avenue, Yonkers, was taken in a serious condition to St. Joseph's Hospital, Yonkers, before dawn yesterday after she had jumped or had been thrown from an automobile in which she was riding with a stranger near her home. She told the police that she was waiting for a trolley car when a young man, whom she thought she recognized, came along in an automobile and volunteered to take her to her home.

It was not until she got into the automobile and the car was traveling at a fast pace, she said, that she realized the driver was a stranger. When the man started to take a direction opposite to her home, she continued, she arose and began to scream, but was unable to say whether she fell out of the automobile or was pushed out by the driver.

She lay unconscious on the road for several hours before she was discovered by John De Roberts of 38 Sunnyside Drive, Yonkers. Coroner Edward Fitzgerald took a statement from the young women and notified her sister, Mrs. Anton Christianson, of 430 Amsterdam Avenue, this city.

GIRL'S MEMORY FAILS.

Collapses in Street After Asking Traffic Officer to Help Her.

A girl in her teens, with bobbed auburn hair, walked tensely through a maze of traffic at the busiest corner in Bloomfield Centre, N. J., yesterday, and, with a handkerchief over her face, cried to Traffic Officer Wilhelm, "Help me," and collapsed in the street.

The girl was revived at the home of County Physician W. J. Runyan, but she could not tell her name nor where she came. Frequently she spoke of "the football game." A small bump and an abrasion were found on the back of her head. Dr. Runyan believed she was suffering from amnesia. She was later taken to Mountainside Hospital at Glen Ridge, N. J.

STUDY MOVING PLATFORM.

Transit Commissioner to See Tests in Jersey City Today.

Chairman George McAneny and Commissioner LeRoy T. Harkness of the Transit Commission, will go to Jersey City today to inspect a model of a moving platform which has been set up in a lot near Boyle's Tihrty Acres. A moving platform has been suggested as a substitute for the present subways shuttle service under Forty-second Street.

The platform consists of three moving sidewalks traveling parallel to each other at varying speeds, one at three miles an hour, the second at six miles an hour and the third at nine miles an hour. The model, which is of full size, runs in a circle of about 600 feet circumference.

THIRST BETRAYED ESCAPED PRISONER

THREE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

Broke Lock on Cabin Door, Then Slipped Down Hatch on Ship Bringing Him Here.

The mystery of Albert Rosenberg, the dapper young seaman who escaped from a stateroom on the steamship Manchuria at noon Thursday in mid-ocean while he was being brought to New York from Hamburg to face charges of participating in mail robberies on the Minnekahda last April, was solved early yesterday morning in the sailors' washroom of the Manchuria at her pier in the North River, as told in late editions of THE TIMES. Rosenberg, for whom Adrian Zeeder, master of the Manchuria, and his entire crew, as well as twenty-five post office inspectors, had been seeking in every nook of the ship, was discovered in the lavatory of the firemen's forecastle not long after midnight by Post Office Inspectors Brown, Holliday and Butler.

The inspectors had scoured the ship for the escaped prisoner since the departure of the first group of inspectors who had met the Manchuria on its arrival. They had searched all through the cabin and third class portions of the ship and were pausing near the gangplank for a short rest when they were hailed by a quartermaster on watch.

The three inspectors ran toward the forecastle and up a passageway. As they turned into the washroom they saw something white. Pushing inside, they found Rosenberg taking a long drink from a water tap, clad only in his underwear. Inspector Butler seized him.

"Where have you been hiding?" "How did you keep out of sight?" came a chorus of questions as inspectors and sailors crowded around.

Rosenberg took his capture humorously and only laughed at the questions. "How about something to eat?" he asked, and the inspectors led him up toward the first class galley, where the cook made up a substantial meal. While he was eating Rosenberg told how he had escaped from his locked stateroom while his captor, Inspector Smith, who had been sent over to Germany to get him, was eating lunch. He said that he had broken the lock on the stateroom door and slipped unnoticed toward the bow. While the crew was at its noon mess, he said, he slipped a cover off hatch 3, and pulling it back in place dropped down to the cargo beneath. For more than three days he remained in the darkness without food or water. He could not find his way back to the hold by which he had entered and used up his only box of matches in the attempt. At last, on Sunday night, he went on, he stumbled on his exit, and half clothed because of the heat in the hold, made his way toward the forecastle to find a drink. While he was passing, a quartermaster saw him and spread the alarm which resulted in his capture.

After he had eaten and drunk as much as he could, Rosenberg was taken to the West Thirtieth Street Police Station by Inspectors Butler, Holliday and Brown, where he was locked up, charged with having in his possession articles stolen from the United States mail. He is accused of having assisted in the theft of $20,000 worth of bonds from the mail while working as a master at arms on the Minnekahda. He admits having had the stolen articles in his possession, but says he found them on the ship.

Rosenberg, a native of Riga, who has followed the sea for nearly ten years, said he had made much money bootlegging while on a ship running in and out of Philadelphia.

Rosenberg probably will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock this morning.

BURNS EX-DETECTIVE NOW SUES THE AGENCY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 12.—The secret history of the Robertson-Culberson case involving the suit of Alexander R. Robertson, an Englishman, for the hand of the daughter of ex-Senator Charles A. Culberson of Texas and the alleged kidnapping of Robertson, which is in possession of the William J. Burns Detective Agency, was ruled out today by Chief Justice McCoy in Circuit Court in the $50,000 slander and false arrest action filed by John F. Ellis, former Burns operative, against the Burns agency and D. G. Anderson, local Burns manager.

Ellis served with the Burns agency and was one of their operatives on the Robertson-Culberson case. His service ended on March 23 last with his alleged arrest by Anderson at the Union Station here and his subsequent alleged grilling by Anderson at the Burns headquarters in this city.

The suit for slander and false arrest is based on the alleged unlawful detention of Ellis at the Union Station and at the Burns headquarters here and is also based on accusations said to have been made by Anderson, that Ellis had "double-crossed" his employers and would be "the only one to go to jail in the Culberson case", together with other alleged slanderous remarks said to have been made by Anderson.

The supposed arrest occurred after the indictment of Ellis in Newark, N. J., on a charge of kidnapping Robertson. He was acquitted, but from statements made by counsel for the Burns agency to the court, it appears that Ellis was under the impression that he was being made the "goat".

Ellis admitted on cross-examination that, after his arrival at Anderson's private offices, that he stated if he went to jail there would be others go, too, as he possessed "information" sufficient for that purpose.

Ellis also stated that Anderson accused him of attempting to blackmail the secretary of Senator Culberson.

Anderson, from his seat, denied that he had accused Ellis of attempted blackmail, but stated that he reprimanded Ellis for alleged borrowing of money from Senator Culberson's secretary on the strength of what he (Ellis) knew about the case.

The court refused to permit Ellis to explain the alleged motley transactions with the secretary. Chief Justice McCoy reminded counsel for the Burns agency several times that no plea of justification had been filed, only a plain denial of the charge of false arrest and slander.

The court also ruled out all alleged facts relative to the trial and supposed acquittal of Ellis at Newark and directed counsel for both sides to confine their case to the alleged false arrest and slander.

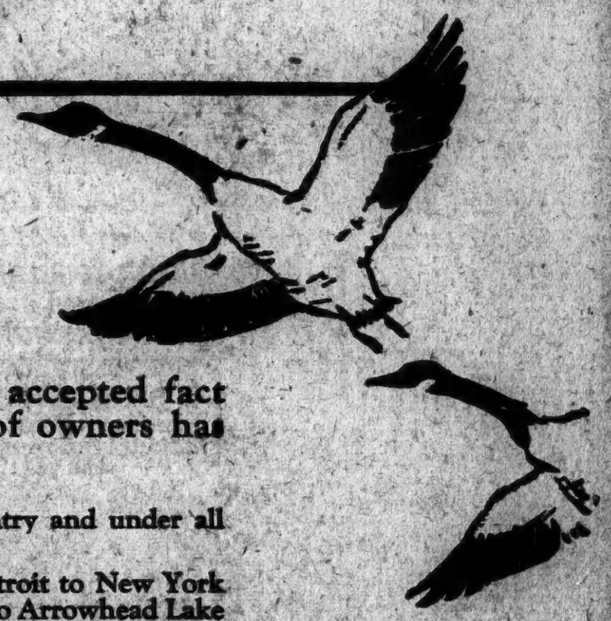
WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE

Motor Cars



THE FINAL proof of supremacy in a motor car is performance—

Wills Sainte Claire leadership among the fine cars of America is an accepted fact because Wills Sainte Claire performance in the hands of thousands of owners has established a new standard of motoring comfort and dependability.

Radically different in design and construction—Exclusive in its essential features—Yet proven and supreme in the actual test of every day operation.

From Detroit to New York in a single day—From New York to Boston and return in eleven hours—From Toledo, Ohio to Des Moines, Iowa in a day with a brand new Sedan just out of the factory—

From San Bernardino, California, up the steep rough mountain grades, around innumerable hairpin curves, along the edge of dizzy precipices to Arrowhead Lake and return seven times—a total distance of three hundred and eight miles in thirteen hours and twenty seven minutes.

These are not stunt performances, but merely examples of the normal every day service that this proven car is giving to its owners in every part of the country and under all sorts of operating conditions.

You may never want to drive from Detroit to New York in a day—or to climb the dizzy heights to Arrowhead Lake—You may never care to burn up the highway at 70 miles an hour or to take a sharp curve at top speed—

But it is a wonderfully satisfying thing to know that your Wills Sainte Claire will give to you this super-performance if called upon in an emergency—

The power, the speed, the eager acceleration, the sure-footedness of the Wills Sainte Claire are proven facts—

And with them comes to you a new luxury of riding comfort, a new sense of security and ease of handling, that gradually grows into a feeling of joyous, carefree satisfaction and contentment as the months and years go by.

To appreciate Wills Sainte Claire performance you must see and drive the car for yourself—This we cordially invite you to do, at your convenience.

COURT EXONERATES COUNSEL FOR WARD

FIRM PUBLISHED MINUTES

Deputy Attorney General Says Bar Associations Will Continue Inquiry Into Facts.

WHITE PLAINS, Nov. 12.—Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger today ordered expunged from the records Grand Jury of Westchester County Grand Jury of Westchester County which criticised the conduct of Rabenold & Scribner, attorneys, of 61 Broadway, New York, in making public the minutes of that body in the proceedings that led to the indictment of their client, Walter S. Ward, for murder in the first degree. Ward was accused of murder in the shooting on May 16, 1922, of Clarence M. Peeters of Haverhill, Mass. He was acquitted.

Justice Seeger declared counsel for the defense acted with propriety. The Court sharply rebuked the Attorney General for giving to the press statements baring testimony before the Extraordinary Grand Jury. Justice Seeger took with the defendant's lawyers in their contention that there was nothing unethical in their action in giving the minutes to reporters after Justice Seeger had granted the defense permission to inspect the minutes and these minutes had been made the basis of a motion for dismissal of the indictment, an open court proceeding automatically making the Grand Jury records public.

The presentment, handed in on Oct. 4, after Ward's acquittal, asserted that the Grand Jurors "feel there was serious impropriety and perhaps illegality in the action of Rabenold & Scribner in giving these minutes to the press." The presentment requested Justice Seeger "to inquire whether such publication was not an unwarranted extension of the intent of his order for inspection of the minutes, and the Grand Jurors respectfully request the bar associations of Westchester and New York Counties to inquire whether such action by Rabenold & Scribner was in accordance with the ethics of the legal profession and whether the matter should be brought to the attention of the Appellate Division for disciplinary measures."

Cite Case of Haverhill Witnesses.

The presentment also called the attention of the bar associations to admissions in court by Samuel Miller of the firm with regard to affidavits obtained by the attorneys from "Queenie" Jones and members of her family of Haverhill, Mass., and the alleged help given by the defense in their departure for England.

After observing that Ward was in jail when the minutes were made public by the defense, Justice Seeger said, addressing Mr. Chambers:

"Every morning during the Grand Jury hearings the papers published what the Attorney General was going to do before the Grand Jury that day and at night they published everything that was supposed to have been done before the Grand Jury during that day. Under these circumstances what harm could there be if these people in defense of their client gave a copy of the minutes of the Grand Jury to the newspapers for publication, so that they could get it accurate?

"Why did you not rebuke some of these papers and say they had no authority from you to publish what they were saying? They published one morning that Mrs. Beryl Ward was temporarily giving up her butterfly life at Atlantic City to attend the trial of her husband."

"The Attorney General issued a denial and we had the matter up before the Grand Jury," said Mr. Chambers. "That very matter; the published matters were not correct."

"Why did you not address a communication to the newspaper that was using your name every day, telling them that they must stop publishing what you were going to do?" persisted Justice Seeger.

"I will confess I was pretty busy about other matters those days," explained Mr. Chambers. "We were going to take it up."

"In view of that situation, these attorneys for the defendant saw fit to publish the facts of the testimony that was introduced before the Grand Jury, instead of a false statement of it," resumed the Court. "So far as the Bar Association is concerned, I cannot hurry that body, but it should act in an expeditious manner. So far as I have any authority, I will dismiss these charges and expunge the presentment from the court records."

Mr. Chambers commented as follows on Justice Seeger's action:

"On the continuation of the motion made by Rabenold & Scribner to have expunged from the record the presentment from the Grand Jury against them for giving out the Grand Jury minutes to the press, and against Samuel Miller, of the same firm, for spiriting witnesses out of the State's jurisdiction, Justice Seeger, who heard the motion, decided after hearing a representative of the Westchester Bar Association and a written communication from the New York City Bar Association, he was without jurisdiction to hear the charges and would permit the bar associations to go ahead with their investigation, which is under way, but would expunge from the record the presentment of the Grand Jury, for the reason that under the circumstances the bar associations were the ones to try out the issue."

REPORTS THEFT; ARRESTED.

Truck Driver Held on Old Charge as He Tells of Robbery.

After reporting to the detectives of the West Thirtieth Street Station that he had been robbed at the point of a gun by two men of a truck load of silk valued at $35,000 which he was driving, Edward McCormack of 641 Water Street, was arrested on the charge of taking part in a former theft. McCormack was arrested on a bench warrant which charged him and two other men with the theft of merchandise from the Pennsylvania Railroad piers by the use of fraudulent orders.

According to the police, McCormack was employed by the firm of Weld & Linde of 44 Whitehall Street. Picking up eleven bales of silk at Pier 74 yesterday, McCormack started toward his destination on lower Madison Avenue. While driving through West Twenty-seventh Street a touring car containing two men drew alongside. Commanded to halt at the point of a gun, McCormack drew the truck to the curb. Covered by one of the bandits, he was forced into the thieves' car which held three armed men. McCormack said he was thrown out of the car at 173d Street and Amsterdam Avenue.

Call Conference of Papermakers.

President Henry W. Stokes of the American Paper and Pulp Association has called a conference for Nov. 15 of all members of the association who are affected by the heavy importations of foreign paper at prices based on lower foreign labor costs. The increasing importation of foreign paper, particularly wrapping, is having a serious effect upon the domestic mills, the association believes, and the conference will be the first step toward a general movement on the part of the paper industry to meet this situation.

COLOR
Photographic Prints
on paper—now made practical with the new RAYLO

Beautiful and realistic photographic prints on paper in natural colors — as many duplicates as desired — from a single plate—that's what the Raylo Camera and Process of Color Photography make possible.

With the Raylo anyone can photograph in the glowing, living colors of the originals—persons, landscapes, dwellings, flowers, fruits, paintings and other subjects.

The Raylo Camera and Raylo Color Prints are on exhibition every day this week from 10 to 5 at WILLOUGHBY'S 110 West 32nd St., opp. Gimbels.

Pall Mall Gazette:
"By a process called the Raylo, direct colour photography has at last been made possible."

London Evening News:
"The result is surprising. The whole thing is done, in fact, as simply as ordinary snapshot work."

Manchester Guardian:
"The most striking colour photographs are the prints by the new Deeks (Raylo) colour process, which are well in advance of anything previously seen in this country."

British Journal of Photography:
"The exhibit of chief interest among the colour prints is that of specimens of the Raylo Process. From first to last it contrives to remove the various sources of error in the making of the negatives and their printing."

Photographic Journal:
"The work (of the Raylo) shown is of very high order, and, as a record of the photographic rendering of flesh-colour tones, something, as yet, by itself."

Users who have purchased the Raylo have expressed complete satisfaction with the results obtained with it.

Amateurs are especially enthusiastic and professional and commercial photographers are finding the Raylo a factor in increasing their business. Manufacturers and merchants also find it useful in making color prints of their products for salesmen to show instead of samples. The Raylo makes faithful color photographs of paintings which makes it especially useful to artists and art dealers.

ADVERTISING SHOW OPENED BY COOLIDGE

MORE THAN 100 EXHIBITS

The first Advertising Exposition ever held in the United States was opened formally at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock by President Coolidge. The exposition, at which more than 100 exhibitors have spared neither pains nor money to show how far-reaching is advertising in all its phases, was set in motion when the President, at the White House, turned a golden key which operated the electric signal at the armory.

A comprehensive picture of advertising in every phase is shown by exhibits representing the advertiser, the advertising medium, and the consumer for whom advertising is intended as a guide. Manufacturers, merchants, advertising agencies, daily newspapers, periodicals and many other lines of business have vied in the attempt to make the strongest appeal by their exhibits.

The United States Shipping Board, with a reproduction de luxe of a dining saloon on one of its transatlantic steamships, has a striking exhibit. Roast turkey and chicken, sugar-cured hams studded with cloves, fruits, nuts, sweets and a hundred other delicacies are loaded on a long, snow-white table, at which visitors gazed with a longing eye yesterday.

Crowd Stands at Attention.

As soon as the signal was given by President Coolidge, a band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," while the crowd in the armory stood at attention. H. C. Charles, President of the Advertising Club, under whose sponsorship the show is being held, declared the First Advertising Exposition open and, among other things, said:

"Our country's Chief Executive has just honored the advertising profession. It is no small distinction, no matter how well merited it might be, to have the President of the United States lay aside his work long enough to send us a message of co-operation and encouragement. Let it be recorded that those responsible for this first advertising exposition are deeply mindful of the honor and distinction conferred upon us by President Coolidge, and that we extend to him our thanks and grateful appreciation. I now declare the First Advertising Exposition in this country formally opened."

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company and Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Advertising Exposition, expressed the thanks of the club and its members, exhibitors and all others who contributed to make the exposition a success.

The following is a list of the exhibitors at the exposition:

New York University's exhibit includes its "five-foot shelf" of books on advertising written by members of former members of its Faculty and graduate organizations.

Fashion Revue a Feature

One of the features of the exposition last night was a fashion revue staged by Nemser, designer, who used twenty-five of his models and showed for the first time new Spring color, "pine dew green."

"The "Pillar of Advertising," a pedestal decorated after the Egyptians and surmounted by a large globe and eagle, marked "Truth," stands in the middle of the armory, and forms the hub of a great wheel the spokes of which are aisles. In the east end of the armory is a stage, with a setting in Egyptian design, and there last night the first session of the exposition was opened by Mr. Charles, who introduced Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plants and Structures, as the principal speaker.

Arthur H. Two years ago when almost everyone in the publishing business said Cosmopolitan must reduce its price to 25 cents, Ray Long wrote in reply:

"The American public has the finest reading taste in the world. Therefore, let's give that public not only the best, but only the best. Give it a magazine worth more than 35 cents and the public will be glad to pay 35 cents."

The December issue totals 1,338,000. And we are going strong.

WHY?

The December issue is typical of the magazine from month to month. Irvin Cobb begins a series of humorous boy stories; there's a sprightly short story by Rupert Hughes; Peter B. Kyne's splendid novel; Sewell Ford with a new story of our old friend, Shorty McCabe; mystery by Arthur Somers Roche; study of life as it is, by Frank R. Adams; Curwood, Kathleen Norris, P. G. Wodehouse, Gouverneur Morris, George Ade, W. Somerset Maugham, Royal Brown, Montague Glass, Albert Payson Terhune.

Note the variety. If you like humor, there's Cobb, Ade, Wodehouse, Glass, McIntyre and McCutcheon. If you want business in your fiction, you find it in Kyne's novel and Hughes' short story. Adventure: there's Curwood; love stories: Ford, Brown, Adams, Kathleen Norris; discussion of problems: Gouverneur Morris's novel and Crystal Eastman's experiment in "Marriage Under Two Roofs"; mystery: Arthur Somers Roche's novel; short stuff: Maugham, McCutcheon, Ade and Glass all say their say in two pages.

COMPLETES INQUIRY INTO CANAL BUREAU

Kellogg Is Expected to Recommend New Purchasing System to Governor.

FULLER ASSUMES OFFICE

New Waterways Head Will Dredge More of Canal to 12 Feet.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 12.—The result of the inquiry into the financial administration of the State Canal Bureau will be submitted to Governor Smith soon after Nov. 20, Commissioner Kellogg announced tonight after he had ended the last of the hearings.

Commissioner Kellogg is expected to report the finding of loose methods of paying bills and approving vouchers in the Canal Bureau and to recommend a new system. He may also suggest the use of a purchasing agent and recommend legal action against those who apparently have profited by overcharging or supplies bought by the bureau.

Gilbert L. Kemp, a checker in the bureau, who had discovered that the bills of the General Mill and Contractors' Supply Company were high in several instances and had called the attention of Harry M. Hulsapple, chief auditor, to the fact, again testified today, as a voluntary witness, that Hulsapple had taken the bills into the iron office, and returned with the declaration that they were all right and would have to go.

Hulsapple, recalled, admitted the truth of Kemp's testimony.

"Who did you see when you went into the front office?" asked Commissioner Kellogg.

"Mr. Doyle," replied the witness. "He said that they were all right."

Hulsapple admitted that he had conferred with Doyle upon other bills, some of which were stopped.

Frank Utter, State Superintendent of Purchase stated that when he had taken over his new department a Bureau of Standards had been created. "I issued statements to all departments in June, 1922, to proceed as though the new bureau was not in effect," he testified. "I never took up the State Department of Public Works. We are working as fast as we can in specifications of the Bureau of Standards for all departments."

Captain W. H. Sickles Jr., an Inspector of Hulls, and Captain W. E. Smith, fleet commander, gave testimony relative to the hulls of four scows which were purchased by the State from L. J. Wilms of Buffalo. The boats were in bad condition, they testified, and had to have substantial repairs.

Martin J. Tracey, a checker, and Matt McGann, a timekeeper, were asked about the bills of material purchased from the General Mill and Contractors' Supply Company and testified their approval had merely meant the delivery of the goods. They knew nothing of prices and had not asked about them or been asked about them. They understood that all they had to do was to certify that the goods mentioned in the vouchers had been received.

Fuller to Push Canal Dredging.

In assuming the duties of Commissioner of Canals and Waterways today, Royal K. Fuller, appointed last week to succeed Edward S. Walsh, declared that one of the first things he would have done was dredging the canal where needed, to the twelve-foot depth required by law.

"The fact that the canal is not twelve feet deep in some places makes its impossible for the shippers to load their boats to capacity," said Commissioner Fuller. "It is the belief of Colonel Greene and myself that the Barge Canal should be brought to a greater stage of capacity. I have been over the canal system with Colonel Greene in the last few days and have observed the need of dredging.

"We expect to start dredging during the early Spring, and this work will be carried on under contract. We will invite bids during the Winter months, award the contracts, and have everything ready for the opening of navigation in the Spring. Possibly some of the work can be done before the canals open. At any rate something will be done to improve the physical condition of the canal."

It was revealed during the Canal Bureau investigation that dredging on the canal was done without competitive bidding.

Commissioner Fuller said he did not expect to make any changes in the personnel of the bureau for some time, if he made any at all.

Its enjoyment is not confined to children but inspires the whole family. Its influence will be felt for a lifetime.

The Journal of Education, in a review, says: "If we could give a child but one set of books for his literary education, we should choose My BOOK HOUSE."

"Wonderful Books"

R. O. Kerns, Superintendent of Schools, Cleveland

My BOOKHOUSE

Solves the Problem of Children's Reading

My BOOK HOUSE is the foundation for a child's library. More than that, it lays the foundation for a taste in reading.

The purpose and plan of My BOOK HOUSE is to give to children the very best stories and poems obtainable, graded according to ages. The editor, Mrs. Miller—herself a mother as well as a writer and educator—made the selections from a wide range of sources, covering the literature of all times and peoples.

Each volume of the series presents the material best suited for children of a certain age. As the child proceeds from one volume to another, he receives what is exactly right for him at each stage of his growth.

My BOOK HOUSE is so remarkable for what it omits as for what it includes. It is designed to enrich the expanding child consciousness with a fund of beauty, humor and truth—to develop in him the noblest qualities—to make him better, stronger and wiser to meet the problems of life.

The six volumes in My BOOK HOUSE contain a total of 2560 pages, 537 selections, representing 197 authors. The sixth volume contains biographies of the important authors represented and the indices make it easy to find a certain story or a certain kind of story. The many illustrations in color represent the work of twenty-eight of our leading artists.

Linoleum Floors Save Money In Floor Upkeep

BUSINESS floors are the world's champion absorbers of street dust. Street feet knock and scuffle, thud and shuffle over them. Seams open; tiny, invisible dirt pockets form. Charwomen scrub. Overhead mounts.

Your dirt-containing floors cost you money. Have you ever counted the cost of your floors?

A large telephone company in Chicago has kept a careful record of the cost of maintaining floors. In their big building, linoleum floors show definite economies. The entire cleaning and waxing cost is less than a cent and a quarter per square foot per month.

Do you think your customers are not, at least subconsciously, aware of the state of your floors?

A springy, easy-tread floor

Certainly they like the springy, resilient quality of linoleum. Armstrong's Linoleum is as resilient as cork. It is powdered cork, mixed with linseed oil. And it is burlap-backed to make it tougher yet.

In the switchboard room of the Kansas City Bell Telephone Co. a floor of 9,700 square yards of Armstrong's Plain Brown Linoleum is installed is a noise reducer. It is therefore an overhead reducer from another angle. Every noise that breaks a business thought in your establishment costs you money. And every employee who fights off noise with his mind while working for you is under-producing.

Business men like Armstrong's Linoleum for its cleanliness. When properly laid, it has no unsightly, open seams. It is smooth and even-surfaced; and, if waxed and polished, a daily brushing with a slightly waxed dust-mop serves to keep it spick-and-span.

There is no floor more dignified than waxed linoleum. Its looks actually improve with age. Years mellow it.

For business floors the use of an electric waxing machine is recommended. In some cities there are firms that offer a floor-waxing and maintenance service

Floors for all business uses

In selecting a floor of Armstrong's Linoleum for store, office, restaurant, or any public or semi-public building, you can choose suitable designs in plain colors, Jaspés (two-toned effects), tile inlaids, marble inlaids, and parquetry inlaids. Linoleum floors with borders, "built to fit the room," offer decorative floors for offices, stores, and smart shops. They may be had in designs and colors in keeping with the finest fixtures and appointments.

BANCROFT TRADED; TO MANAGE BRAVES

WILL SUCCEED MITCHELL

Giants' Star Is to Receive Two-Year Contract to Pilot Boston Club.

OUTFIELD PROBLEM SOLVED

True to his promise to rebuild the Giants from the bottom up, John J. McGraw last night engineered one of the biggest trades of his career. In exchange for Billy Southworth, outfielder, and Joe Oeschger, pitcher, of the Braves, the Giants' manager sent to Boston Shortstop Dave Bancroft and Outfielders Casey Stengel and Bill Cunningham. Bancroft will become manager of Boston to succeed Fred Mitchell, who probably will become the President of a minor league club.

Involving as it does the captains, Bancroft and Southworth, of two National League clubs, the deal is the most sensational of recent baseball history. Bancroft is probably the leading shortstop of the game, and Southworth is one of the best outfielders. Stengel, by winning two games single handedly with home runs, was the great hero of the late world's series for the Giants. Cunningham is a coming outfielder, and Oeschger is the pitcher who won fame on May 1, 1920, by pitching the longest game in the history of baseball—a twenty-six inning contest to a 1—1 tie against Leon Cadore of the Brooklyn Robins.

The deal was completed in the offices of the Giants at noon. Colonel Ruppert, Manager McGraw and President Charles A. Stoneham represented the Giants and President Christy Mathewson and Judge Emil Fuchs, Vice President, were present for the Boston club. Bancroft, who was first consulted to make sure that he was willing to become a major league manager, was also there when McGraw made the announcement to the newspapers.

Southworth to Play Center.

The Giants are giving up one of the best shortstops in baseball, if not the very best, but they are getting in return an outfielder who will effectively solve McGraw's outfield problem. With Meusel in left, Southworth probably in centre and Young in right, the Giants will have an outer garden vastly stronger than anything McGraw has had in many years.

To fill the vacant shortstop position, McGraw said he would use Travis Jackson, the twenty-year-old sensation from Little Rock, who made good overnight last Summer. Whether Young or Southworth will patrol the centre-field position is still a question in McGraw's mind. It is probable that Southworth will be the regular selection, as he played that position for the bigger part of his first season in the majors with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

McGraw was certain last night that he had made a ten-strike toward regaining the National League championship, but in baseball circles opinion was not so definite. Giant supporters were anxious lest the loss of Bancroft should weaken the infield more than the acquisition of Southworth would fortify the outfield. Bancroft, one of the brainiest players in the game, has long been termed the "spark plug" of the team. His keen generalship and smartness, his dashing spirit and aggressiveness have made him a guiding force on three pennant-winning and two world's championship teams, and it is doubtful if Jackson, at least in his first year as a regular, will be able to fill the shoes of the field general of the Giants.

McGraw Issues Statement.

After announcing the terms of the deal McGraw issued the following statement:

"The New York club realizes that in giving up the services of Mr. Bancroft it is losing the best shortstop in baseball without doubt. We have several reasons for making the sacrifice, the three particular ones being as follows:

"For the good of baseball and with the desire to do something big for my old friend, Matty, and finally to give to Bancroft the opportunity which is due to him to become a big league manager.

"We also have exchanged outfielders Cunningham and Stengel for Pitcher Oeschger of the Boston club.

"We not only feel that Bancroft is entitled to this opportunity but we feel and know that he will make good as manager of the Boston club. While we feel that we are giving up a great infielder in Bancroft we also feel that we are securing a great outfielder in Southworth."

Matty, who was present while this statement was being dictated, was asked to make a few remarks, and for the moment the once great pitcher of McGraw's old-time pennant winners was nonplussed.

"What do you want me to say?" he asked with a smile, and then: "Here's my statement," pointing to Bancroft, who sat near by.

"And a good statement, too," said Manager McGraw.

Later Mathewson and Judge Fuchs issued the following statement:

"Seldom is there any great improvement accomplished without some sacrifice. We regret the loss of the services of our manager, Fred Mitchell, by resignation, and we join his many friends in wishing him the best of luck and the success which a man of his sterling character and conscientious devotion to duty deserves.

Decided on Trade.

"After weeks of conference with the officials of practically every National League club we decided on a trade, while including the sacrifice of the services of so hard a worker, so able and popular a player as Billy Southworth, his conduct and devotion a credit to the national game, and the transfer of that manly, wholesome character, Joe Oeschger, whose failure to win for us was due, for want of honest effort, we trust our efforts to establish a winning and high-class baseball club for Boston are greatly aided in our securing the services of such experienced leaders as David Bancroft, Charles D. (Casey) Stengel and William A. Cunningham. Their reputations and records speak for themselves.

"We believe it to be for the best interest of our club to have a playing manager, and therefore we think we are fortunate in securing for the position of manager so quick-thinking, fearless and experienced an expert as David Bancroft.

"In our conferences with the other clubs we endeavored to purchase or make a trade for the services of other worthy players, but without success.

"We shall continue our efforts, preferring to offer reasonable sums of money, rather than players, in the accomplishment of our purpose. Our best judgment is that with the encouraging improvement shown by our young players toward the end of last season, and with added strength just acquired, the Braves of 1924 will be fighting it out with the best of them for the highest honors of the game."

It was further announced by Matty that Bancroft had accepted terms and will shortly sign a two-year contract. He will be the only playing manager in the National League.

Bancroft, although never at a loss for a word on the ball field, was more tongue-tied last night than ever before in his life, and he and Jim Tierney, the Giants' Secretary, read for him the following previously dictated statement:

"While my ambition and the ambition of any major league ball player is to become a big league manager, I realize that I am leaving a great baseball city and a wonderful ball club.

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank the New York public, the press and the New York baseball club for the wonderful treatment I have received here."

McGraw was plainly reluctant to part with his captain and shortstop, and he showed it by his remark that "Matty is the only man in baseball who could get Bancroft away from me." Manny is still not past his prime, but McGraw has such an abiding faith in young Jackson that he was willing to make the trade. In fact, he believes that the rookie of 20 tender years is one of the coming stars of baseball, and on this judgment he is staking his chances for a fourth pennant next season. Only recently McGraw declared that he would trade anybody on his team except Frisch, Young and Jackson, and that he meant it as far as Jackson was concerned is shown by last night's deal.

Bancroft Is Fighter.

Bancroft undoubtedly has the temperament and the brains that a big league manager needs. Of the nerveus type of Johnny Evers, he is one of the great shortstops of all time, in the opinion of many observers the best man the Giants have ever had at the position. He is a fighter but at the same time a keen student of baseball, and he never equals men father than they will go. At playing the batter that difficult art for all shortstops, he is generally conceded to be the best of the present-day crop. Bancroft is one of the finest team players in the game, and his presence is certain to steady both the infield and the outfield at Boston.

Bancroft is 31 years old, having been born in 1892 at Sioux City, Iowa. He broke in with Duluth and Superior of the Minnesota-Dakota League in 1909, making 1923 his fifteenth season in professional baseball. From Superior he went to Portland on the coast in 1912, and was sold to the Phillies in 1915. After five complete seasons in the Quaker City McGraw got him in June, 1920, in exchange for Arthur Fletcher, Wilbur Hubbell and a big sum of money, said to be about $50,000. Never a .300 hitter before, Bancroft's batting picked up, and in 1921, 1922 and 1923 he batted above that mark. In the Spring of 1921 he was made captain of the Giants.

With Bancroft go two other prime favorites of Giant fans. Excepting Frank Frisch, Casey Stengel was the most popular and colorful of all the McGraw gladiators. After a long career with Brooklyn, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the veteran, then a second-string outfielder on the Phillies, was thrown in by Baker in the trade that brought Johnny Rawlings to New York in June, 1921. After spending the rest of the season on the bench, the old-timer was suddenly placed in centre field in 1922 and came through with flying colors, as he did again last season after Jimmy O'Connell had fallen down.

Stengel Hero of Series.

Then came the world's series, and Stengel, with home runs, won the first and third games for the Giants, the only McGraw victories against the Yankees. Like Stengel, Meusel was the obscure player who became the hero, and, also like Rawlings, he is now with another club.

Bill Cunningham came to the Giants from Seattle of the Pacific Coast League straight outfielder in July, 1921. Although never the possessor of a regular berth, the red-faced recruit became immensely popular with the fans. He is fast, a great fielder and a fine thrower, but it is still a question whether he can hit for league pitching.

In Southworth the Giants get a natural outfielder almost on a par with Ross Young, a fine hitter, a notable fielder and leader and one of the fleetest men in the game. Last season was not one of his best, for the reason that an infection of bad biles in 1922 set him back considerably. He is 29 years old and first broke in with Cleveland in 1914, going from there to Portland and then to Birmingham. In 1918 Pittsburgh grabbed him and he made good immediately, but in order to get Rabbit Maranville, the Pirates traded him to Boston before the 1921 season with Nicholson and Barbare and a sum said to have been $15,000.

Oeschger, the latest addition to the Giants' pitching staff, was under the McGraw banner for a short time in 1919. He was obtained from the Phillies on May 27 for George Smith, but he had a sore arm and did almost no pitching. So on Aug. 1 McGraw included him in the players who traveled to Boston in exchange for Arthur Nehf. The next season Oeschger pitched his famous 26-inning game, and that terrific strain left its mark on him for some time, although in 1921 he won twenty games and lost only fourteen with a club that was none too strong.

The last season he pitched brilliantly in spots, but was erratic and never lived up to his youthful promise. Oeschger is one of the biggest twirlers in the game—6 feet tall and weighing 190 pounds. Whether he will make good with McGraw is a question. With a championship club behind him, most critics are inclined to believe that Joe will take a new lease on life and become one of McGraw's best winners. He will find old teammates on the pitching staff in Nehf, Scott, McQuillan and Watson, all obtained directly or indirectly from Boston in deals.

Last year Oeschger won only five games and lost fifteen, and in 1922 his record was five won and twenty-one lost.

Fred Mitchell became the Boston manager in 1920, succeeding George Stallings, who became half owner of the Rochester International League club. In 1918 Mitchell was manager of the Chicago Cubs in the National League pennant, although losing the world's series to the Red Sox.

Probably Frisch will be the new Giant captain, and Bancroft very likely will be both manager and captain of the Braves.

HORNSBY DEALS ARE OFF.

President Breadon Says Cards Will Keep Star Slugger.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 12.—Sam Breadon, President of the St. Louis Nationals, today announced all deals involving the trade of Rogers Hornsby, star slugger, were off. He added that "no club in the league can give us enough good players for Hornsby."

Reports that Hornsby would be traded became current shortly after the Cardinals' star engaged in a fist fight with Manager Branch Rickey just before the close of last season.

Landis Announces a Plan To Strengthen Weaker Teams

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Strengthening of weaker teams in the major leagues through giving a team of lower standing preference to players upon whom waivers have been asked will be one of the suggestions of changes to the rules to be submitted for action at the joint meeting of the major leagues here Dec. 12, Commissioner Landis announced today. Another important suggestion to come up before the December meeting will be one giving major league umpires the right to appeal to the Commissioner, who may finally determine any dispute in which a major league umpire is a party. Amendment of the rule dealing with the number of eligible players on a team also will be proposed. The rule states that the manager is excluded from the list of forty players permitted to each team. It is suggested that the word manager be changed to "non-playing manager" and that coaches also be excluded from the list.

M'GRAW WILL SAIL FOR EUROPE TODAY

HORNSBY DEAL IS DEAD

Cardinals Sought Frisch for Star—Stoneham Re-elected President of Giants.

John J. McGraw closed up his baseball affairs yesterday and today will see him embarking on a European trip of four or five weeks, accompanied on the George Washington by Mrs. McGraw and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jennings. On the eve of sailing the Giants' manager confirmed the news that the Rogers Hornsby deal is deader than the proverbial door nail, and he was not particularly enthusiastic over the prospect of getting Pitcher Jeff Pfeffer from the Cardinals.

"Probably could use Pfeffer," McGraw said, when the report to that effect was called to his attention, "but I doubt very much whether I would give much for him. As far as Hornsby is concerned, that is over for the present. I met Rickey and when the question of a trade was brought up he was asked what he would want in return.

"'Well, give me Frisch and—' Rickey began, but he got no further than the 'and.' That was enough for me. I'll keep Frisch and Rickey can keep Hornsby."

Rickey, during his stay here, admitted that Pfeffer is on the market. The big-right hander was suspended for a time last season, and waivers were asked on him. After the Giants had claimed him, the Cardinals withdrew the waivers and then tried to arrange a deal with the Giants, but it did not go through. Pfeffer, it is said, believes that he would be a steady winner under McGraw, and one of the possibilities of the Winter is that the Little Napoleon may swing a deal for the pitcher whom Wilbert Robinson of the Dodgers cut loose two years ago.

McGraw is going to Europe chiefly for the boat trip. He will spend only a fortnight or so on the other side and expects to be back in time for the National League meeting on Dec. 10 in Chicago. Hugh Jennings was at the Giants' offices yesterday, saying good-bye before sailing. He and McGraw will undoubtedly spend a profound thinking and profounder talking over the general situation as regards the Giants for next season.

The stockholders of the National Exhibition Company, the official name of the Giants, met in Murray City yesterday and elected Charles A. Stoneham President for another year. They also elected the following Board of Directors: Charles A. Stoneham, John J. McGraw, Judge Francis X. McQuade, Storage A. Stoneham, Ross R. Robertson, H. A. Ferguson and Leo J. Bondy.

The Board of Directors will hold its annual meeting after McGraw returns from Europe next month and elect the other officers of the club besides President Stoneham. The usual ticket probably will go through: Vice President, McGraw; Secretary-Treasurer, McQuade, and Assistant Treasurer, James J. Tierney.

COLUMBIA PRAISES CORNELL'S ELEVEN

Players Land Saturday's Opponents—Dobie Said 'We Were Lucky to Win.'

While Percy Haughton was resting his varsity team at Baker Field yesterday, Columbia's undergraduates and alumni were reviewing Saturday's game against Cornell with mixed feelings. Some of the Blue and White supporters were disappointed that the score went over 25 to 0, but the majority of the campus followers were satisfied that a 35-0 score was no disgrace against what Columbians now believe is the greatest football machine in the country.

Praise of Captain George Pfann and Cassidy and Ramsey and the other heroes of the Cornell eleven was as frequent as praise of Haughton's eleven for its stubborn fight against overwhelming odds. If the greatness of the Red and White team ever had to be decided by a vote, Columbia would cast its ballot as one man for Cornell's team playing was also universally lauded, particularly by the Morningside players.

"I have never played against a team that was so clean and sportsmanlike," said Frank Brodil, the Columbia centre. "Cornell's not only a great team but a fine bunch of players. Not once did I see them intentionally foul one of our players or indulge in unnecessary roughness. Their language was as clean as Sheik Hahn's and he made good ammunition of that, but simply good, hard football that was too much for us."

Percy Haughton accepted the defeat philosophically, knowing probably that it was inevitable. His only comment was that to friends on Saturday night: "When eleven good men meet eleven better men, there is only one result. Cornell was simply better — better, stronger, more experienced and more skillful."

Even those who were disappointed at the size of the Cornell score admitted that under the Haughton regime Columbia has shown distinct and steady signs of improvement. Confidence in the former Harvard mentor is higher than ever, and it is safe to say that Morningside is prouder of its football team today than it has been at any time since 1915. The early work of the line against Cornell, the playing of the veterans Koppisch and Brodil and the work of the sophomores, End Wagner and Guard Schmittkatch, were the bright spots for the Blue and White.

Columbians were amused yesterday at the reactions of the glommy Gil Dobie to the victory of his team. The Cornell coach lived up fully to his reputation for pessimism.

"Gil, you've got a great team, Gil," a Columbia man told him in the dressing room after the game. But Dobie was not enthusiastic.

"We were lucky to win," he said in a confidential tone. "Cornell isn't a great team. It's a good team maybe, but it's not a hard team to beat, if you want to know my opinion.

"Penn will beat us sure on Thanksgiving Day," went on Dobie gloomily. "That's a game we're going to lose, sure. I was a fool to take this Columbia game, and I'm glad it's over. You don't know how hard I had to work for this game. All papers were saying how we would win by 70 to 0, and the players began to believe it. The first fifteen minutes showed that today."

"Well, Pfann is a great player, isn't he?" said the Columbian, trying to find one topic that would draw Dobie out.

"Oh, George is a good boy," said Gil, and then the Columbia man retired, conceding defeat.

All the players who were in against Cornell were granted a day's vacation yesterday. With the exception of Schopp, who strained his leg, the squad suffered nothing less than the usual bruises. The second-string players and junior varsity had Baker Field to themselves, and Haughton will not start work for Saturday's N. Y. U. game until this afternoon.

Amherst to Enlarge Field.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 12.—Fifteen new tennis courts and baseball and soccer fields will be added to the Hitchcock playing field of Amherst College, it was announced today by President Olds. The work of adding four and one-half acres to the field, named for the late Edward Hitchcock of the class of 1849, will go forward at once.

Pacific League Names Williams.

AVALON, Cal., Nov. 12.—Harry A. Williams, sports writer of Los Angeles, today was elected President of the Pacific Coast Baseball League in place of William H. McCarthy.

'There Goes Half the Team,' Says Yost of Uteritz's Loss

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 12.—Irwin Uteritz, quarterback and field general of the University of Michigan football team, will play no more this season, it was announced definitely today by Coach Fielding H. Yost. A small bone in Uteritz's right leg was splintered in Saturday's game with the United States Marines.

"There goes half of the football team," was Yost's comment when he learned Uteritz would be unable to play in the remaining two Conference games. "He was the best field general I ever had."

THIRD CORPS BEATS VILLANOVA, 7 TO 0

Army Eleven Meets Stubborn Defense, but Scores in Last Quarter.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Villanova College held the powerful eleven of the Third Army Corps to a single touchdown and resulting goal at Villanova this afternoon, losing a bitterly-fought struggle by a 7-0 count.

The Army's only score came in the fourth quarter. The session opened with the ball on Villanova's forty-yard line. For a time neither team could gain and resorted to punting. With about five minutes to play the ball was on Villanova's 35-yard line.

An end run by Noyes brought the ball to the 20-yard mark. Hahn, fullback, gained 12 yards more for the soldiers on two plunges at the weary Blue and White line. Timberlake gained four yards on an off-tackle play and followed this up by carrying the ball across the goal line on the next play. Noyes succeeded in the try for the extra point from placement.

COLBY BEATS BATES, 9-6.

Both Teams Score in Second Period —10,000 See Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 12.—Colby's fighting football eleven battered its way to a 9 to 6 victory over Bates and won the Maine State championship before 10,000 fans, a record crowd, on Seavern's Field this afternoon. Colby's points all came in the second period, Millett making a touchdown after hard line plunges, and Boulé kicking a goal from the 31-yard line.

The Bates touchdown also came in the second period, Woodman taking a 32-yard forward pass and sprinting ten yards for the score. Bates held the heavy Colby team twice for downs within the 5-yard line. Millett and Captain Burckel excelled for Colby, while Quarterback Kempton starred for Bates.

N. Y. U. HAS LIGHT DRILL.

Intensive Work for Columbia Game Will Start Today.

After its victory over the City College eleven last Saturday, the New York University football team was given only a light workout on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon. The Violet aggregation emerged from Saturday's tussle with only one injury. Ramsay, their star end and placement kicker, was the only member of the team who was not in uniform yesterday afternoon. During the first half of the game last Saturday Howley received a bruised hip, which made it necessary for him to leave the field. It will be at least three days before he will be able to put on a uniform again.

Head Coach Tom Thorp will give his charges several sessions of intense practice this week so that he may be able to iron out any rough spots before the team opposes Columbia this Saturday. He wants to get the team working as a machine because he realizes that the Morningside Heights aggregation is one of the Violet's strongest opponents of the season.

In practice session yesterday afternoon work was confined to the lighter departments of the game. A long session in running down under punts was given to the team. Under the supervision of Assistant Coach Ed Butler, Toorock, veteran half back, was punting an average of forty-five yards. Nagle was given a short session in kicking off and sent the ball to the 5-yard line each time. Williams, Ticket for Snyder, Connolly for Moynahan, Bashmann for Burt, Allen for Bachmann, Kennedy for Snyder, Allen for Greeley, Greeley for Bachmann, J. Wallen for Dora, Tariner for Aigner, Farina for O'Loughlin.

Referee—Benbiss, Penn. Umpire—Hunt, Mercersburg. Linesman—Clinton, Yale. Time of periods—Two 15 and two of 12 minutes.

DARTMOUTH LOSES KELLEY.

Injury Will Keep Halfback Out of Columbia Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 12.—Dartmouth will be forced to face Columbia at the Polo Grounds on Thanksgiving Day without the services of Kelley, star punter and offensive halfback, who suffered torn ankle ligaments in the Brown game at Providence Saturday. The injury occurred in the first minute of play.

It is improbable that Hatch, right tackle, will play against Colby on Saturday, because of a sprained ankle. Duffy, substitute center, will be kept out for the remainder of the season, owing to an infected leg.

Members of the team were guests of the Dartmouth Outing Club at a cabin supper tonight. The purpose of the gathering was to discuss the Brown game. In the absence of Coach Hawley, Assistant Coach Cansell went over the flaws.

YOEMANS DIRECTS ARMY.

Third-String Quarter Drives Team —Smythe and Johnson Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Head Coach McEwan ordered practice today for the Army squad, foregoing the usual Monday rest. All who participated in the game with the Arkansas Aggies on Saturday were on hand, excepting Smythe, Johnson, his substitute at quarter, and Ives, halfback. This trio is nursing injuries received in Saturday's contest.

Yoemans, third-string quarter, who did some fine work against the Aggies after both Smythe and Johnson were hurt, guided the varsity men in the drill today. The coaches think well of Yoemans. He has been driving one of the smartest Army scrub elevens all season, and with both of the regulars incapacitated is making good.

VERMONT DEFEATS MIDDLEBURY, 13-0

GOOCH STARS IN VICTORY

Plays Through Game With Sprained Ankle and Throws Passes Which Lead to Scores.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 12.—For the third year in succession Tom Keady's University of Vermont football team won the championship of Vermont today by a victory over Dave Morey's Middlebury eleven, 13 to 0. It was one of the most severe games ever staged on the Vermont field, and no less than six players on each team were carried off the field as a result of injuries. Two of the Vermont stars, Douglass and Tarpey, were taken out of the game in the first period; while Gooch, Vermont's forward-passing ace, played the entire game after receiving a sprained ankle in the Norwich game only two days ago.

It was Gooch who did so much toward annexing the two touchdowns which Vermont put across, for on each occasion it was one of his perfect forward passes which sent the player over the goal line for the scores. Captain Semansky made the first touchdown in the initial period, while in the second period Eastburne received a long pass which led to seven more points. Although Middlebury failed to cope successfully with the Vermont passes, its defense was, nevertheless, stonewall in its nature, for on two occasions the Green Mountain eleven carried the ball to within one yard of the goal, where the visitors held for downs. Vermont, likewise, was successful in holding its opponents on the defense, for, with the exception of the first period, Middlebury was unable to get into Vermont territory.

The line-up:

VERMONT (13).		MIDDLEBURY (0).
Semansky	L.E.	Nevotney
Harris	L.T.	Mullen
Lemay	L.G.	Reigleman
Kendricks	C.	Meynahan

HARVARD TEAM IDLE BEFORE FINAL DRIVE

Fisher to Begin Preparations for Yale Today—Lee May Replace McGlone.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—There was no football work, even for the Harvard subs who did not play at Princeton Saturday, out on Soldiers' Field today. The freshmen who played against the Tiger first-year team also had the day off, and the only drilling was done by the varsity scrubs, who are now learning the Brown and Yale plays, and by the extra men on the freshman squad. However, things will start in earnest again tomorrow, when Bob Fisher will have practically all of his men begin work for the Yale game on Nov. 24.

The doctor's room in the locker building was a fairly busy place, for both varsity and freshman games Saturday brought a lot of bruises and small cuts.

"Nip" Cordingly, who was well battered at Princeton, came down to the field for a little attention and so did Harrison Eastman, who went into the Princeton game after a week's absence from hard play. His legs are not right yet, but he would not take a day off and went out to the field to practice kick-offs, much to the surprise of Dr. Richards. Percy Lenkin's leg is much improved, and there seems to be no question of his being able to be out in time to do some work before the Yale game.

McGlone is in so much better shape than he was Saturday night that he will be on the field in a day or two. However, McGlone will have a fight on his hands now to hold the quarterback job against Lee, who carried the team along in its long drive at Princeton and put on the speed which was carried through when Harvard pushed Princeton back to the goal post just prior to the Tiger safety.

Soldiers' Field is being covered with straw every night to keep out the frost. Harvard's victory at Princeton had an effect on the Yale-game tickets, and the demand for seats is greater than ever. There will be about 56,000 persons here on Nov. 24.

CORNELL ELEVEN RESTS.

Coach Dobie Lectures Squad on Columbia Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 12.—All of Cornell's first string players and the substitutes who took part in the Columbia game, were allowed to take it easy today, hard practice being confined to the second and third team reserves. The entire squad turned out, however, for the usual Monday lecture. They heard a talk from Coach Dobie to the effect that there was plenty of room for improvement, and a series of specific suggestions for individual betterment to be worked out in practice this week, but on the whole, Cornell's mentor seemed well satisfied with the team's showing against Columbia.

A survey of the squad today showed that Frank Sundstrom, right tackle, may be out of the game for a week or ten days. He suffered a hip bruise in the first period of the Columbia game. The full extent of the injury has not been revealed, but Coach Dobie is hopeful that Sundstrom will be in shape for the battle with Pennsylvania on Thanksgiving Day. He will hardly get in against Johns Hopkins Saturday.

From now on Dobie will handle the team carefully to prevent over-training, as the team is physically pretty close to top form.

WILLIAMS PLAYER RECOVERS

Bebee, Backfield Star, Will Not Suffer Any Ill Effects of Injury.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Nov. 12.—Robert Bebee, the Williams varsity backfield star, who was carried from the field in a helpless condition during the Wesleyan game Saturday afternoon, was subsequently rushed to the Middlesex Hospital, where it was found he had suffered a slight concussion of the brain. He is the son of Herbert Bebee of Pawtucket, R. I., who came here today. The injured man has recovered sufficiently to go home with his father. The doctors say he will suffer no ill effects.

HEPHAISTOS VICTOR IN THE PIMLICO CUP

Comes From Behind to Finish Ahead of Chacolet—Runs 2¼ Miles in 3:58 3-5.

TRACK CONDITIONS POOR

Special to The New York Times.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 12.—Running on a track which was almost fetlock deep in mud and water, F. E. Brown's Hephaistos this afternoon won the fifth holding of the Pimlico Cup, getaway feature of the meeting and season here. Poor track conditions and a steady rain kept the crowd down and marred the race, as they caused the withdrawal of Admiral Grayson's My Own and H. Alterman's Homestretch, two of the most likely candidates for the $10,000 added money purse.

Hephaistos, with the veteran Johnny Callahan in the saddle, ran the two and a quarter miles in 3:58 3-5, to win by a length and under slight restraint from H. P. Headley's consistent Western mare, Chacolet. The Lilane Stable's Sunsinl, an added starter, was third, a full ten lengths in front of Exodus. Only four horses started. Hephaistos was the favorite, paying 1.60 to 1; or $5.20 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels. Chacolet paid $3.50 for the place in the machines, and no show mutuels were sold. The victory was worth $6,950 to Mr. Brown.

When the race started Sunsinl, breaking from the outside position, was first to show in front, with Hephaistos, Chacolet and Exodus stringing out in the order named. Exodus broke sluggishly, and Jockey Coltiletti had difficulty in getting him to run at all, but under the whip he finally responded and by the time the first mile was run he had overhauled his field and taken the lead. At this stage of the race Sunsinl was second, with Chacolet third, and Hephaistos, under stout restraint, far back.

Sunsinl Weakens at Finish.

When the final three-quarter pole loomed up out of the mist Callahan gave the rein to Vulcain his head and he gained steadily on the outside and, continuing his determined challenge after turning for home, disposed of Chacolet before the stretch run was half over and Callahan was taking him up at the judges' stand. Chacolet was hampered by a bad ride from Chick Lang, who got the mare in one tight place after another until he found a place on the inner rail. With that point of vantage gained Lang decided to sit still for the remainder of the journey and, given her own way, Chacolet held on courageously against Hephaistos's stern challenge, but could not have enough in reserve to stave it off. With a better-judged ride Chacolet would probably have reversed the verdict. Sunsinl ran well for two miles and then weakened. The poor start took too much out of Exodus and he dropped to a walk in the last mile. Hephaistos finished the race slightly lame.

Benny Marinelli was the riding hero of the final day, scoring in the second on Wood Kraemer's Lad's Love and then kicking J. W. Bean's Donaghee home a neck in front of Sun Maiden in the Coswell, sixth on the card. Lad's Love paid better than 6 for 1, while Donaghee's price was 2.30 to 1. In the previous race, the fifth, St. Donard slipped home three parts of a length in front of Bonfire and rewarded his supporters at the pleasing ratio of 12.70 to 1, or $27.40 for a $2 ticket.

Ten-to-One Shot Wins.

The closing number went to M. J. Reid's Guelph, also an outsider in the betting, by two lengths over old Barney Stone. Guelph paid 10 to 1.

You pay us nothing like as much and do the job in one visit.

We'll tell you frankly if you're the occasional chap who really must go to a tailor because of what the old rhetoricians would have called a physical dissimilitude.

Precious few, however, who must. You only think you're hard to fit. Our Winter suits and overcoats will change your mind.

We like lookers.

No sir, our extra sizes, 48 to 54 stout, cost no more than other sizes. It's enough to be overly plump without being taxed for it.

Hats, shoes and fixings, same way.

SILVER CREST STAR IN JUMPING CLASS

Miss Lanier and Veteran Hunter Prove Unbeatable Combination at Horse Show.

CIVILIANS OUTSCORE ARMY

Capture All Ribbons Despite Opposition of Best Performers in Military Circles.

AMBER CREST IS WINNER

Champion at Brooklyn in 1921 Takes First Money in Saddle Class for Geldings Over 15.2.

Jumping in the form which has won him ribbons and plate almost without number, Miss Becky Lanier's aged gray gelding Silver Crest swept aside opposition yesterday in the open jumping class at the second day of the thirty-eighth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association in the Squadron A armory on Park Avenue at Ninety-fourth Street. Silver Crest was in rare fettle, but no more fit and eager for the contest than his youthful and highly skilled mistress. It was an unbeatable combination although just three score opponents matched their skill against the old gray and his clever rider.

Seventy-one entries had been received for the class in which performance only counted and all but ten essayed the task of making perfect performances twice over the course which was made up of a brush hurdle and three post and rail fences. On the whole the performances were as high class as has been seen at a National Horse Show in recent years. There were only a very few really poor exhibitions of jumping and these were due, possibly, to unfamiliarity with the ring and with the lights.

The second post and rail fence was the rock on which most of the hopes were wrecked, as it was over this obstacle that most of the horses blundered. As no less than half a dozen carried down this obstacle while getting over all the others cleanly it seemed as if the brilliant lights overhead must have had something to do with the action of the horses. Although this fence was rearranged several times, not a rider was unseated during the competition which required about two hours to decide.

Second to Silver Crest was Isaac H. Clothier, Jr.'s chestnut mare Miss Sequoy, third going to Otto W. Lehmann's brown gelding Lansdowne and fourth to Mr. Clothier's Charles Cothill, a thoroughbred qualified hunter. Civilians outclassed the Army in this particular contest, although the officers of the Cavalry, Squadron A and the Military Academy had all their best jumpers out for the money and ribbons.

Jump-Off Is Necessary.

Miss Lanier also had in her Down East and Boiling, but did not have as much success with the two chestnuts as with her veteran gray. She received a fine welcome as she made the round the first time with Silver Crest, which just sailed over his jumps. After all had had their trials, the four which eventually were in the ribbons, together with the Cavalry School's Babe Wartham and the same organization's Jack Snipe, were called out again. All had made clean scores and a jump-off was necessary. Silver Crest's second performance was as clean as a whistle and he had a lot to spare over all of his obstacles. Mr. Clothier had the mount on his two jumpers, the Lehmann entry being ridden by J. Bernalfo.

The program for the second day had variety to suit all tastes, practically all types of show horses being in the ring at one time or another during the three sessions. There was a fair attendance during the afternoon and in the evening, as usual, there was a large turn-out. The evening card opened with the class for artillery horses for the Frederick D. MacKay Cup, there being keen rivalry between the United States Military Academy and the regular service for the $100 trophy. The former was the winner, taking the cup and also the second ribbon with the bay gelding Sherman and the bay gelding Adams, respectively. Third went to the Sixteenth Field Artillery with Babe and fourth to Battery E, Second Battalion, Seventh Field Artillery, with Dick.

Wins Her First Blue.

Miss Jean Browne Scott won her first blue ribbon of the show during the evening, when she drove her black mare Seaton Victoria, obtained at the Moore dispersal sale, to victory in the novice harness class for horses, 15.1 and not exceeding 15.3, beating Montpelier Fortune from the Montpelier Farm of William du Pont.

A pretty class was that for two saddle horses, one ridden by a lady and the other by a gentleman. The Misses Marion and Grace Douglas of Amherst, Nova Scotia, were rewarded for sending their Lloyd George and Lord Denmark, both bay geldings, all the way to New York from the Canadian Province. Miss Webb was up on Lloyd George and Joe Collins of Boston showed Lord Denmark to win the blue for the Nova Scotia girls.

Miss Newborg Takes Blue.

Ten excellent lightweight horses suitable to become hunters opened the second day of the show in Class 147, which called for horses not over 6 years of age up to carrying 165 pounds to hounds. It was an even class and the contestants showed fine performances, although the requirements were not severe. Miss Michelle S. Newborg showed her own bay gelding Irish Crystal to such good effect that she carried off the blue, defeating Rigan McKinney, who had the mount on his own gray gelding College Son. Third went to Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody of Hinsdale, Ill., who showed the chestnut mare Alcea. Rigan McKinney also took fourth with his bay gelding Flavonius.

In the saddle class for geldings 15.2 hands and under, for which post entries were received, ten answered the bugle call. This was another fine class, in which the competition was very close. John P. Croser of Upland, Pa., carried off first honors with his six-year-old chestnut gelding The Huguenot, a newcomer to the National. C. Moreland of Lexington, Ky., took the red with the chestnut gelding Why Not over Radio, owned by Joe B. Davis of Nelsonville, Ohio. The same owner's gray gelding Silver Charm was placed fourth.

A. W. Atkinson of Merchantville, N. J., swept the ring in the novice harness class for horses over 14.2 and not exceeding 15.1, taking the blue with the smooth-going bay mare Sanderstead Iris and the red with the bay mare Present Mavis. Third was given to the cream mare Curley Maple, shown by the Killearn Farm of Millbrook, N. Y., the only other entry.

There was a complete reversal in the novice saddle class over the class earlier in the day. This was in Class 114 for horses for 14.2 and not exceeding 15.2. This time the judges, Harry McNair, W. A. McGibbon and John W. McComb, placed R. E. Moreland's Why Not over The Huguenot, winning in the other class. Lloyd George, the bay gelding owned by the Misses Marion and Grace Douglas of Amherst, Nova Scotia, who are exhibiting here for the first time, unplaced in the other company, moved up to take third ribbon, while fourth went to the bay mare Forest Echo, exhibited by Mortimer B. Fuller of Scranton, Pa.

J. Macy Willets drove his pony Irvington Bounce III. to victory over the Woodroyd Farm's Sir Eric in the class for harness ponies over 13.2 and not exceeding 14.2. This reversed the decision in the same class a year ago, in which yesterday's winner could do not better than third behind Forest Fire and Failing Fulora. Forest Fire was placed third yesterday, the winner showing in splendid form and full of fire. Fourth was won by the Cassilis Farm's Irvington Autocrat.

Four tandems answered the bugle in Class 89, which called for horses exceeding 15.1 hands. Otto W. Lehmann of Lake Villa, Ill., won the blue with his nicely-matched bays, Princess Mary and Prince Peterboro. Last Fall the Lehmann outfit was forced to be content with third ribbon back of R. La Lawrence Smith's Seaton Sylvia and Seaton Cyrano and Judge Moore's Seaton Middle March and Seaton Septimus. This year there was not such strong opposition to the Western entry. The red went to Montpelier Geraldine Pearl and Montpelier Fortuity, owned by the Montpelier Farm of William du Pont of Wilmington, Del. Third were Miesh and Seaton Clown, formerly owned by the late Judge Moore and shown by Miss Mildred L. Bedell of this city. Miss Jean Browne Scott of Fort Kennedy, Pa., the schoolgirl who made her horse show debut a year ago, bringing out the sensational Briar Footprint, took fourth ribbon yesterday with The Whip and Mogul. She showed the former here last year in single harness.

H. N. Gries of Tulsa, Okla., exhibited the winner in the class for roadsters, single horses 3 years old and over, his bay mare Pattie Miller taking the blue over the Montpelier Farm's Mignonette, winner on Saturday. Pattie Miller was entered on Saturday, but was not shown. Yesterday she was driven by R. E. Morehead to excellent advantage. H. E. Neise Jr showed Jolly Bachelor to take third ribbon.

Miss Jean Browne Scott handled the ribbons for the first time in the National this year when she drove her black mare Seaton Victoria and Briar Footprint, both of which were bred by the late Judge Moore, in the harness class for pairs over 15.1 and not exceeding 15.3. While she drove like a veteran, she had to be content with the red ribbon, the blue being won by Otto W. Lehmann's fine pair of bays, Princess Mary and Prince Peterboro. This was the first of the bay pairs judged during the show and there were only three entries. The yellow ribbon was taken by the Montpelier Farm's Montpelier Geraldine Pearl and Montpelier Fortuity, which were the blue ribbon winners in this class last year.

Wins First Sweepstakes.

Miss Scott annexed her second blue of the evening by driving her black mares Seaton Victoria and Briar Footprint to victory in the novice harness class for horses more than 15.1 and not exceeding 15.3, beating Otto W. Lehmann's bays, Prince Peterboro and Princess Mary. This was a decided reversal, as the Lehmann pair had beaten Miss Scott's mares during the afternoon.

Silver Crest was forced to take the red ribbon in the class for qualified hunters, light weight, up to carrying 165 pounds to hounds. The gray was ridden by Miss Sally Lanier and was beaten by the Foxcatcher Farms' chestnut mare Witchcraft, with Mrs. William du Pont in the saddle.

Miss Becky Lanier won additional honors and a fat purse when she carried off the first of the sweepstakes of the 1923 national. This was the sweepstakes for qualified thoroughbred hunters and Miss Lanier captured the blue ribbon and $500, representing 60 per cent. of the stakes, with her chestnut gelding Down East. Miss Lanier had the mount and beat the Owenoke Farms' brown gelding King Nelson, which took second money. Third money was won by Isaac H. Clothier Jr. with his brown gelding Charles Cothill. The hunters were judged on conformation, quality and manner and style of jumping.

A. E. Ogilvie, F. S. von Stade and A. S. Craven, judges of hunters and jumpers, spent several hours yesterday morning in judging the lightweight, middleweight and heavyweight hunters on conformation and placing them in their respective classes, which will hold during the show.

Uncle Sam's representatives were extremely proud of their first day's record at the show. Staff Sergeant Edward Smith yesterday pointed with pride to a collection of three blue, two red, two yellow and two white ribbons that hang at the stalls. As Sergeant Smith yet Jeff, the favorite charger of General John J. Pershing, has not been called upon to take the tanbark, but his turn will come later.

An error was inadvertently made in the report of the children's pony jumpers in Class 76, in which it was stated that the winner was Cock Robin. It should have read that the winner was the chestnut gelding Liberty, owned by Master Arthur McCashin.

BRILLIANT DISPLAY OF FASHION AT SHOW

There was a brilliant display of fashion last night at the Horse Show. The presence of many members of Squadron A in their dress uniforms, who acted as guards of honor, gave a picturesque touch to the scene.

The elimination trial of four artillery teams brought out many military visitors. Major Gen. Ell Helmick, Inspector General, U. S. A., and Colonel W. C. Rivers, Inspector Second Corps, U. S. A., were visitors from Washington, D. C.

The colors worn by the occupants of the boxes were more subdued than last year, but here and there was noted a flash of bright red. There was a Spanish touch in many of the headdresses worn, and ermine and sables were among the popular furs in the boxes.

The Marquese Pinar del Rio was among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Cornell last evening. In Box 60, owned by Reginald C. Vanderbilt, were Mr. and Mrs. Evender Horst Kook.

Alfred B. Maclay, President of the association, and Mrs. Maclay had among their guests in Box 56 Dr. and Mrs. Philip Schuyler Chancellor.

Mrs. Charles G. Ayres entertained in Box 66, and others having box parties were Mr. and Mrs. John McE. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Macy Willets, Mr. and Mrs. William du Pont, Mrs. Amory Monell, Mrs. T. Shaw Hall, Miss Jeane Browne Scott and Mrs. Thomas J. Regan.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. J. William Kilbreth, Mrs. R. de Goicouria Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Charles U. Caesar, Louis Haight, F. Ambrose Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Pettinos and their daughter, Miss Eleanor, were among others attending the night session.

Mrs. Henry Hamilton Lyle and Mrs. Clarence N. Peacock were in charge of the Dug Out booth last night.

Yesterday afternoon brought a much larger attendance at the show than on Saturday, and many new faces were seen in the arena boxes, but there was little promenading around the ring. The stunts on horseback and off of the United States Cavalry proved vastly entertaining to the crowd, and there was much applause.

The tea room did a thriving business under the management of Miss Beth Evans. The girls serving luncheon were the Misses Gertrude Watts, Dolores Carrillo, Dorothy Smith, Sally Peters, E. J. Evans and Priscilla Mitchell, and those who served tea in the late afternoon were the Misses Clara Barclay, Millicent Barnard, Anne Tennant, Elizabeth Murphy, Dorothy Smith, Gertrude Watts and Priscilla Mitchell.

Seated in the boxes and the arena seats were Mrs. Henry W. Burnett, Mrs. William Force, Mrs. Louis Haight, Mrs. Barin Carley, Mrs. Myra D. Patterson, Mrs. F. S. Doremus, Colonel H. Harpin Andrews and Mrs. Andrew D. Kerins, S. Jackson and Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. William McGibbons, Mrs. T. Shaw Hall, Charles D. Lanier and the Misses Betty and Sally Lanier, Mrs. David Wagstaff and Mr. and Mrs. Amory L. Haskell. Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gubelman, Miss Clara S. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Law Jr., Brig. Gen. Mortimer D. Bryant, Mr. and Mrs. William Sleeper Jr., E. J. Fleming of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Syford Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody of Chicago, Mr. Victor Loew, Pierre Lorillard, Lewis Waring, Alfred B. Maclay, Isaac S. Clothier Jr., Reginald C. Vanderbilt and W. H. Winsmacker Jr.

The Dug Out table, near the tea room, with the aprons made by disabled service men of the Dug Out on sale was under the direction of Mrs. Henry H. M. Lyle, assisted by Miss Fanny Cotenet, Mrs. Clarence N. Peacock and Miss Clara Peck. This afternoon Mrs. Lyle will have Mrs. Charles de Rham Jr., Mrs. Lawrence Whittemore and Miss Virginia Alexandre with her.

90 FOXHOUNDS COMPETE.

Field Trials for All-Age Stake Start in National Meet.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The most successful field trials of the present meeting of the National Fox Hunters' Association were held today. Ninety of the greatest fox hounds in America were cast in the All-age Stake, which will be completed Wednesday, bringing the meet to a close. A spectacular $3,000 pursuit witnessed the cast, and half a dozen foxes were sighted. No foxes have been killed during the trials.

The final in the derby was run this afternoon with seventeen hounds participating. The result will be announced later. Forest Fire is the hound to beat.

RUTAN TAKES PLACE IN PRINCETON LINE

Tackle Returns to Position for First Time Since Notre Dame Game.

MANY BACKFIELD SHIFTS

Van Gerbig, Legendre, Ewing and Caulkins in the Varsity Combination.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—Signal drill was the main part of practice for the Princeton varsity on University Field this afternoon as the squad started the final week of work for the Yale game at New Haven Saturday. Some of the regulars had laboratory work and could not report for practice, but the rest of the men spent the whole afternoon running plays and learning new formations as a defense against the Blue attack. One of the features of the workout was the return of Frank Rutan to his tackle post, and the veteran seemed to be in fine shape, running signals during the entire session.

Dick Newby's condition was the most doubtful of the men who played against the Crimson last Saturday, and it was not known just when the hard-running halfback would be available again. Among the other men absent were Brad Dinsmore, quarterback, and Hills, Howard and Emery, linemen, but all of these are expected to be on hand tomorrow for a stiff practice. With Rutan back on the job, some kind of a shift is anticipated in the forward wall, which will put Howard back at his guard post and also give the Tigers better reserve material for the line positions.

Howard Shifted to Guard.

Billy Booth was at the other tackle today, while Buckner replaced Hills at guard, with Captain Snively on the other side of centre. The problem of the centre of the line will probably be solved by keeping Rutan and Emery at tackles and Howard and Snively at guards. Rutan has not played since the Notre Dame contest, but his work in that game was an outstanding feature.

Dan Caulkins ran the team from quarterback this afternoon in the absence of Dinsmore and at present is rated as the first substitute for the position. The work of Dinsmore was entirely satisfactory to the coaches on Saturday in spite of the misinformation which laid the blame on him for the fumble at punt that gave Harvard its first scoring chance. The fact that the ball actually hit Beattie and was never touched by Dinsmore was overlooked in many instances.

Former Stars Appear.

Announcement was made here that practice sessions would be open to the undergraduates during the latter part of the workouts this week, a ruling which is expected to keep down such overconfidence as was prevalent on the campus before the game last Saturday. At the workout this afternoon several old players were on hand, including Mike Callahan, captain of the 1920 team, which beat Yale 20 to 0; Frank Bergin of the 1909 eleven, and Biffy Lee, captain and tackle of the 1897 combination.

Several new backfield shifts were tried, both Van Gerbig and Legendre being used at the same time, with Johnny Ewing at his usual defensive position. Later on Williams and Crum were used as running backs, while Gibson took Ewing's position. The work of Smith and Stout on the wings has been so satisfactory that no change is expected here, and they went through the whole signal drill, as did also Lloyd Bergen at centre.

The free afternoon gave Net Pos A chance to drill his Omelettes in Eli formations which will be used against the varsity in scrimmage later this week, and several stiff sessions are on the schedule. All of the squad turned out this afternoon with a determination to put in a week of earnest effort and be in shape for the final test of the season in the Yale Bowl on Saturday.

YALE TO SCRIMMAGE TWICE THIS WEEK

Jones Will Send Squad Through Hard Sessions to Produce Better Teamwork.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12.—Yale's regulars, who were nearly stampeded by Maryland University on Saturday, reported today to a man, although Coach Tad Jones assigned a program of merely signal rehearsal and a curtain lecture on individual faults as disclosed in the Oriole contest. He had something to say about the Princeton-Harvard controversy which related to inherent strength only partially disclosed at Tigertown. Jones believes that Yale against Maryland displayed lack of team work, which can be corrected only by playing together. He has changed his orders for the week and will hold scrimmage drill tomorrow and Wednesday, instead of on Wednesday only.

Today's special assignments were given Captain Mallory and Allen Stevens, upon whom Yale relies for kicking service on Saturday. Mallory was sent into the scrubs' line-up to kick goals and Stevens for punting and light scrimmage. Century Milstead, Yale's link star, reported in uniform, but took no part in the practice because of his injured toe. Trainer George Connors promised to have him in fighting trim by Saturday.

Jack Gates and Johnny Field joined the visiting coaches. While coaches regard the Eli line-up as practically settled, physical conditions may play decisive parts in the final selections, with the three best tackles all out of form—Milstead, Miller and Blair. The condition of Neidlinger, last season's whirlwind quarterback, may decide whether he will be used in the opening attack against the Tigers. Whether Hallman or Bingham will get the opening assignment at left end also will be influenced by the condition they are in.

Billiard Results.

H. Kesselman defeated J. Baker by the close score of 25 to 24 in the interstate three-cushion championship at Lawler Brothers' Academy, Brooklyn, last night. Kesselman went out in sixty-three innings and had an unfinished run of 8. Baker's high run was 8, in the special handicap match at 18.3 balkline, Joseph Johana, the national Class B 18.2 champion, playing for 200 points, defeated Joseph Hausch, Brooklyn straight-rail title holder, playing for 150 points, by the score of 200 to 117. The game went to completion in 19 innings. The winner made runs of 39, 37 and 23. Hausch's high run was 35.

P. O'Brien defeated Clarence Hurd in the interstate pocket billiard championship at the Broadway Billiard Academy last night, 125 to 40 in forty-six innings. O'Brien had a high run of 58. Hurd of 11.

Frank Deegan defeated Joe Lean in the Manhattan three-cushion championship at the Recreation Academy last night, 25 to 22. The game went to forty-one innings. Deegan had a high run of 8, Lean of 3.

William Adams defeated Louis Klar in the opening game of the three-cushion tournament at Doyle's Academy last night, 25 to 22 in forty-one innings. The winner's high run was 6, the loser's 5. Tonight W. Washnic will play Jess Lenore.

SIKI LOSES WEIGHT IN TRAINING WORK

Tips Scales at 178, Ten Less Than When He Began Preparation for Norfolk Bout.

FAILS TO SHOW SKILL

Senegalese Does Not Impress Onlookers as He Spars With Partner at Jersey Camp.

After two weeks of training camp life, in which he has devoted most of his attention to light exercise, Battling Siki, Senegalese light-heavyweight, yesterday weighed 178 pounds. The former world's champion tipped the scales at this notch after a seven-round workout at his quarters in Summit, N. J., before local newspapermen.

Siki went through three rounds of rope skipping, one round of light bag punching and three rounds of sparring against Jack Taylor, Indiana negro heavyweight. His weight represented a loss of ten pounds since he started training.

Yesterday afternoon's workout was one of the hardest in which Siki has engaged since he began preparing for his bout against Kid Norfolk, Baltimore negro, to be held in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 20. The Senegalese, whether by design or through a desire to conceal his true fighting ability, did not show impressive form in his workout against Taylor. To many the sparring partner appeared much the better man of the two. Siki showed lightness of foot, but weakness in general boxing form. In trying to land on Taylor's body with right or left he continually left himself wide open for a left jab from Taylor.

At long range Siki's style of battle seemed to be to take a punch in order to land one, but his timing and judgment were not accurate and he missed many punches, while Taylor blocked others. At close quarters Siki did nothing save cover up.

Tom Goodman, who said he was once trainer for Sam Langford, occupies a similar capacity at Siki's camp, which is conducted under the direction of Manager Bob Levy. The latter, admitting a lack of experience in handling boxers, merely regulates Siki's hours and systematizes his activities. Levy agrees with Siki that the boxer knows his own best method of training, and as a consequence the manager does not interfere with the routine of the former titleholder.

Siki plans to work steadily until he has satisfied himself that he is in his best physical condition. He is confident that he can beat Norfolk, but at the same time he does not intend to overlook any detail of his preparation.

Siki has established training quarters in a converted barn, known as Bey's, having moved from the quarters of Freddie Welsh, former world's lightweight champion. Johnny Wilson, former world's middleweight champion, is another member of the boxing fraternity in training at Bey's, and occasionally assists in Siki's workouts. Wilson is training for his bout next Friday night against Pal Reid in Boston.

RUFFALO VICTOR IN RING.

YALE NEWS WARNS TEAM.

Says Princeton and Harvard Will Be Hard to Beat.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 12.—Under the caption, "The First Thirty Minutes," The Yale News today in an editorial on football says:

"With the Maryland game safely tucked away, a tight fit in the treasure chest, the final week of preparation before the Princeton game sets in. From Saturday's struggle, which swept the smile of contentment from many a face on the west side of the Bowl, Yale has learned a valuable lesson, one which has to be relearned every year—nothing can be taken for granted on the gridiron.

"Although the university line did not start at its full strength, there is no belittling Maryland's dazzling attack and stalwart defense, which gave the Blues its closest call of the season. Princeton and Harvard both have an uncanny way of making use of Yale shortcomings. Although neither Army nor Maryland was defeated until the second half, it does not follow that the next two engagements will succumb to the same treatment.

"Princeton, stinging under defeat from Harvard, will let no grass grow under its feet, while the Crimson, despite avowed indifference to the game two weeks hence, will not, as the fanciful Mr. Gundelfinger somewhat possible, 'become so genuinely Christian and compassionate as to fight less strenuously and allow Yale to win.'

"It was said last year that it would be better for Yale if ten yards were cut from each end of the gridiron. Let it not be said this year that the Blue would be more successful were thirty minutes clipped from the forepart of each game."

COWARD IS BEATEN IN SQUASH TOURNEY

VICTOR WINS BY STRATEGY

Outgenerals Opponent and Relies on Placements to Score—Fink beats Hyde and Reaches Final.

The squash tennis season has just begun, but it is doubtful if the year will record a bigger upset than was furnished yesterday when Hewitt Morgan of the Harvard Club defeated Thomas Coward of the Yale Club, national amateur champion in 1922, in the semi-final round of the national Fall scratch tournament at the Harvard Club. After two hours and a half of play that bordered on the sensational Morgan defeated the ex-title holder in five games by the score of 15—7, 17—15, 10—15, 15—13, 15—12. In the other semi-final, R. Earl Fink of the Crescent A. C., the present holder of the championship, defeated F. Van S. Hyde of the Harvard Club, also a former amateur champion, 15—8, 11—15, 15—12, 15—9. The final round will be played tomorrow at 5:15 o'clock.

Morgan, who is well known as a court tennis and racquets player, but who has taken up squash in a serious way only lately, brought about the defeat of Coward after being thwarted in the fourth game and after the Yale star had piled up a commanding lead in the final session. Leading 6—1 at the end of the eighth inning of the fourth game, it seemed that he had the match as good as won. But Coward, who gave indications of having already given his best, made a fine pull-up and ran out the game after it had been set five points, winning at 18—15.

Continuing his winning stride, Coward ran into a big lead of 10—4 in the fifth game and it seemed that he would be the winner. But Morgan simply treated him to a bit of his own medicine by running five points in a single hand and three in the following one, going into the lead and winning the game at 15—12 for the match.

Morgan Plays Easily.

The Harvard representative played squash tennis of a character that is seldom seen during a season. Unlike his opponent, he did not depend upon speed and smashing for his points. Except upon occasion, he played very easily, and at times barely tapped the ball. While Coward was mauling the ball relentlessly and using up his strength, Morgan gave a marvelous exhibition of position play, anticipating his opponent's shots in the prettiest fashion and getting as good results with little effort as did Coward with all his smashing. There were times when the Yale player aced the other with his terrific drives, but usually Morgan was waiting for the ball near the front wall, and shots that against almost any other player would have gone as points availed Coward no advantage whatever.

It was irritating to the former champion to find his best efforts going for naught, and had he been a less stout-hearted player he would have gone to pieces. But in spite of his flagging strength Coward continued to play up, never letting down a bit in the savagery of his stroking and never giving up hope of turning back his steady-going opponent, who might have been engaged in a practice game for all that could be learned from his features. There is no player in the game who has a better court temperament than Morgan. Whichever way the game was going, whether in his favor or against him, he was always the same—quiet, undisturbed, occasionally smiling, never frowning or exclaiming.

Again and again the spectators who crowded the gallery to watch the match were roused to loud applause at the rare beauty of the Harvard man's playing. Before Coward could realise the battle that was facing him, Morgan had run out the opening game at 15—7. The second was an even affair that went to extra length, the game being set 3 points and Morgan winning at 17—15. In the third chapter, as related above, Morgan went into the lead at 6—3, scoring twice in his seventh and eighth hands.

Coward Holds His Own.

Coward held his own for the next five innings, the score standing 10—5 against him at the end of the thirteenth. At this point the Yale player staged his rally, getting 3 points in his sixteenth hand, 1 in the seventeenth and 2 in the eighteenth, and continuing his winning squash until he had won the game at 18—15.

The former titleholder was playing like a streak. He was hitting viciously, getting all over the court to make the most brilliant gets of his opponent's well placed shots and outstanding Morgan in the long rallies that were the order. The Harvard man was hitting into the telltale repeatedly and looked to have outplayed himself. With the score 10—4 against him, Morgan started his rally. He won 5 points in the twelfth inning on a placement and four errors by his opponent, and got 3 more in the thirteenth, putting him into the lead. Coward was a defeated man now. He fought hard to stem the tide, but he did not have it in him to overhaul his implacable opponent, who returned everything and, then caught Coward out of position for the winning shot in rally after rally.

Fink beat Hyde at the latter's own game, outplaying and outpacing him. The Crescent star used the same changing tactics that his opponent did and was a great deal steadier in his play. Hyde hit an unusual number of balls into the telltale, but many of these errors were compelled, for Fink placed his shots so low that the Harvard man was unable to make his strokes from the best position and was forced into faulty stroking. Fink angled his shots well, also, cutting the ball deep and adding to the difficulties of his opponent.

In the opening game Fink ran into a lead of 8—4. He increased it to 12—4 and then had to work hard to get his next three points, winning at 15—9. He clearly outplayed his opponent and deserved to win by so big a margin. In the second game the champion ran into a lead of 9—1. Hyde started a big rally at this point that did not stop until he had won at 15—11. Frequent changes of pace and skillful placing of his shots gave him the edge. The third game was a see-saw affair. Fink went into the lead at 6—1. Hyde pulled up to 5—6. Fink increased his lead to 11—6. Hyde pulled up again, only to lose at 15—12. The Crescent star had things pretty much his own way in the fourth game and won by the comfortable margin of 15—12 for the match.

'cDermott Is Recovering; May Resume Golf Play Soon

Johnny McDermott, according to word received yesterday from the Pennsylvania State Hospital at Norristown, Pa., where he has been a patient for several years, is now well on the way to recovery. His improvement of late has been so fast that hope is entertained that he may in the near future be able to re-enter the golf lists, in which he was once almost invincible. A few years ago McDermott was rated as the most remarkable golf professional that America had ever produced. He won the American open championship successively in 1911 and 1912, a feat that only one other player—Willie Anderson—has ever been able to accomplish. A few weeks ago Walter Hagen visited McDermott at Norristown and the latter tried a few golf shots on the hospital grounds. After watching McDermott play, Hagen said that his skill had not been impaired and that he was "as good as ever" in spite of his long absence from the links.

CANN SUCCEEDS THORP.

Former Violet Star Is Appointed Basketball Coach at N. Y. U.

Graduate Manager Al Nixon of New York University announced yesterday that Howard G. Cann had been appointed to succeed Ed Thorp as basketball coach for the coming season.

Thorp found that the pressure of business made it impossible for him to continue in the position he has held with great success since 1910. In his first year at N. Y. U. he turned out a team that was considered one of the best court combinations in the country. In 1919 his team annexed the National A. A. U. championship in the elimination tournament played at Atlanta, Ga. Two of its members, Cann and Paul Mooney, were both honored with berths on the all-American team and Cann was presented with a loving cup for being "the greatest individual basketball player in the world." Cann was a three-letter man at the Heights and was a member of the United States Olympic track team in 1917.

Cann has called for candidates for this year's team to appear at the University Heights court tomorrow afternoon. He will have the entire varsity team of last year back, and with the addition of several men from last year's sterling yearling combination the prospects are exceedingly bright.

"Know the Great Southwest"

1889, A Prairie—Today, A Metropolis

SINCE the city's birth on April 22, 1889, Oklahoma City has attracted permanently 135,000 of your former neighbors. Since 1907, 100,000 have come. Today Oklahoma City is the metropolis of a state larger than any east of the Mississippi. It supplies a population of two millions, within eight hours by rail.

The growth of Oklahoma City during the past two years has been greater than during any similar period of the city's history. Today more homes, more business, more people, more money are coming to Oklahoma City than ever before.

Being at once the capital, the geographical, commercial and financial center and metropolis of a most marvelous state, surrounded by an agricultural industry whose 192,000 farms make Oklahoma the eighth agricultural state; and by mineral resources, as yet practically untouched—the growth of the last 34 years is only a faint promise of what the next quarter century is sure to bring.

A PROMISING LEAD.

Secretary MELLON'S outline of plans for reducing and revising Federal taxes is said to have the hearty approval of President COOLIDGE. That must be so in the nature of the case. If the President in his message to Congress were to go counter to his Secretary of the Treasury, he would soon be having to look around for a new one. On the other hand, if he takes up the Mellon program, urging its enactment into law, and puts the whole driving power of the Administration behind it, Mr. COOLIDGE may easily find that he has got an issue of commanding appeal to the country. It may prove to be exactly the kind of lead which the new President needs to assume if he is going further to strengthen his hold upon the people.

Languid critics may say that there is nothing inspiring in humdrum projects to enforce governmental economy and lighten the burdens of taxation. But they can say this only if they lack the imagination to perceive what the Mellon proposal actually means. It would lighten the demands upon millions of purses hard to fill. It would not only do away with oppressive taxes. It would lower the cost of living. It would release capital for productive industry and enterprise of all kinds. This would result in the fuller employment of labor, the multiplying of goods in common consumption, and probably would bring about a period of great and legitimate expansion of industry and commerce never surpassed in the United States. Is there nothing in that prospect to allure? Could politicians possibly find a program which carried more promise of benefit to great masses of the people?

It will, of course, be said by prejudiced Western agitators that Secretary MELLON'S plan is one to relieve the rich from taxes at the expense of the poor. They would do well to examine his entire program before jumping to so rash a conclusion. The proposal is to abolish millions in taxes which fall directly and most heavily upon members of the middle and lower classes. Nor can it be forgotten that the reduction of the taxation of well-to-do people will mean in many cases that there is, by so much, less to be added to the cost of commodities in ordinary use. Cutting down public expenditure always makes larger private expenditure possible. Lightening the taxes of manufacturers and business men means reducing the prices which the consumer has to pay. Moreover, Secretary MELLON condemns the present system of very high surtaxes on large incomes for the reason that in practice it has been shown to be a dead failure. It does not yield the revenue which is necessary, and at the same time drives capital into tax-exempt securities and away from fruitful and widely beneficial channels of investment. What the Secretary proposes is to tax the rich at a lower rate so as to get out of them, in reality, more money for the Treasury. Lower percentages will furnish larger totals. All this is elementary to men experienced or expert in the theory and actual workings of taxation. Though it be anathema to radicals who do not even know their own business.

Secretary MELLON has given a most promising lead to the thought of the country. But it will have to be followed up vigorously if anything is to come of it. Not only will there be need of strong backing by the President, but business men everywhere, bankers and manufacturers, chambers of commerce and trade associations and labor unions, should lose no time in letting Congress know how wise and full of promise they believe Secretary MELLON'S plan to be. Representatives and Senators at Washington should not be left to listen solely to the complaints of ignorant and selfish demagogues. The voice of the solid interests of the nation should make itself heard in the Capitol. Congressmen are very apt to shrink away from a leadership which seems to them too bold to be expedient. Senator SMOOT is already quoted as saying that it is hopeless to look for any revision of taxes during the coming session of Congress. Admittedly, it is hopeless if nobody will fight for it. And even if the needed legislation cannot be had at once, at least the people can be instructed in what ought to be done, and the great issue carried into the next Presidential campaign in a way to compel discussion and rouse sober thought and win votes.

We have known electoral campaigns in which financial questions were the centre of debate, and they were not dull campaigns. The people can be roused to a keen interest in public finance when they are shown how closely it comes home to their daily life. What might not happen to vivify next year's election if the Republicans could develop leaders and speakers such as they had in the different campaigns against unsound currency? Taxation is not merely a repellent set of figures; it is something which touches every family and fireside. All that is necessary is for a thoroughly equipped champion, such as GARFIELD was in greenback days, to compel the attention of great audiences and to make the lowering of taxes and the relief of industry seem to the popular mind topics that glow with vital concern to all.

AN ARMISTICE DAY HOPE.

In Massachusetts on Armistice Day Judge CLARKE said to the people of that State that it was not worth while to write to Senators LODGE and WALSH in support of the World Court, because they were "hopelessly wrong-headed," but he urged them to let President COOLIDGE know "where Massachusetts stands" in this "grave matter." It might, however, be well to give these Senators the same information. Especially should Senator LODGE be made conscious of the sentiment not only in Massachusetts but in all the other States with regard to the World Court; for the resolution in his committee will probably not be forced out, except by a public opinion supporting President COOLIDGE in his pledge to carry forward the policies to which President HARDING was committed. In the closing paragraphs of the latter's "Farewell Address" he wrote his last will and testament in this cause:

> A nation which believes in the reign of law, preferable to the rule of force, must subscribe to an agency for law's just construction. * * * I most devoutly wish the United States to do its full part to voice a national conscience toward securing the provision and strengthening the agencies for the peaceful settlement of international disputes. * * * The big thing is the firm establishment of the Court and our cordial adherence thereto. All else is mere detail.

All objections to the Court find their source and sum in hostility to the League. But the plan advocated by Secretary HUGHES assures independence of the League. It is the one step toward international justice and the elimination of some at least of the usual causes of war which it is possible for us to take not only with the united cordial welcome of all the important nations of the earth but also with an overwhelmingly favorable "deliberate public opinion" at home. It is the "one tangible object of the nation today," said former Attorney General WICKERSHAM, toward which all may press.

If in the memories and the renewed hopes of the Fifth Armistice Day our country shall make its early way into the Court, this day (which was celebrated expectantly by millions as "World Court Sunday" also) will have unique and worthy distinction along with the day of two years ago, which became the eve of the Washington Conference for the Limitation of Armament. It is our next clear and compelling national and world duty.

ROYAL COMPLICATIONS IN GERMANY.

Despite the reported apathetic reception of the Crown Prince on his return to his Silesian estate, his going home has thrown a further element into the German muddle. That he will be a menace does not at present seem probable. He may even provoke dissension among the monarchists. He will, of course, be the centre of intrigues. It has been accepted for more than a month that his partisans were counting upon his return. Former officers of the Guard were known to be favorable to Him, and it had even been rumored that the industrialists were not unwilling to use him in their game against France.

Yet the Hohenzollerns are not popular throughout Germany, and there is too little political cohesion for any one group long to maintain the upper hand. The Bavarian "putsch," with its undercurrent of jealousy between the Wittelsbachs and the Hohenzollerns, is an indication of this. Furthermore, there are groups of intelligent persons in Germany who realize that a Hohenzollern in power would do much to unite the Allies in opposition to Germany. Were the Crown Prince to announce a program of reparations and an acceptance of the Versailles Treaty, and were there to be, besides, clear indications of a return to any form of active resistance, the oft expressed fears of M. POINCARE about German intentions would be more than verified.

That STRESEMANN was responsible for the Crown Prince's return, in order to play him against Bavaria, seems doubtful. The Chancellor has plenty of troubles of his own without wishing to be burdened with conspirators who are certain to think more of their own advancement than they are of Germany. Doubtless STRESEMANN may be able to use the Crown Prince as a new excuse for defying the Allies. But his game would seem to point to his making for himself the role of Germany's strong man—a part which many Germans would like to have him play.

In watching the reports of the monarchist movement in Germany it should not be forgotten that the two fiascos of the former Emperor CHARLES in trying to regain the Hungarian throne show clearly the blindness of monarchist leaders and the dangers which beset any movement aiming to bring back the good old days by re-establishing the old order. The royalists easily deceive themselves as to their strength and the soundness of their plans. They also fail to grasp the reaction upon the outside world. All of this stupidity, and more, is implied in the dispatch from Brussels announcing the impending restoration of the former Kaiser himself!

LABOR NEWSPAPERS.

The suspension of The New York Leader, after a struggle for existence kept up for three months, is, in our opinion, to be regretted. For it is desirable that labor unions and the Labor Party should have a distinct organ of their own in the daily press. The Leader made a valiant effort to publish a newspaper of general interest, though with an avowed and definite partisan polidy, but had not been able, even with the aid of the fund subscribed for it at the beginning of its venture, to meet the expenses of publication in this city. The fundamental difficulty, of course, was that, as in the case of that other labor newspaper, The Daily Herald of London, the unions were ready to give it hearty approval but not effective patronage. It was able to double the circulation of its predecessor, The Call, while improving upon that narrow and bitter publication in many ways, but it had not and could not summon the financial resources to continue. Its disappearance may be only temporary. In its last issue the hope is expressed that it may resume after a few months. So excellent a type of labor newspaper ought to be kept up if possible.

FIGHTING FOR TOLERANCE.

Backed by an imposing number of college Presidents, some of whom may pay for their courage with the loss of their jobs, the National Vigilance Association has been formed to fight the Ku Klux Klan. The Klan is what Mr. WAYNE B. WHEELER calls a "pressure group," an organized bloc of voters which scares public officials into obeying its orders. The Vigilance Association is also going to be a pressure group and hopes to coerce legislators into passing laws against the Klan. The Klan is an intolerant body, and the Vigilance Association does not propose to tolerate any intolerance. The Klansmen regard themselves as the last hope of true Americanism, threatened by the Knights of Columbus and the Learned Elders of Zion, and the National Vigilance Association is likewise going to protect the Constitution and American principles against the Klan.

It seems impossible for two citizens of this enlightened Republic to get together for so simple a purpose as eating lunch without forming an organization, electing officers and starting an educational campaign on the principles of Americanism. Yet one may doubt if this is a good way to fight the Klan. To cure the evil of the break-up of society into hostile militant groups another militant group is formed. The stronger it becomes the more likely it is to increase the cohesiveness of the Klansmen. Leave the Klan alone and it may presently drop to pieces of its own weight.

That seems an optimistic prediction, yet it has been the experience of Russian Communists and Italian Fascisti that to maintain party discipline in the ranks of the oligarchy the oligarchy must be kept as small as possible. The more recruits, the more difference of opinion. MUSSOLINI took in all the "joiners" he could get while he was fighting his way to the top. But once on top he hastened to expel thousands of members of his party. The immense growth of the Klan is due chiefly to the zeal of organizers who are paid so much for every scalp they bring in. The more joiners, the more money. That is not the way to promote harmony in the organization, as the shooting of one of Emperor SIGISMUND'S vassals by one of Wizard EVANS'S acolytes has already shown. The larger the Klan grows the less dangerous it is likely to be; for it must include more and more "suckers" who parted with their ten dollars in a moment of weakness and regretted it next day, more and more men who have ideas of their own and will not swallow the lunatic ravings of the Klan press. But give the Klansmen a hostile organization to fight and the faint-hearted may find their interest reviving.

There are laws enough now against the Klan's illegal activities. Why pass more? The Klan spirit will be beaten not by the organization of an imitation Klan with worthy motives but by citizens who think of themselves as mere citizens, and not as members of any inner circle charged with the protection of American ideals.

ACTING MAYOR HULBERT'S WAY.

In an informative manner Acting Mayor MURRAY HULBERT discussed in a letter published in THE TIMES yesterday several questions related to the amendments that were adopted at the election last Tuesday. The majority for the increase of pay for policemen and firemen was nearly 400,000. Mr. HULBERT estimates that the added expenditure in 1924 will be $1,560,000 for the police and $975,000 for the firemen. He points out that the Controller in issuing the necessary revenue bonds may use his judgment, or, to put it in another way, no limitation is fixed. "So there need be no doubt," says the Acting Mayor, "that the policemen and firemen will receive the increase voted them from and after Jan. 1 next without any additional legislation." He approves of a proposal that the Corporation Counsel draft an act making the increase of salaries for 1924 chargeable against the taxes of that year, because, in the regular course, provision for the redemption of the revenue bonds issued during 1924 would ordinarily be made in the 1925 budget, which would then have to carry extra payments for two years, amounting to about $5,000,000.

Mr. HULBERT refers to the impression that the passage of the Home Rule amendment confers increased powers on the Board of Aldermen. But it rests with the Legislature to give it effect. The Legislature will have its own ideas on that subject. Home rule does not mean authority without safeguards in the public interest. An inspection last Winter of the havoc of the fire on Ward's Island impressed Mr. HULBERT with the necessity of constructing fireproof hospital buildings with the latest safety appliances and modern conveniences. The people voted by a very large majority to authorize an appropriation of $50,000,000 for the reconstruction of the State charitable institutions. As the rebuilding of the hospital on Ward's Island and the renovation of other such institutions in the city are pressing, Mr. HULBERT hopes that the Legislature will authorize the City of New York "to issue corporate stock outside of the pay-as-you-go act" to make our own charitable institutions secure.

A matter of great importance is the building of new schools. At the present time 152,415 pupils are on part time. Sites have been selected, but new schools are not being built, nor are old ones being replaced. One trouble is that the viewing by the courts of existing structures for demolition, as the law requires, proceeds very slowly. However, the assignment of special Justices to make the inspections and issue the necessary decrees would be a remedy. In addressing himself to the people of New York upon these questions that affect their welfare and deeply concern the taxpayers Mr. HULBERT has set an example of public spirit and good sense that they cannot fail to appreciate. His method is a pleasant relief from the turbulence of partisan politics.

TAINTED GERMAN CAPITAL.

It is the misfortune of Germany that the commercial methods of her big industrialists are disliked. This is true, whether we are to believe or not the story that STINNES'S son is visiting the United States for the purpose of embarking his father in the American oil industry in competition with Standard Oil. A desire to protect American capital is not the reason for failing to welcome STINNES'S wealth. The trouble is that it smells of something worse than oil, having been heaped up in a manner offensive to the universal business conscience, in evasion of German laws and by the ruthless exploitation of German workingmen.

Before the war STINNES had affiliations with French makers of war supplies. It was a singular combination, but the dispatches say that STINNES never allows politics to interfere with business. He has enriched himself by the ruin of his country while expatriating German capital, all of which is pledged for the payment of reparations. If he had not sent his funds abroad, or had not left in foreign lands the profits on his sales, he would have shared the fate of other Germans. If he had invested at home his accumulating cash, it would have lost its value as the mark depreciated until it is so worthless that now even robbers will not take it from the pockets of their victims. This policy is odious alike to France and to the Germans who are starving.

The cabled report is that reputable business men of other countries are the associates of STINNES in this venture. They will need long spoons if they are to sup with him, and even so they may not escape experience such as has embittered Germans against Germans who have enriched themselves by flight from the mark. It would be gratifying if some way could be found to apply all such funds to the payment of reparations. The least others can do is to decline partnership with plans supported by capital not cleared of suspicion.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Never Again Will Lead.

Two men who have been demanding recognition as the leaders and exponents of causes considered by their admirers great have made of late the mistake, probably fatal to their reputations and ambitions, of consulting common sense instead of the higher sense which wiser men than these know how to substitute for it.

First it was EAMON DE VALERA, self-styled President of a non-existent republic. While making one of the impassioned speeches he suddenly found himself in the sort of danger into which his exhortations have driven so many of his followers. Bullets, for once, were flying close to him, and instantly he threw himself flat on the platform whence he had been inciting others to count their lives as nothing, if only Ireland might be independent. In that posture he remained until the soldiers sent to arrest him seized and took him away to jail. Some say he fainted as well as prostrated himself, but that may be an embroidery of the tale by his enemies.

Now it is General LUDENDORFF, the man of blood and iron, so harsh and stern, and looking the soldierly part so well. He, too, when there was a chance of getting shot, fell to the ground as promptly as a scared peasant, just conscripted, would have done it. And, after the firing stopped, he submitted to the humiliation of arrest with as much docility as such a peasant would have shown.

It is not reported that LUDENDORFF fainted; a story did get out that he had committed suicide, but seemingly he did not, though in Germany that was "indicated," as the doctors say, as the right course for a man like him to follow after such a failure.

Heroism Was Demanded.

Of course, it is no proof of personal cowardice to take cover or to lie down when nothing is to be gained by remaining exposed to bullets. Many and many brave soldiers of all ranks from commanding Generals to raw recruits have done it—have been reproved, as they should have been, when they failed to do it. As for LUDENDORFF, in the earlier part of the war, and when it was his military duty, he exposed himself to fire as often and as bravely as anybody in the German Army, or in any other, for that matter. But it was a different matter, both for him and for DE VALERA, when they became the embodiment of a cause. Then they both were under an obligation to take and keep heroic attitudes, and it is not heroic, not inspiring, to be cautious. They should have forgotten their own perils, or have seen in them only an opportunity to express devotion.

Nobody can serve a cause better than by becoming its martyr, but these men want to live, in apparent disregard of the conditions that may be imposed. It is not for such as they to endure defeat as an alternative to success, and the dead always are victorious. At any rate the dead cannot be humiliated, and they can be an inspiration to others more fortunate but not more brave.

DE VALERA and LUDENDORFF are alive, but they might as well be dead, so far as the exercise of further leadership is concerned.

Exploration Still Has Rewards.

That there still are wild places in the world, and opportunities for explorers to find tribes hitherto unvisited and undescribed, was shown twice in yesterday's dispatches. One traveler found in the Far North, beyond and to the east of Hudson Bay, a group of Eskimos who only once, and that many years ago, had been in contact with white men. They have remained in the bow-and-arrow stage, and, after the manner of so many primitive peoples, have no history except what they preserve and hand down from generation to generation in the form of what their discoverer calls poems. All of them, he says, are poets—able to make songs and to sing them.

The other find was in tropical New Guinea, that grim and terrible island where savagery seems to be more ferocious than anywhere else, and but little is known of the vast inland regions. It was far from the sea that a bold invader says that he came across a race living in what seemed to be complete isolation from the rest of the world. From their features the explorer made the brave guess that they were one of Israel's "lost tribes." It is a guess that has been made at least half a hundred times by other explorers in other lands, and doubtless it is as true in this case as before. They, too, are in the bow-and-arrow era, but have advanced to the point of dipping their arrowheads in deadly poison. They are head-hunters, also, like most of New Guinea's amiable inhabitants.

Stopped Cars And Jay Walking.

In the list of street killings and mutilations as compiled by Special Deputy Police Commissioner COLLINS as head of the Bureau of Safety, "jay walking"—crossing in the middle of blocks—stands first by far among the causes of accidents, with 281 dead and 6,784 injured. That being so, it evidently behooves people to give up this habit, for it is evident that drivers of motor cars and trucks have come to feel that only at street crossings are they under any obligation to avoid the running down of pedestrians. This is bad law as well as bad morals, of course; but there is no consolation for the man run down to have his last thought one of resentment that his indubitable and superior rights in any part of the public highways have been ignored and violated.

That the responsibility of the police is greater as regards people who use the regular crossings than for those who "jay walk" is unquestionable. One could wish that they would show greater energy and severity than they do in enforcing the ordinances that forbid the passing of stopped street cars by motor vehicles of any kind. Too many drivers in both city and suburbs pay but slight attention to these regulations, and too often the offenders hurry on unidentified.

Would it not be possible to get more assistance from the motormen and conductors of the street cars in bringing these criminals to justice? They have a good chance to get the plate numbers of the automobiles that pass them at the prohibited times, and by turning in reports to the police for action they could make this particular offense almost as dangerous to the reckless drivers as it is to people trying to take the street cars or to quit them.

A SONG OF MOUNTAINS.

The mountains vast my refuge are,
My strength and solace sure are they;
I sight their grizzly peaks afar,
And from my heart care falls away;
I lie their granite arms within,
And once again my soul is free;
From everlasting have they been,
To everlasting shall they be!

Soothed by their solemn stillnesses,
Rest thou, my heart, and cease thy pain!
Cast off, my soul, thy illnesses,
Lest thou their mysteries profane!
Once more their peace shall dwell within
My heart, once more my soul be free;
From everlasting have they been,
To everlasting shall they be!

NEW YORK OF THE FUTURE.

If It Is to Be a Beautiful City Plans Should Be Made Now.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reading your recent editorial article on a brobdingnagian city one has the growing conviction that the great American cities, and New York in particular, will evolve a great new and unprecedented architecture as characteristic and epoch-making as any architecture of past civilizations. The eternal craving of man for beauty is gradually creating esthetic forms of buildings in harmony with modern conditions of fabrication and erection. At first the forms were in imitation and variation of classic or medieval models, then gradually in the esthetic adaptation to the new materials and to the bolder methods of construction.

New York is destined to become in that respect the supreme city of our age; perhaps of all ages. Nowhere in the known world has there ever existed such a diversity of grand background for a mighty city; large expanses of sylvan lands and lovely lakes; broad, deep rivers along dark granite cliffs and wide ocean fronts. In combination with it the never-resting life in the canyons between titanic buildings and towers. The gigantic beautiful bridges, carrying vast loads of traffic, the vistas of the harbor with thousands of ships of all sizes, the brilliancy of the streets at night, the never-ceasing hum of a vast, busy population. All this overawes the first beholder with a sense of colossal creative and driving power. And it is this feeling which forms the characteristic undercurrent for the overpowering American city architecture, possible of creation only in the modern combination of stone and steel on an unprecedented scale.

We hear not infrequently criticism of the unreisted architecture of our great buildings, of their not always happy borrowings from esthetic ancient and medieval forms, of their gross individualism, destructive of beautiful ensemble and harmony and of many unsightly spots. A good deal of which is true. But this indicates merely a stage in the evolution of an architecture, the growing infantile period of self-consciousness, struggling to find a mode of expression for new conditions, not yet quite successful in having found a satisfactory one, but on the way to it. But along with it there is in the larger autochthonal architecture of the bulky mass, growing up without systematic order or premeditated design, but which in the accidental grouping and contrasts of forms, of height, of silhouette, light and shadows exemplifies on one hand the unsophisticated truth and on the other hand the colossality of power of a great and mighty civilization.

As you say, we are still in the days of early manhood. Those who remember, as the writer does, New York as it was fifty years ago can perhaps better judge what the next fifty years and the years thereafter will do for it, and that there is urgent need for systematic planning for the growth of the city.

The renowned beauty of several great European cities is not accidental. Modern Paris had as its master planner Baron Haussmann under Napoleon III. Modern Vienna grew up to be a superb city by direction of the lover and patron of arts, Emperor Francis Joseph. Budapest, with its exquisite architecture, commenced to emerge under the guidance of famous architects from the village stage only sixty years ago. The growth of all the greater German cities was systematically planned by experts. So was that of St. Petersburg, modern Rome and other European cities, which enchant visitors with the harmony and beauty of their buildings and their broad boulevards, plazas and parks.

Washington is the only city in America that had the advantage of early architectural planning and owing to that fact, as is well known, it is possible to fit its numerous monumental buildings into a harmonious whole.

Wealth invested in civic art is the most useful and permanent of all wealth. The treasures of art and architecture stored up in Italy for centuries have become the Mecca of art lovers from the whole world. It is an investment of past commercial wealth which still brings millions of money to that country and gives happiness to millions outside of its own boundaries.

So New York, which is already the Mecca of wealth of the whole world, is destined to become also the Mecca for modern art. At present it is only at the beginning of it.

Commercial New York has been growing too fast to bethink itself of proper esthetic garments. Yet the time has surely arrived for systematic planning on a large scale for a city as it will be when twenty and more million people will have their being in it. It should not have only one but several civic and artistic centres. It should have a grand temple for music and opera set in a frame of becoming beauty and distinction, in place of the old, unsightly barn which serves now for the most gorgeous operatic performances in the world. The finest location for an art centre would undoubtedly be on the top of the Palisades opposite Riverside Park, and accessible by a wide and beautiful bridge over the mighty Hudson River. Other monumental buildings would soon follow and give an impetus to the growth of metropolitan New York in size and beauty, unparalleled in the history of civilization.

The Russell Sage Foundation has as its object a "New York Supreme." Its studies of housing, feeding, sanitation and transportation for a growing population will unquestionably serve as a most useful guide. But these are dry technical features which evoke no enthusiasm.

At the meeting of the Foundation in the auditorium of the Engineering Building about a year and a half ago, the speeches of a number of orators dwelling upon the purposes of the Foundation were received with languid appreciation. But when Mrs. August Belmont toward the end got up and in a brilliant impromptu address spoke of "New York Beautiful" and to be be more beautiful, the whole audience was on its feet at once and responded with a tumultuous acclaim. Her sentiments, like a sesame harp, set vibrating those of every one present. It is a gratifying fact that the sentiment for beauty in public works is as a rule more stirring in the unsophisticated common people than with the rich, who can gratify it in their own homes.

Just as Abraham Lincoln had abiding faith in the sense of justice of the common people, so it must be recognized that it is the everyday crowd who, when appealed to, have a deep innate love for beauty, for poetry, for art, for good music, for everything that has in it the heavenward swing of the soul. Art of the people, for the people and by the people, under sympathetic and able leadership, is as safe a truism for art as it is for government.

Curiously enough, we see this love appealed to by one of our subway corporations, which ordinarily we thought to be sordid. Yet if it were only selfishness, wanting more business which has dirtied this human element and is appealing to it through placards in its cars, no fault should be found with it, but only praise. The placards read, "It Is Great to be a New Yorker." So it truly is, and let us hope, will be more so in the future.

COUNT APPONYI'S FAREWELL MESSAGE.

What, In His Opinion, Is Wrong With the Peace Treaties, and Why They Should Be Enforced as Liberally as Possible.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Before leaving America, may I claim the hospitality of your columns to put into clear evidence the object of my visit, the international program of my own country which I tried to explain to numerous audiences, but which I should like to be understood, too, by those more numerous still whom my spoken words could not reach?

I openly and severely criticised the peace treaties, more especially the Trianon treaty, as not having fulfilled the object for which America took arms: to give to the world a peace, permanent and secure. I pointed out that the situation of Europe is more unsafe, that there are more probabilities of conflict than were given by the pre-war constructions, because the new ones, arbitrarily invented without regard to the will of the people concerned, do still less correspond to natural laws than the former ones did. I concluded that the work of peace is still to be done, that, in due time, a revision of the treaties will prove a necessity. But I added that times are not yet ripe for this, that it is not a problem of present practical politics, that the actual program can have no other basis than the existing treaties.

I may as well quote the words of my first address on this subject, lest I should be charged with having been frightened by certain criticisms into abandoning my original position. I said:

"But, though I frankly own to the conviction that a radical cure of world evils is unthinkable without revision of the peace treaties, I am perfectly aware of the fact that the times are not yet ripe and probably for many a year to follow will not be ripe, even for a mention of that solution. It would be more than human if those who framed the peace treaties should be ready to confess to their failure so few years after their conclusion. It would be absolutely impossible to get anything like a general agreement as to the question of revision on principle and still less in its details. Raised as a practical problem now, it would only lead to imminent conflicts and entangle matters still more than they are already entangled. So I have to point out that ultimate aim, but at the same time I disclaim every intention to deal with it as with an immediate aim.

"For a long time to come we have to put up with such evils as cannot be remedied radically without attacking peace treaties, and we have to find palliatives and soporifics which make life bearable and pave the way to that better understanding between nations which is the condition of radical peace work of any sort. We have, therefore, to consider the evils afflicting Europe and the remedies which can be applied to them within the limits of the given situation.

"We Hungarians more especially openly disclaim any intention whatsoever to use violent means for the subversion of existing treaties. We trust time and experience to pave the way to a peaceful solution of the problems they have created. What we claim, until then, is only as much that the very few clauses of those same treaties which contain something in our favor should be executed with the same stringency expected from us in the execution of burdensome ones. And what we expect more is that the obligation to observe the treaties should be equal for all nations, that there should not be any nation who can dispense with it, more especially with regard to those treaties concerning the protection of minorities which are our only safeguard against the dissection of much of our racial substance."

I have not much to add to these words. I have only to complete them by stating that the non-enforced enactment of the peace treaties on the fair execution of which we insist, as we certainly have the right to do, are chiefly these: Minority protection, an open way to the sea, self-Government of Czechs in Transylvania and Ukrainians in Czechoslovakia, efficient activity of the International River Commission, general disarmament. We may add our wish to establish regular economic relations with the neighbor States.

I do not see how or on what grounds this program can be objected to. Certainly not on account of our—let us say for the present—theoretical standpoint concerning the peace treaties. It is in case we should declare ourselves satisfied with them that we could indeed be considered as suspicious characters, because that would be a manifest lie, which it would be impossible for any one who knows something of national psychology to believe.

That was the position I took, and, though not on a mission, though not in possession of a mandate, I can boldly assert to be, with respect to the above statements, the spokesman of the enormous majority of the Hungarian people.

ANCIENT IDEAS OF ATOMS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit a constant reader to express sincere thanks for your excellent reports of Dr. Bohr's lectures at New Haven on atomic action and structure.

Reference in to-day's editorial, "Touring the Atom," to Lucretius as an atomist may be objected to by some students. It is said, "But neither he nor physicists nor chemists until this last century thought of the atom as other than the smallest, indivisible basic particle of matter, entering into the making of the molecular and ponderable substances." Now, is this deduction warranted? Lucretius gives evidence of decided pantheistic leanings, as witness this Vedantic thought:

Omnis enim per se divom natura necesse est
Immortali aeve summa cum pace frutator.

Almost five centuries B. C. Leucippus, the instructor of Democritus, maintained that space was filled eternally with atoms actuated by a ceaseless motion, the latter generating in due course of time, when those atoms aggregated, rotatory motion through mutual collisions producing lateral movements. Epicurus and Lucretius taught the same, only adding to the lateral motion of the atoms the idea of affinity—an occult teaching. "Affinity" implies intelligence, of a sort; thus, Lucretius considered an elemental atom a soul; not necessarily a disembodied soul, but a jiva, as the Hindus call it, a centre of potential vitality, with latent intelligence in it. This is far from the materialistic conception which your editorial suggests.

Interesting in this connection is a brief quotation from "The Secret Doctrine," by H. P. Blavatsky (See original edition, 1888, Vol. I., pp. 567-568.):

"Modern physics, while borrowing from the ancients their atomic theory, forgot one point, the most important of the doctrine; hence they got only the husks. * * * They left behind, in the adoption of physical atoms, the suggestive fact that from Anaxagoras down to Epicurus, the Roman Lucretius, and finally even to Galileo, all those philosophers believed more or less in animated atoms, not in invisible specks of so-called 'brute' matter. Rotatory motion was generated, in their views, by larger (read, more divine and pure) atoms forcing downward other atoms; the lighter ones being thrust simultaneously upward. * * * No ancient philosopher, not even the Jewish Kabalists, ever dissociated spirit from matter or vice versa. Everything originated in the one, and, proceeding from the one, must finally return to the one. * * * atoms and souls having been synonomous in the language of the initiates. * * * Even Epicurus, the model atheist and materialist, knew and believed so much in the ancient wisdom that he taught that the soul (entirely distinct from immortal spirit when the former is anabrined latent in it, as it is in every atomic speck) was composed of a fine, tender essence, formed from the smoothest, roundest and finest atoms."

Where is the dividing line between physics and metaphysics?

Musical Criticism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Please allow one of your Middle West subscribers to express her appreciation of the musical criticisms of H. C. Colles which you are now giving the readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES. It is indeed a joy to read the work of a man who considers music as an art and can so interpret it to others instead of an intellectual analysis of a musical program, which leaves the reader cold and bored.

Moreover, Mr. Colles's perceptions range swiftly over a large field of incidents, all relevant to the special occasion, thereby adding richness and atmosphere to the chief subject and leaving the reader with a vivid sense of having been "among those present."

WATER COLORS EXHIBITION.

Brooklyn Museum Also to Show Drawings by Aubrey Beardsley.

The Brooklyn Museum announces a special exhibition of water colors, pastels and drawings by contemporary artists to be opened to the public on Tuesday, Nov. 20, preceded by an afternoon reception and private view on Monday, Nov. 19, for the members of the Museum and their friends. In connection with this exhibition there will also be shown a collection of more than eighty original drawings by Aubrey Beardsley which have never before been exhibited in this country and which have been brought here personally by John Lane of London, who published the famous "Yellow Book" for which many of these drawings were originally contributions.

Together with these will be shown many works by other noted artists of the '90s, among whom are Randolph Caldecott, Kate Greenaway, Leach, Tenniel, Charles Keene, Robert Spence, Lawrence Housman, Alfred Stevens, Robert Anning Bell, Alfred Brennan, L. Raven Hill, Phil May, Walter Sickert and A. S. Hartrick, and also an extensive collection of books and prints and an original drawing by Walter Crane, from the collection of Mrs. George L. Patterson. Another feature of the exhibition will be a large collection of bronzes by Rodin from the well-known private collection of Edgar J. Hesselts, Esq.

The exhibition will include more than four hundred pictures, and special care has been taken to invite the works of Brooklyn artists, whose contributions constitute a practically new group, the members of which are in many cases but little known to the local public. Among the better-known contributing painters are John Singer Sargent, Joseph Pennell, George Luks, Jerome Myers, Howard Giles, George Elmer Browne, George Pearse Ennis, Ernest Roth, the late Dudley Murgatt, Edward Vance Warren, McDonald Wright, Max Weber, Abraham Walkowitz, Georgia O'Keefe, and Thomas H. Benton, together with works by various French, English, German and Dutch artists. The aim has been to assemble a collection which shall be new and different in spirit and which shall form a true embodiment of contemporary viewpoints.

Why the Christmas Seals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Despite a continued slight decrease in the tuberculosis death rate of 4 per cent. in this city so far this year, it is a sad truth that this treacherous, insidious and needless scourge took 4,376 victims here between Jan. 1 and Oct. 1—and the death toll is still rolling up.

Furthermore, according to the Department of Health registration, there were, on Sept. 30, 27,455 other people attacked by the disease, of whom 14,420 were residents of the Borough of Manhattan, 2,837 of the Bronx, 7,497 of Brooklyn, 1,582 of Queens and 319 of Richmond.

Tuberculosis spares no place and it respects no age. Of the 27,455 now attacked, 205 are children under 5 years of age, 1,736 are school children between 5 and 15 years of age and the remaining 25,466 others are at the most productive adult period of life.

Under such circumstances it is plain that the fight must be kept up in order that the public may be protected.

Between Dec. 1 and Christmas we shall conduct our annual sale of Christmas seals, the proceeds of which will be practically our sole reliance for funds with which to carry on our work during the next year.

Announcement of this sale will be made again as Dec. 1 draws nearer; but meanwhile—and for the good of New York—we shall be glad, as Princess Maud the Bride of Lord Carnegie, Son of Lord Southesk.

KEEPS ROYALTIES WAITING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Princess Maud, daughter of Louise, Princess Royal and Duchess of Fife, and niece of the King, was married today in the Guards Chapel to Lord Carnegie, son of the Earl of Southesk. It was a regular Guards' wedding. The bridegroom is an officer in the Scots Guards, and not only was the ceremony performed in the chapel, which has been made one of the most beautiful places of worship in London by its memorials to Guardsmen who have fallen in many campaigns, but not a single uniform was worn except those of the Guards.

The King, who gave the bride away; the Prince of Wales and ushers all were in Guards uniforms, while stalwart privates of the bridegroom's company formed a guard of honor.

All the royalties in London attended the ceremony. There were Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra, Queen Maud of Norway, Queen Olga of Greece and the ex-King and ex-Queen of Portugal.

The bride herself was nine minutes late, but the bridegroom was, fortunately, able to hide his nervousness in the vestry, and the King, standing at the door, passed the time pleasantly chatting with the bridesmaids, who were Lady Mary Carnegie, Miss Dorothea Carnegie, Lady Alexandra and Lady Victoria Cavendish-Bentinck and Lady Anne and Lady Joan Hope.

The bride drove from her home in Portman Square with her mother. She wore a pearl and crystal sewn silver dress with a gauzy lace veil, and she carried neither bouquet nor prayer-book. Little bunches of white heather were placed on the silver bandeau she wore as a head-dress.

The bridesmaids were dressed in very pale pastel blue chiffon frocks, trimmed with flowers, with girdles in blue and mauve. Attached to the blue ribbon streamers of their bouquets were sprigs of myrtle cut from a tree which sprang from a cutting made from the bouquet carried by the bride's mother when she was married to the Duke of Fife.

The King kissed his niece as she arrived and then conducted her to the altar, where the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, the Primus of Scotland and the Chaplain of the Guards were awaiting her and Lord Carnegie.

The band of the Guards played during the service, and at its conclusion the Pipers of the Scot Guards played the regimental march "The Highland Laddie" as the bridal pair passed under an arch of swords of warrant officers of the Guard. The reception took place at the Princess Royal's house in Portman Square, and Lord and Lady Carnegie then started for the Continent on their honeymoon.

As son of the Earl of Southesk, Lord Carnegie has a courtesy title only and according to British usage ranks as a commoner.

There were also nine fox hounds, two terriers and several prize pigs.

The Cedric brought $1,500,000 in gold as part payment of the interest on the British war debt, which was consigned to the British Government's fiscal agents, J. P. Morgan & Co.

Among the first cabin passengers was Mrs. Fraser Gange, known in operatic circles as Mme. Evans. She showed a scar under her left eye, the result, she said, of being pelted with gold nuggets by Australian miners at Kalgoorlie as a token of their appreciation of her singing.

This is the first time the Cedric has been here since she was in collision with the Cunarder Scythia off Queenstown in a fog toward the end of September.

The Scythia docked a few hours after the Cedric with 370 passengers and specie. Captain William Prothero, the master, said the liner had encountered rough weather and fog.

EXECUTORS WIN SUIT ON VANDERBILT WILL

Supreme Court Rules Bequests to Them in Lieu of Compensation Are Not Taxable.

FINDS SERVICE UNREQUIRED

Action Was Brought by F. L. Merrian and H. B. Anderson, but Decision Will Affect Others.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Through a decision rendered for the Supreme Court today by Associate Justice Sutherland no income taxes will have to be paid on $250,000 by Frederick L. Merriam, nor on $200,000 by Henry B. Anderson, both executors of the estate of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, to whom Mr. Vanderbilt bequeathed these sums in lieu of the compensation they would ordinarily receive as executors or trustees. As Mr. Vanderbilt also left $500,000 to Reginald Vanderbilt, $200,000 to Frederick W. Vanderbilt and $500,000 to Frederick M. Davies, other executors of the will, under like conditions, it is presumed they will be affected by the decision, although they did not appear in the suit.

The Government brought suit to recover income taxes on the amounts mentioned, contending that the bequests were taxable as "compensation for personal services." Judgment was rendered in a lower court against Mr. Merriam and Mr. Anderson, but the Court of Appeals for the Second District reversed this, and today Justice Sutherland upheld the Circuit Court, holding that the money was not taxable.

In this opinion Justice Sutherland declared that the cases turned upon the "meaning of the phrase which described net income, but not the value of property acquired by bequest." He continued:

"Without now attempting to formulate a precise definition of the meaning of the word as used in this statute, or deciding whether it includes an amount expressly left as compensation for service actually performed, it is enough for present purposes to say that it does include the bequest here under consideration since actual service as condition of payment is not required. A bequest to a person as executor is considered as given upon the implied condition that the person named shall, in good faith, clothe himself with this character, and this is the benefit given to him simply in this capacity or for care and trouble in executing the office. And it is a sufficient performance of the condition if the executor proves the will or unequivocally manifests an intention to act."

Concluding, the Justice said:

"The best inclination to be drawn is between compensation fixed by will for services to be rendered by the executor and legacy to one upon the implied condition that he shall clothe himself with the character of executor. In the former case he must perform the service to earn the compensation. In the latter case he need do no more than in good faith comply with the condition in order to receive the bequest; and that view of the further provision that the bequest shall be in lieu of commissions is, in effect, nothing more than an expression of the testator's will that the executor shall not receive statutory allowances for the services he may perform."

HYLAN OUT DESPITE RAIN.

On Boardwalk Twice During Day—Governor Smith Plays Golf.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 12.—Governor Alfred E. Smith and Mayor John F. Hylan are both proponents of the doctrine of "life in the outdoors." Despite the rain and stiff winds, Mayor Hylan was out on the Boardwalk both morning and afternoon. The Mayor had ventured only momentarily from his hotel in the forenoon, but today he made two trips, and the fact that there has been no occasion for a physician is taken as another indication of the Mayor's rapid recovery. He said he hoped to return to his desk by Jan. 1.

Governor Smith, who announced when he came to the Seaview Golf Club, eighteen miles from Atlantic City, that his only aim was to play golf, is making good his declaration. As soon as the rain ceased this morning the Governor was out on the links with his secretary.

Mayor Hylan attended "The Topics of 1923," a new Shubert musical comedy, at the Apollo Theatre last night, entering the theatre for the first time since his illness. The Mayor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Hylan, entered the theatre ten minutes before the performance began, using both crutches, and went to an orchestra box. A number of New Yorkers in the audience recognized the Mayor, who smilingly acknowledged their salutations. The Mayor laughed frequently and seemed to enjoy the performance.

SAYS CHURCHES ARE GAINING

Philadelphia Rector Reports Great Increase in Membership.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—More Americans have joined churches in the last two years than in any similar period in ecclesiastical history, the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, a Protestant Episcopal rector of Philadelphia, today told representatives of eighteen denominations who came from all sections of the country to attend the meeting of the American section of the Universal Christian Conference on Life and Work.

The Rev. Mr. Tomkins made his address a reply to the criticism that religion was a failing influence in the nation. All contending forces in the world, he said, were seeking universal peace.

The purpose of the conference was explained as a movement of church people to "concentrate the thought of Christendom on the great international and social questions of the day."

The Secretary is Bishop Luther B. Wilson of New York. This evening there will be a reception to the bishops at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—Lieutenant Frank Hunter, army aviator, was, it is believed, seriously injured when his airplane was forced down near Chafee, N. Y., 35 miles from here, this afternoon. Lieutenant Hunter's plane piled upon a field. He was taken from the wreckage by State troopers.

Captain Burt Skeel, accompanying Lieutenant Hunter, also was forced down, but was not believed to be seriously hurt. Both fliers were taken to Holland, N. Y., where first aid was administered. They were later brought to a Buffalo hospital. Lieutenant Hunter suffered a deep cut in the forehead and other injuries.

Details of the accident were meagre. Witnesses said the planes were forced to alight in a dense fog. They were en route from Washington to Selfridge Field, Detroit. A third plane, piloted by Lieutenant Mathewson, was reported near Ithaca, N. Y.

Lieutenant Frank Hunter is one of the outstanding aces of the World War, having been officially credited with the destruction of eight German airplanes. Among fliers he is regarded as one of the most daring aviators in the service. At the recent air carnival at Mitchel Field he thrilled the spectators with his hazardous stunts.

The home of the injured officer is in Savannah, Ga. He was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross with five palms and the Croix de Guerre, two palms. Lieutenant Hunter left Mitchel Field Sunday in a pursuit plane bound for his station at Selfridge Field, Detroit.

THORLEY FUNERAL TODAY.

Police Escort to Precede Cortege to the Collegiate Church.

The funeral of Charles F. Thorley, florist and real estate owner, who died last Saturday while returning from the Harvard-Princeton football game, will be held this morning from the Hotel Plaza. The cortège will leave the hotel at 9 o'clock, moving as follows: North on Fifth Avenue to Sixty-sixth Street; west through Central Park; north on Central Park West to Seventy-seventh Street; thence to the Collegiate Church at Seventy-seventh Street and West End Avenue.

A special police escort provided by Commissioner Enright will meet the cortège at Central Park West and Sixty-sixth Street as it emerges from the park and will precede it to the church.

Throughout yesterday many prominent persons, among them Police Commissioner Enright, Deputy Commissioner John Harriss and William H. Edwards, viewed the body, which lay in the Thorley apartment in the Hotel Plaza.

Because of Mr. Thorley's well-known love of flowers it was thought that the floral tributes for his many friends would be exceptionally lavish. In accordance with his own wish, however, only a few simple floral pieces were provided.

Out of respect to Mr. Thorley the second panel of the Sheriff's Jury, of which he was the foreman, adjourned yesterday immediately after it met. A number of members of the jury will act as pall-bearers at his funeral and the majority of the members will attend.

500 at R. J. Schaefer's Funeral.

Five hundred persons attended the funeral of Rudolph J. Schaefer, President of the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company, yesterday at his residence, 6 Beach Avenue, Larchmont, N. Y. The Rev. Richard Cobden, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, conducted the services. The St. Cecile Quartet sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and Charles Hart, a member of the Huckleberry Indians, an organization of the New York Athletic Club in which Mr. Schaefer was the Big Chief, sang "Oh, Promise Me." After the services many of the Indians and other friends filed past the coffin and dropped sprigs of huckleberry into it.

DENIES HE BELONGS TO ANTI-KLAN BODY

David Sarnoff Says Vigilance Association Used His Name Without His Authorization.

MANCUSO IS A MEMBER

Judge Admits He Accepted, but Knows Nothing of the Organization.

David Sarnoff, Vice President of the Radio Corporation of America, declared yesterday at his office, 64 Broad Street, that he was not a member of the National Vigilance Association, reported to have been formed recently in Washington, D. C., to combat the activities of the Ku Klux Klan throughout the country. Mr. Sarnoff said that when he saw his name among the leading business man and educators of the country who were represented to have joined the association, he immediately sent a telegram to E. F. Corcoran, directing Vice President of the association, informing him that the use of his name was unauthorized.

"While I was in Chicago recently," Mr. Sarnoff said, "my secretary received a communication here from the secretary of the National Vigilance Association inviting me to membership in the organization. My secretary replied that I was not in town, and that the association's communication would be shown to me on my return. I paid no attention to the matter, and was surprised to find that I was listed among the members.

"I have no sympathy for the Ku Klux Klan," continued Mr. Sarnoff, "but neither have I any sympathy with an organization which uses my name without my consent. I can't see the purpose of an organization such as the National Vigilance Association is represented to be. I believe that if the Ku Klux Klan is ignored it will die a natural death. I have written to the head of the Washington office of the National Vigilance Association that the use of my name by the association in any manner is without my consent and must cease at once."

Judge Francis X. Mancuso of General Sessions, who also was among the New York men mentioned as members of the anti-Klux organization, admitted that he had accepted membership in the association on Oct. 29 last, but said that he knew nothing about the organization and did not know whether it had an office in this city.

The Rev. E. P. Tivnan, S. J., President of Fordham University, and who also was mentioned as a member of the association, could not be interviewed about the matter yesterday.

CELLULOID FEEDS FLAMES.

Police Reserves From Three Stations Called Out for 10th Av. Fire.

Burning celluloid helped to give a score of fire companies a stiff 90-minute fight in the five-story brick business block at the northwest corner of Tenth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street last night. Chief John Kenlon, who responded on the second alarm, turned in a third because of the location. The loss was estimated at $75,000. The cause was not determined.

The celluloid was stored in the premises of the Fischel Button Manufacturing Company on the top floor. The fire started on the fourth floor and quickly spread upward and downward. The flames attracted so great a crowd that police reserves were called out from the West Thirtieth, West Forty-seventh and West Sixty-eighth Street Stations. Thirty-six families in adjoining tenements were ordered to the street for safety, but later were allowed to return.

Fireman Andrew Mayer of Engine Company 54 fell from the roof of the burning building to the roof of a three-story tenement but escaped with an injured hand.

Fined 16,000,000,000 Marks.

Samuel Miller, 30, of 113 Essex Street, who was arrested Sunday at Delancey and Ludlow Streets by Patrolman Pollock for peddling German marks without a license, was fined $2, the equivalent of 16,000,000,000 marks, by Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager in Essex Market Court yesterday. Miller was selling 100,000 marks for 1 cent.

BIBLE CLASSES CHARGE CHEATING ON SIZE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 12.—The Business Men's Bible Class of Long Beach, which yesterday reported an attendance of 31,634 in the final session of its attendance contest with a similar organization of Kansas City, Mo., today was flatly accused of "cheating" by J. W. Lingenfelter, representative of the Kansas City organization.

Lingenfelter said that he had been sent to Long Beach two weeks ago to check on the reports of the class there by N. W. Dibble, President of the Kansas City Bible class. He asserted that he checked yesterday's attendance at Long Beach with the aid of a score of private detectives armed with counting machines and that the actual attendance in the Municipal Park, where the gathering was held was 13,000, or 17,104 less than the total announced by the Long Beach class.

Lingenfelter declared that Long Beach lost the contest anyway, because Kansas City yesterday recorded 52,121 men in attendance at its class.

In answer to the accusations, Dan MacDavid, General Chairman of the campaign, declared today the belief that 35,000 men attended the Long Beach class.

"Kansas City cheated by not holding all its meetings in one place," said Mayor C. A. Buffum of Long Beach, President of the class.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 12.—The Kansas City Men's Bible Class, which, with 52,121 present, established a new world's attendance record here yesterday in a contest with Long Beach, Cal., will refrain from filing any protest regarding alleged "cheating" in the Long Beach count, N. W. Dibble, President of the local class, said today.

Mr. Dibble explained that J. W. Lingenfelter, who charged the Long Beach count was 13,930, instead of 31,634 as announced, was authorized to represent the Kansas City organization at Long Beach, but would be instructed by telegraph to let the matter drop.

The collection here yesterday was $3,050, Mr. Dibble said, and would be used to defray expenses of the class and to further Sunday school work.

Originality In Overcoats

In some ways an overcoat takes more skill in designing and fitting than does a suit. Yet of its nature and service an overcoat should neither be too obviously designed nor too closely fitted.

D'Andrea Brothers have studied overcoats carefully and have original ideas about them. You will see the result in some particularly interesting Ready to Wear models that we are now showing. Roomy, comfortable, with great warmth in little weight. Materials that are good to touch; patterns that are pleasant to see. The kind of an overcoat that will attract attention anywhere—favorable attention—just enough of it, but not too much.

NEW YORK

VAN CORTLAND VEHICLE CORPORATION,
1877 Broadway, New York City.

OCTOBER 29, 1923.

My Dear Sir: I have just completed a 2,400-mile trip in my 1924 four-passenger Suburban Peerless, going from New York to Halifax on high. When you consider the mountainous conditions, the changes in carburetion and the condition of the roads, which was frightful in some cases, it is truly a marvelous performance. The car averaged during the trip from New York to Halifax, via Worcester, Lowell, Newburyport, Bangor, Calais-St. Stephens, St. John to Moncton, Amherst, Parsboro, Kentville, from there across Nova Scotia, sixty miles of villainous roads and mountain passes, to Chester and then to Halifax.

Average mileage per hour, one pint; gasoline consumption average, 13¾ miles; water in radiator, one pint; carburetion excellent under various climatic conditions; riding qualities excellent; no tire trouble, either going or coming, of any kind; oil consumption, one quart to every 375 miles; tracking wonderful; no chains and the worst and most slippery roads in places that I have ever seen—part of the trip was in a twelve-hour blinding rainstorm; brakes excellent and did not require to be taken up until the return on the 2,400-mile trip.

I have owned many cars—eights, Sixes and Fours, and knowing the situation from years of experience I would be very skeptical had I not seen the performance of the statement as above made. Of course I am not taking into consideration traffic conditions where I had to stop in towns.

Your truly,

Vice President Vacuum Oil Company.

Gustave Tauber, driver of the truck, of 173 Beach Eighteenth Street, Rockaway Beach, told the police when arrested on a tecnnical charge of homicide, that Passett saw the truck as it approached and, evidently in the belief that it would stop, started to cross in front of it as the driver, believing that the man would stand where he was, increased his speed.

The woman, Mrs. William Knight, 24 years old, a negress, of 61 West 128th Street, died of injuries received when the taxicab ran over her.

Louis Fine, 11 years old, of 351 Riverdale Avenue, Brooklyn, was run over and killed by a motor truck in the afternoon at Pitkin Avenue and Schenck Street, Brooklyn. Fred Butsch, the driver, of 1,319 Steven Street, Queens, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide after he had carried the body of the boy to the Brownsville and East New York Hospital.

Lena Achera, 13 years old, of 278 Nassau Street, Brooklyn, was run over and killed near her home by a motor truck owned by the Service Shipping and Forwarding Company, and operated by Charles Littari, 28 years old, of 494 Warren Street. Littari was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

Francis Pauliselli, 11 years old, of 239 East Eleventh Street, died at St. Mark's Hospital last night of injuries received a short time before when he was run over by a taxicab in front of his home. Benjamin Maran, driver of the taxicab, who gave his address as 72 West 107th Street, was locked up in the Eighth Street Station on a technical homicide charge.

Dominick Despira of 5 Emery Avenue, Trenton, N. J., was killed and six others injured when the automobile in which they were speeding left the road into a ditch and turned over on the Yardville-Robbinsville Road near Trenton. Miss Josephine Ferella of 713 Whittaker Avenue, Trenton, was seriously hurt and removed to St. Francis's Hospital with the other four occupants of the car, who received cuts and bruises.

Herman Goldberg, 65 years old, of Lindenhurst, L. I., was killed and three others were injured early yesterday when the bus in which they were riding collided with a tree on the Merrick Road, near Belmore, L. I. There were fifteen persons in the bus, all returning to their homes in Lindenhurst from a wedding. Aaron Brower, 21 years old, was removed in a dying condition to the Bayshore Hospital with a fracture of the skull. His father, Morris, 55 years old, received cuts and bruises about the body, and Joseph Brennan, 55 years old, received cuts on the face and hands. They also were attended at the hospital.

Doctor's Mother Injured.

Mrs. Jennie Wells of 200 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, was seriously injured yesterday when an automobile owned and operated by her son, Dr. Joseph J. Wells, of the same address, collided with another car at Riverdale Avenue and Herriott Street, Yonkers. She was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital and later taken to Mount Sinai Hospital in this city.

Ove Knutson of 26 West Eighteenth Street, this city, a member of the Crotona Motor Cycle Club of the Bronx, died in the Northern Hospital at Mount Kisco from injuries received when his machine skidded under an automobile near Mount Vernon.

George Mayo, 28 years old, received a broken neck when he was thrown through the windshield of his car at Chappaqua, N. Y., after he had struck and killed a horse attached to a truck. He was removed to the Hospital at Mount Vernon, where he died.

Meyer Marinberg, 18 years old, an inmate of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, in Dean Street, Brooklyn, may lose the use of both hands because he violated the institution's rules and went roller skating outside. He fell in front of a motor truck at Saratoga Avenue and Dean Street and one of the front wheels passed over both his wrists. The truck was owned by Hough Asphalt Company, 1,361 Metropolitan Avenue, and was driven by George Hoffman of 815 Fosdick Avenue, Glendale.

A crowded trolley car was in collision with a motor truck at Nostrand Avenue and Grand Street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. Several passengers in the car were injured. Louis Veorgley of 60 Thompson Avenue suffered injuries to his back, and Solomon Doolin of 278 Fifty-first Street received a fracture of several right ribs and contusions of the right thigh. Both were taken to hospitals.

Ellis and William Butler Yeats.

Whistles to Remind Autoists Daily of the School Children

The greatest traffic safety drive the city ever has undertaken will be begun tomorrow and continue until the schools close next July, it was announced yesterday by Marcus Dow, Secretary of the Police Department Bureau of Public Safety. The plan is to educate autoists and pedestrians, especially school children, in the prevention of accidents.

At 2:59 P. M. Wednesday, one minute before public school children are dismissed for the day, whistles will be blown and bells rung throughout the city, to notify automobile operators that the drive is on. At the same time children in the schools will stand at attention for one minute, thinking of accidents and means by which they may be prevented. A second minute will be used by teachers to caution the children about crossing streets.

Display cards are to be posted throughout the city instructing pedestrians and autoists how to help in the safety campaign. All Police Inspectors and Captains were summoned to Police Headquarters yesterday afternoon to get instructions from Secretary Dow.

PINCHOT DEFENDS HIS DRY RECORD

Says if Federal Enforcement Had Equaled State's the Problem Would Be Solved.

RECALLS ELECTION PLEDGES

Tells Women Republicans He Has Cut Pennsylvania's Budget 25 Per Cent.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—If the Federal Administration had been using its prohibition enforcement powers as completely as the Pennsylvania State Administration has been using its powers "the enforcement question would be troubling no one either in Harrisburg or Washington," Governor Pinchot declared in an address before the Pennsylvania State Council of Republican Women here today.

The Governor spoke on "Ten Months in Office—A Report of Progress," and cited what he termed "the three principal promises" in his campaign platform: to "drive all saloons out of the State and to prevent and punish bootlegging," to keep the expenses of the State within its income and to reorganize the State Government and "get a dollar's worth of service for every dollar spent."

Governor Pinchot said that in fulfillment of the first pledge the Legislature, "under pressure from the Administration, passed a law which outlawed the saloon in Pennsylvania."

"Under pressure from the brewing, distilling and bootlegging interests," he added, "it later refused to pass two laws for which the Administration asked; one to give control of breweries to the other to give control of distilleries. If these two laws had been enacted our present dependence upon national enforcement of the Volstead law would not exist, nor would the present flood of liquor be debauching those of our people whom it does not scandalize.

"It is well within the truth to say that no State Administration in America is now making or has ever made as hard a fight for law enforcement as ours is making today."

As to the second promise, he declared the running of the State Government will cost during the current two years but three quarters of what it cost in the last two years, and he added: "So far as I am aware, no such reduction in expenditure has ever been made in any American State."

"There are no more State employes in any department under the Governor who are doing no work for the pay they are drawing," he declared, "and so far as these departments are concerned the political soft snap has vanished."

AUTO SHOW AT COMMODORE.

Large Attendance Marks the Exhibition of Closed Cars.

There was an excellent attendance yesterday at the Automobile Salon in the Hotel Commodore ballroom. The show this year presents more of a study of fine body building than it does of new foreign or American car models. The straight eight-cylinder type of motor used in the Italian Isotta Fraschini and the American Duesenberg attracted considerable interest. Other foreign cars include the Renault, Rolls-Royce, Mercedes, Minerva and Excelsior.

The Winton exhibit has three magnificent closed bodies, one a coupe model and the others sedans, one being a seven-passenger vehicle and the other a five-passenger sport sedan, all luxuriously finished. In the coupe the footrest for the rear passengers folds into a small compartment in the floor. Another interesting feature is that several cars in the show are fitted with the new balloon tires, larger than the regulation tires.

An attractive musical program is provided every afternoon by the Russian Petrouschka chorus and gypsy ensemble. The show will be open every day this week.

ASKS FEE FOR WILL FIGHT.

Attorney Zabriskie Requests $3,000 From Parsons Estate.

George G. Zabriskie, attorney, of 49 Wall Street applied in the Surrogate's Court yesterday for an allowance of $3,000 from the estate of George W. Parsons as his fee for services in trying to establish the validity of the will of Mr. Parsons, who left $195,000 each to the Episcopal Dioceses of New York and Long Island "for the benefit of enfeebled parishes in those dioceses." The attorney stated that Bishop Manning has no funds from which to pay his fee. The Surrogate reserved decision.

Mr. Parsons's will, which was found to be invalid because the testator had written across the face "This will is revoked," directed that half the estate be given to the testator's sister, a quarter to his father, and the other quarter to the Protestant Episcopal Bishops, but at the time of his death his father and sister already had died.

A letter from Bishop Manning, stating that he had no funds to pay Mr. Zabriskie's fee, was attached to the lawyer's petition, and in it Bishop Manning said: "I wish to associate myself with him in asking the court to grant the relief asked."

DECLARES HAYNES MISLEADS NATION

Foulke Asserts Prohibition Commissioner Conceals Truth About Enforcement.

CALLS SERVICE "ROTTEN"

Remedy Is Placing Force Under Merit System, Says Civil Service League Head.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes is accused of "outrageous misrepresentation" of actual enforcement conditions in his book, "Prohibition Inside Out," by William Dudley Foulke, President of the National Civil Service League, in an article to be published tomorrow in Good Government, the official organ of the League.

Denial is made by Mr. Foulke of repeated statements by Commissioner Haynes that law enforcement conditions are improving and the Commissioner is criticised for efforts to blame existing conditions on State and municipal officials. Statistics cited by Mr. Haynes as showing an improvement in enforcement conditions are challenged by Mr. Foulke who asserts no real improvement can be expected until the prohibition force has been placed under the merit system from top to bottom.

"For a long time his (Commissioner Haynes's) policy has been one of concealment and of insisting that all was going well," says Mr. Foulke.

"On Oct. 4, 1922, the Commissioner issued an official statement that the Prohibition office in New York State was in excellent condition, though that office was then being investigated by a Federal Grand Jury which reported on Oct. 27 that it had been conducted in a disgraceful manner, and six of the enforcement officers and twenty-seven of their dependents were indicted for conspiracy for violating the Volstead act."

After stating his own belief that "it is safe to say that the crimes committed by prohibition agents exceed by many times the number of these agents, a single man often committing scores of them," Mr. Foulke quotes Mr. Haynes as saying that "of real corruption the per cent. stands about one-half of 1 per cent."

Addressing the Prohibition Commissioner, Mr. Foulke continues:

"Mr. Haynes, if you believe this, you are deceiving yourself and the rest of us can no longer credit what you say. You tell us of forty-three convictions. But you say nothing of the 'almost numberless cases' mentioned by President Harding in which 'immediate dismissal' was necessary. You appeal from your misleading statistics to the common consciousness of the country that a great proportion of your service is rotten to the core."

Mr. Foulke contrasts the Commissioner's statements that there has been "a general decrease in arrests, prosecutions and convictions for crime in general," with the recent report of the Attorney General covering the enforcement of the Volstead act in which he tells us that during the forty-one months' period since the act was passed each year has brought an increase in prosecutions and convictions; that there have been at least 10,000 more convictions this year than last and 15,000 more than the year before."

"The inevitable inference is that violations of the Enforcement act are increasing day by day and month by month and that the failure to enforce the law under the spoils system is becoming more apparent each year."

FUGITIVE CAPTURED HERE.

Police Say Dr. Gordon J. Raymond Escaped From San Quentin.

Agents of the Department of Justice started yesterday afternoon for Salem, Mass., with a man who described himself as Dr. Gordon J. Raymond and who was arrested by them last Saturday evening in the Grand Union Hotel here on a charge of being a fugitive from justice. Raymond, the police say, was identified at Headquarters here as one of three men who escaped from San Quentin Prison in California in 1918, after making a breach in a thick stone wall. He is said to have posed in Salem and other New England cities as a secret agent for the American and Canadian Governments, but the Federal officials say that the papers he carries are forgeries.

Raymond was arraigned before United States Commissioner Boyle in the Federal Building yesterday and held in $5,000. He waived formal removal proceedings, however, saying "it would be a waste of time." Raymond, who is a giant in stature, said he was 52 years old, and that he was a graduate of the Royal College of Surgeons of London, England.

On Saturday night Augustus Candera and Richard Goldring, agents of the Department of Justice, broke into Raymond room at the hotel with drawn pistols and handcuffed him, after having followed a woman friend of Raymond from Salem to this city. The warrant on which he was arraigned before Commissioner Boyle charged that he defrauded Harry E. Bridges of Kansas while posing as a Federal Secret Service official.

Henry Spira of the Department of Justice here said that Raymond admitted that in had served terms in Burlington, Iowa; Lansing, Kan.; Folsom, Cal., and San Pedro, Cal., but denied that he was one of the three convicts who escaped from the San Quentin prison.

SUES PRINCESS LIPPI-LIPSKI

J. D. Warren of New York Seeks to Protect Interest in Property.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—James D. Remsen of New York City began proceedings today in the District Supreme Court against Princess Elaine Hale Phillips von der Lippi-Lipski, the Federal Acceptance Corporation of New York and Robert E. Krieter and R. Thomas Robinson of this city to protect an alleged interest in property at 1,600 Rhode Island Avenue, Northwest, occupied by the Carry-On Club, which is alleged to be owned by Princess von der Lippi-Lipski.

Remsen declares that in 1922 he lent the Princess, who was formerly Mrs. Wendell Phillips and one-time National President of the Carry-On Club, sums in excess of $10,000 which were to be secured by a trust note on the property. According to the bill the property was conveyed to the Acceptance Corporation and reconveyed to the Princess in such a manner, it is alleged, as to impair the interest claimed by the plaintiff. The two Washington defendants are sued as Trustees.

The property is valued at more than $100,000 and according to counsel for the plaintiff, is encumbered to the extent of $85,000. The specific purpose of Ramsen's bill is to declare a trust.

R. J. Grant Is Appointed Director of the Mint; Mellon Urged Denver Official on Merit Basis

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Robert J. Grant, Superintendent of the Denver Mint, was appointed Director of the Mint today by President Coolidge to succeed F. E. Scobey, who resigned recently.

Selection of Mr. Grant came as a surprise, as his name had not been mentioned prominently among the candidates for the position. It was said today that Mr. Grant was recommended by Secretary Mellon who, after going over the list of candidates, determined that the Denver director was best equipped by experience and training for the post. All political considerations were put aside by Mr. Mellon and the recommendation was made strictly on the merit basis. Today was Mr. Grant's sixty-first birthday.

Mr. Grant has been Superintendent of the Denver Mint since 1921. Prior to taking that position he had been engaged for thirty-five years in gold, silver, lead and zinc mining operations in the United States, Canada and Mexico. In 1906 he was associated with Secretary Hoover in a gold mining venture in Australia. During the war Mr. Grant was Director of the State Food Administration of Colorado.

ANDERSON CHARGES WIDE LIQUOR GRAFT

ALLEGES GIFTS TO POLICE

Anti-Saloon League Official Demands Legislative Inquiry in Letter to Machold.

William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, yesterday made public the text of a letter to Speaker H. Edmund Machold of the Assembly, demanding an investigation of alleged bootleg graft among the police of New York City. He says that in addition to evidence which he offered to Governor Smith he has new evidence which is available for such an investigation. In his letter Mr. Anderson says:

"I now hereby offer to furnish to any properly constituted committee armed with adequate power not only all that I have heretofore offered Governor Smith about the District Attorney of New York County, but new information bearing directly upon corruption of the Police Department, involving the owners of a large distillery located in New York State who are nationally known for another product.

"Specifically, (1) I will furnish the name of a Tammany leader who collects money from this concern for political purposes and the name or names of employes or officials, or both, of this company who pay the money or know of its payment.

"(2) I will furnish the names of the employe or employes or official or officials, or both, of this company who handle the gift of cash at Christmas time to the motorcycle policemen in New York City for protection for the trucks of this concern.

"(3) I will furnish the names of the employe or employes and the officials of this same concern, one of said officials a ex-President of the Chauffeurs and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Organization of New York State, who made or were party to the payment of a large sum of money to the confessed perjurer, H. Phillips, the District Attorney's star witness against me for his alleged evidence, after the efforts of this company to secure the payment of such money by the National Distillers and Wholesale Liquor Dealers' Association had failed.

"In short, I will give to a proper body representing the Assembly the names of the witnesses who have information that will connect up through this one liquor concern the payment of money to the police force for protection and the payment of money for testimony used by the Tammany District Attorney in an effort to stop enforcement by disrupting the enforcement agency of the dry Prohibition Director.

"The offer of specific things is not to preclude me from offering other information that may be pertinent at the time.

"I am specifically proposing an investigation of the entire liquor situation and all organized wets and drys, and hereby volunteer to furnish any information about the Anti-Saloon League that may be desired, which by any reasonable stretch of the imagination can be considered pertinent or of valid public interest."

ANDERSON TRIAL DELAYED.

Anti-Saloon Leader's Case to Wait Until Pecora Has Had Rest.

District Attorney Banton announced yesterday that it was not likely that the trial of William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of this State, on indictments alleging thefts from the dry organization, would be called until January.

"I want my chief assistant, Ferdinand Pecora, to try this case," the Prosecutor explained. "He has had charge of it since its inception and understands it better than anybody else in this office. I want to give him plenty of time to prepare the case for trial. Right now Mr. Pecora needs a rest, because he is not in the best of health. He is fagged out and his voice has gone back on him."

WINE CARRIERS SENTENCED.

Two New Yorkers Jailed and Fined at Greenwich, Conn.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Nov. 12.—Dominick Morreill of 5 Hancock Street, New York, and Frank Timchiere of 95 Macdougal Street were each found guilty of transporting liquor without a license by Judge Mead here today, who sentenced them to thirty days in jail and fines of $200 and costs.

It was one of the biggest cases of camouflage in this city, in the opinion of the Court. The men had nine barrels of wine, which they claimed was to be delivered to a rabbi in the Bronx and to a rabbi in Port Chester for sacramental purposes.

APPROVE 5 NEW SCHOOLS.

Structures to Cost $4,182,000 and Will Seat 10,616 Pupils.

The recommendation of the Board of Education for five new elementary schools was favorably acted upon by the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate yesterday. It approved plans for the structures to cost $4,182,000 and to provide 10,616 sittings. Manhattan, Bronx and Queens will each get one of the new schools while Brooklyn will get two.

Acting Mayor Murray Hulbert declared that the action of the committee was in line with the policy of the administration to provide adequate school facilities at the earliest opportunity. It will takes from twelve to eighteen months after the award of the contracts before the schools can be opened for pupils. The matter will come before the Board of Estimate on Friday for final action.

The last flight of the aerial photographic mapping project of New York has been completed, Sherman M. Fairchild, President of the Fairchild Aerial Camera Corporation, New York, announced yesterday. About 2,000 miles were covered and 2,000 exposures made.

YALE INVESTIGATES GRAPE JUICE 'KICK'

Dean Jones Summons Students to Explain What Agency Imparted It.

WISCONSIN INQUIRY URGED

Milwaukee Methodists Charge That Drunkenness Was a Feature of Football Celebration.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 12.—It was learned today that a number of Yale students had recently been summoned before the Dean of the academic department and questioned as to the presence in their rooms of fermented grape juice, said to have been purchased without the "kick," which was injected by the students by the addition of yeast. Some time ago an agent of a grape juice company took orders on the campus for the juice, which was delivered after so long a time that many thought his visit was a hoax. With the grape juice, according to the students, came directions for adding the yeast. Many followed the directions and found that the recipe worked all right.

Accordinf to one of the students, the Dean's office in some manner obtained a list of the students to whom the grape juice was shipped. Those involved received an invitation to visit the Dean, and, in addition to other questions, were asked as to their views on drinking in general. No further action has yet been taken by the university authorities.

Dean Frederick S. Jones said this forenoon that the facts as reported were substantially correct, and that the matter would come up before the Faculty and Student Committee on Rules. A number of the members of the Discipline Committee are said to have sat with the Dean when the students were questioned. About thirty students are involved, most of them being members of the three upper classes.

Evidence that the grape juice with the yeast added had the promised "kick" was furnished by the experience of one of the students who is said to have accompanied to have added the yeast and placed the grape juice in a clothes closet. When he went to examine the mixture later he found that the containers had exploded, creating havoc in his wardrobe.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 12.—Action which, according to church workers, may prove the forerunner of a Statewide protest against alleged drunkenness at the University of Wisconsin, at Madison, was taken yesterday by the Man's Forum of Kingsley Methodist Church here when resolutions calling for an investigation and action to curb students' drinking were passed.

It is reported that editorials in The Daily Cardinal, the university newspaper calling attention to "drunken orgies" attending the homecoming of the football team, were the direct cause of the action taken by the Milkwaukee church. The resolution of protest will be forwarded to the President of the university and the Board of Regents.

SCENT PLOT TO SLAY BUFFALO DRY AGENTS

Police Believe Stewart Was First Victim in Organized Bootleg Warfare.

BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—The police today were working on the theory that George A. Stewart, the Federal prohibition agent who was slain by a fusillade of shots in a cabaret early Sunday, was the first victim of a series of slayings planned in organized warfare to be directed by Buffalo and Niagara frontier illicit operators against "dry" enforcement forces. Stewart, it was said, had received letters threatening death if he did not "lay off." Other agents, police said, had been similarly marked.

Samuel Provenzo, arraigned this afternoon charged with assaulting a Federal officer and operating a cabaret after legal hours, was held in $25,000 bail. Witnesses said he struck Stewart before the shooting started. Provenzo was associated with Salvatore Panavia in the ownership of the place.

Threat of action against the municipal authorities came from District Attorney Moore's office today. "I intend to shake the Police Department from stem to stern," said the District Attorney. "I don't know just how I'll do it, but I'll find a way."

Federal authorities today were directing the search for Salvatore and Ralph Panavalia, believed to have been the principals in the slaying of the Federal agent. Clues led to Rochester, Jamestown and Batavia and to Welland, Ontario, and ended in the finding of their automobile, in which they were believed to have escaped, in a Niagara Street garage.

Two other murders, perpetrated within the last sixty hours, are also baffling the police.

Mrs. Mayme Bigham was shot dead by an ambushed gunman last night as she attempted to close a safe in the rear of her husband's drug store while the proprietor and his clerks were held up by three armed men in front. Her slayer stepped over her body and aided his companions in rifling the cash register before they escaped in an automobile.

Elizabeth Bonadio was killed in her home Friday night by a shot fired through an open door behind her. Witnesses declared that Michael Terrinova, a rejected suitor, ran from the house with a smoking revolver in his hand.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 12.—"Carry arms on every raid and when necessary to safety shoot to kill," Frank E. Sayer, Prohibition Enforcement Supervisor of the Syracuse district, today told his agents. The order is the result of the shooting in Buffalo yesterday of Field Agent Stewart. All men were instructed to obtain weapons.

Catches Man First Night on Force.

On his first night on the police force last night, Probationary Patrolman Edward J. Hollingsworth captured a prisoner after a chase of ten blocks and charged him with unlawful entry. The prisoner, Joseph McFadden, a negro, of 230 East Twenty-third Street, was seen entering the apartment house at 640 West 171st Street.

ZANGWILL REGRETS WE ENTERED WAR

With America Out Draw Would Have Resulted, Killing Militarism, He Says.

FRANCE AGGRESSOR NOW

Menken Criticizes English Author's Attitude and Challenges Him to Public Debate.

In a letter sent yesterday to S. Stanwood Menken, President of the National Security League, Israel Zangwill, English author and opponent of preparedness, asserted that if America had not gone into the World War a draw would have resulted "and militarism would have been killed instead of reviving in other countries."

He said that America had no need to prepare as this country would not be attacked. He charged France with being the only aggressor in Europe and said that France was preparing against a German revenge she was provoking. He said Britain was preparing in fear of France.

The letter was a reply to a speech made on Armistice Day in Perth Amboy, N. J., by Mr. Menken, in which he assailed Zangwill's views against preparedness, and particularly the author's charge that those urging preparedness were fools. In a reply to Zangwill's letter, Menken issued a challenge to public debate on the subject of preparedness.

"It is useless to mention old historical analogies when you are face to face with such terrible new weapons of destruction that all ideas of preparedness must be revised," wrote Zangwill.

"That was why I insisted that the real thing that was necessary was mental preparedness, to be aware of the causes that produce war and to try to circumvent it. I see now that you mention England and France as possible enemies since they are building aircraft, &c., with feverish anxiety. The only aggressor is France. England is building merely from fear of France, but neither country is building against America. Even France is building only from fear of the German revenge which she is herself provoking.

Zeppelin Situation.

"What you seemed to fear was the German airship and I learned that Zeppelins cannot be manufactured in Germany, but must be made via America. Hence, America has the situation in her own hands. The only other enemy you proposed to build gainst was Russia, and the leaders of Russia have all they can do to keep their immense continent together. There is not the faintest fear of their sending aircraft against America. In short, if I called all such preparations folly. People who have weapons often itch to use them.

"In the last war you were not attacked, and it would have been better for the world as things have turned out if you had not gone in at all. There would then have been a draw and militarism would have been killed instead of reviving in other countries."

In his letter in reply to Zangwill, Menken wrote that he agreed with Zangwill's approval of the policy of disarmament and pointed out that the National Security League was a pioneer in urging reduction of navies. He continued:

"We Americans have found the cost of neglect of real preparedness and we must think not in terms of today but of national destiny. America has been isolated and always disinclined to mix with European affairs. We only entered the war on account of Germany's insults and repeated attacks on our ships.

"Personally, I labored strenuously to induce my countrymen to realize a world economic unit having a hundred leaders of thought at one meeting, but they found that the common-sense American was not for action at that time. I have recently concluded they were right and that we had better keep to our own shores until there is a moral regeneration in Europe which will banish national selfishness and political intrigue.

If America Had Not Entered War.

"We talk a different language when you suggest that it would have been better if America had not entered the war, and have a variant view of facts if you hold that in our absence it would have been a draw. Three months more of conflict without us would have resulted in a conquest of France and the destruction of British prestige, if not of empire.

"I am pained that any Englishman of your distinction can lack appreciation of the service of our men and women in the war or that any humanitarian does not measure their contribution to world civilization. A draw or compromise with Germany and German thought of 1917 is unthinkable.

"May I also add, as one who witnessed England's heroic but belated efforts to prepare in 1918, that I believe much of the bloodguilt of that year rests on the impractical, poetic pacifists who refused to heed Lord Roberts's advice to Britain as to getting ready. You have many admirers in England and well-wishers here, but I can assure you that after nine years' study for national security on modern lines approved by our experts I am convinced that in a world making a daily demonstration of passion and self-interest America, while advancing her voice for peace and for the lessening of armed forces and the banishing of the airplane as a fighting machine, must be ever ready to defend herself should some irresponsible nation lack our standards and our self-control. I do not limit my attention to the countries mentioned by you."

"This is a broad field to cover in a letter. I would be happy to meet you and publicly discuss our divergent views at a convenient time and place under the chairmanship or some common friend. I hope you will seriously consider this."

HUSBAND GONE 17 YEARS.

Supreme Court Justice Dissolves Marriage on Plea of Wife.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Supreme Court Justice George R. Taylor Jr. of Mount Vernon today granted a dissolution of the marriage of Mrs. Olive A. Thompson, formerly a resident of Elmsford, Westchester County, but now residing at Edgewater Camp, N. J., from her husband, Edgar L. Thompson.

The couple were married on Sept. 16, 1901, in New York City and have no children. Mrs. Thompson told Justice Taylor she had not seen her husband in seventeen years, when he left their home in Elmsford to take a sail on a yacht which was anchored in the Hudson River off Yonkers. She advertised in the New York newspapers and searched throughout Canada and the United States for her husband, and though she found a number of E. L. Thompsons, none of them proved to be her husband. She believes he is dead.

FIGHT CUT IN PARK TO BUILD SUBWAY

COMMITTEE NAMED TO ACT

700 Property Owners Register Protest in Resolutions to Transit and Estimate Boards.

The West End Association, representing 700 property owners, last night voted its opposition to the proposal to build the Washington Heights extension of the B. M. T. subway through the western edge of Central Park by open-cut construction. The vote followed an address by Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin opposing the plan, and a discussion in which the advocates of a "Hands Off the Parks!" policy were warmly applauded.

The resolutions, which were adopted with only one member dissenting, said:

"Resolved, That the West End Association is unalterably opposed to any construction through or under Central Park, unless it be by tunnel at such a level that the surface will not be disturbed in any way and that sufficient depth of soil be left so that existing trees and shrubs may not be affected injuriously.

"Resolved, That any subway construction under Central Park West should be by the tunnel method, at a sufficient depth to insure the preservation of the existing trees on the east side of that thoroughfare.

"Resolved, That the President of the West End Association appoint a committee of three of which he shall be Chairman, to present this matter to the Transit Commission, to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and to other public or private bodies interested in the proposed subway, and the said committee take such steps as it may deem proper to carry into effect the views of the West End Association.

Commissioner Gallatin in his address reiterated his opposition to the plan, which, he said, would, in his opinion, cause irreparable damage to the park.

"I don't feel as if I am an obstructionist," he said. "I don't believe in sitting on a principle to interfere with progress, but when there is to be a fight to the parks it is my duty to protect them.

Park Not a Vacant Lot.

"It is said that $2,500,000 may be saved by running the subway through the park. The subway is not the only thing that people have wished to put in the park to save money. I must protest against using Central Park as a vacant lot. One suggestion that has been made is to put the subway under the sidewalk of Central Park West. The objection to this is that the west side of Central Park West is in a condition of disorder for several years. Which is the lesser of two evils—to keep Central Park West closed for a certain period or to destroy Central Park for forty or fifty years—perpetually forever?"

Commissioner Gallatin, while he said he did not wish to express an opinion on the legality of the plan, pointed out that the law provided that subways might be constructed by tunnels through city parks.

"We know," he said, "that the damage will not be restricted to the cut. With the best intentions in the world the damage will be extended, perhaps to the west drive. There are many pleasant vistas and beautiful spots in this section. We ought to consider Central Park as a precious heritage, handed down to us, and consider it our duty to hand it down to our descendants. I do not know how the Board of Estimate feels about this matter. I simply feel that it is my duty to protect the park and oppose its destruction."

Must Save Central Park.

The resolution was offered by A. Walker Otis. "We ought to say to these gentlemen: 'You can never get your hands on Central Park,'" he said. Former Judge Alfred E. Ommen was applauded when he declared: "I think that this association, which did so much for Riverside Drive, ought to take a stand to save Central Park. Let us save it and not let the contractors rule us."

George L. Slawson, who alone opposed the resolution said it was his understanding that only 20 per cent. of the work in the park was to be by the open-cut methods and he offered a substitute resolution calling for a maximum of 50 per cent. open-cut work.

The association also adopted a resolution pledging its co-operation with a committee representing taxpayers on Riverside Drive, composed of A. S. Marzo and Mr. Coudert, which is preparing a petition asking for official action on the Riverside smoke nuisance. Mr. Marzo and Mr. Coudert declared that soft coal was being burned continually by the New York Central and records were submitted, with engine numbers, to show the time and place when soft coal was being used. The resolution empowered the association to take any further steps it thought advisable to abate the nuisance.

EXPLAINS SONNET CONTEST.

In connection with the prize of $75 offered by Alice Hunt Bartlett, American editor of Poetry Review, for the best sonnet about cities of reality, Mrs. Bartlett has announced her attitude on liberties with the sonnet form for the guidance of those entering the contest.

Mrs. Bartlett says that, since the controversy over the correct sonnet form is more than 500 years old, it cannot be expected that a general agreement will be reached to follow an exclusive standard today. Most poets and literary authorities generally are in agreement that no liberties can be permitted with the first eight lines. Many insist that the Petrarchan form, followed by Milton and Wordsworth, is the only correct form for the sestet. But many modern poets say that this form, confining them to only four rhymes for the entire fourteen lines of the sonnet, and demand more freedom in the sestet which, under strict Petrarchan rules, should consist of six lines of equal length.

Mrs. Bartlett says the first of the basic rules governing the sonnet is that its initial eight lines shall be a colorful, well-knitted octave limited to two rhymes. No fourteen-line poem, consisting of three quatrains and a couplet, can be accepted as a sonnet, she says. She adds that to avoid having to judge form and subject in this contest, preference will be given to sonnets of the Petrarchan form.

Prizes realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in New York City for week ending Saturday, November 10, on which sales were made at 8.00 cents to 18.00 cents per piece, and averaged 13.40 cents per piece.—Adv.

FRENCH LICK, Ind., Oct. 12.—Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, and George B. Brennan, the Democratic boss of Illinois, met here today, exchanged congratulations over party victories at the polls in their respective States last week, and then settled down to the more serious business of discussing next year's Presidential election. Mr. Brennan and the Tammany chieftain both declared tonight that the meeting at this health resort, maintained by ex-United States Senator Thomas Taggart, leader of the Democratic forces in the pivotal Hoosier State, is a mere coincidence. Reports that Senator John W. Davis, Wall Street lawyer, is now in Paris, where he is said to have conferred with Ambassador Herrick, and that Governor Ritchie of Maryland is to be in Washington tomorrow for a conference with Governor Pinchot of Penns

It is difficult to decide what it is that keeps "William Tell" in the repertory. The history books say that it is Rossini's masterpiece; that with it he produced a revolution in operatic manners comparable to those of Gluck and Wagner; that in it he eschewed the follies of his youth, abandoned excessive "coloratura" and betook himself to the serious treatment of a serious subject. But no one cares what the history books say to the extent of regulating taste by them, and such seriousness as is attributed to Rossini in the preparation of this work for Paris nearly a hundred years ago was of the kind more likely to kill it than to keep it alive. For genius of Rossini lay in those very coloratura melodies which give sparkle and charm to "Il Barbiere" and which it denied to himself, his singers and his audience in "William Tell."

It is an opera with comparatively little opportunity for great singing, and very little else to take its place. True, Tell and Arnold make a duet out of filial piety and patriotism. Mathilde has a pretty song, "Selva Opaca," in the second act. Tell again has what has been called one of the immortal pages of opera in his address to his son before he gives his famous shooting exhibition, and Mr. Danise (Tell), Mr. Martinelli (Arnold) and Miss Reichberg (Mathilde) all made much of their opportunities and were warmly applauded for their efforts last night, but what large spaces there are when nothing very much is going on!

Be much is filled up with the choruses of a virtuous peasantry, their innocent sports (including an exhibition of shooting in the first act, which seems intended to throw Tell's feat with the apple into relief, since one after another of the virtuous peasants fails to hit a large target at some three yards distance), with very sophisticated dances, including, of course, the full blown ballet before the Governor (Act III.), a tepid performance and with shouts of patriotic resolution and war speeches (Act II.) that the work gets forward slowly.

And the fact is that Rossini is never really impressive in these ensemble numbers, because he had no technique for such work. A few formulae of harmony are repeated ad nauseam, some hints of Swiss popular melody are introduced for local color, and Swiss popular melody, all of it composed long after Tell's day, is the most complacent and unemotional folk melody in the world.

Yet somehow "William Tell" survives. Is it possible that its overture saves it? Apparently a good deal of reliance is placed on the overture, for a kindly management had transferred it last night to the beginning of the second act, so that no one should miss it. The subscribers could dine in comfort, but the "cackle" of Act I. and yet arrive in time to hear the storm music, the "sans des Vaches" and the brilliant military allegro. How convenient!

The plan suggested all sorts of manipulations which might give some subscribers a new experience. For example, if the first scene of "Aida" were played just before the triumph scene there would be the possibility of some hearing a famous tenor sing "Celeste Aida" for the first time, and the last scene of "Die Meistersinger" could be brought forward a little earlier how delightful to be able to remain for the "Preislied." Composers are so inconsiderate. However, every one heard Rossini's overture last night and so enjoyed it that Mr. Gennaro Papi and his orchestra had to stand up and bow together. There was the success of the evening.

Austin Conradi, Pianist, Plays.

Austin Conradi, pianist, played yesterday in Aeolian Hall to a small but an interested audience that found him a poet of tone, too often unrhythmic as modern word-poets, in Chopin's later sonata and Liszt's "Funerailles," and then wholly delightful in four little preludes by Scriabin. Mixing tones with held pedals, he wrought colorful smoke-screens of sound in his own piano arrangement of Strauss's "Serenade," Ravel's "Jeux d'Eau" and the "Walkyrie Ride," version of Ernest Hutcheson, his predecessor at Peabody Institute, Baltimore, who was a box guest at his matinee.

Hampden a "Book and Play" Guest.

Walter Hampden will be the guest of honor at the first "Book and Play" luncheon of the season, arranged by Miss Emma P. Mills and scheduled for tomorrow at the Hotel Biltmore. The speakers will include Clayton Hamilton, Claude Bragdon, Brian Hooker and Brock Pemberton.

CISSIE LOFTUS WELCOMED.

Cissie Loftus returned to American vaudeville yesterday afternoon by way of the Palace, and received a most cordial and enthusiastic welcome. Deafening applause greeted all her offerings, and the curtain was finally rung down upon a house that obviously wanted more. Miss Loftus gave imitations of Irene Franklin, Mrs. Fiske, Beatrice Herford, Delysia and Jeanne Eagels.

As an impromptu finish to her act, she was joined on the stage by Nora Bayes, with whom she did what probably should be called a twin-sister act.

Another old-time favorite on yesterday's bill was Fritzi Scheff, as stunning and tuneful as ever. Miss Scheff sang many songs in her familiar manner, including "Miss Me Again," of course.

The rest of the program, including Frank Crumit, late of the "Nifties," was thoroughly up to the Palace standard.

GIVES STUDENTS' CONCERT.

Philharmonic Repeats Brahms's Third Symphony in Carnegie Hall.

Brahms's third symphony, with which the Philharmonic Society had begun its eighty-second year, was repeated by the orchestra under Conductor Van Hoogstraten last evening at Carnegie Hall, as a part of the important new "educational" campaign of concerts, lectures and public school instruction, arranged in co-operation with other orchestras and with the Board of Education. The launching of the enterprise was greeted with enthusiasm.

What would be anywhere "a large audience," drawn at less than prices and even 25 cents in the gallery, was swelled to uncounted numbers by the broadcasting of the program to other cities and States by radio from Station WEAF. The playing of the symphony was preceded by classics equally suited to a program of the highest order, including the Concerto Grosso in F Major, by Handel, and Mozart's overture to "The Marriage of Figaro."

Irene Wilder, Contralto, in Debut.

Irene Wilder, a comely contralto from Burlington, Vt., seeking the judgment of New York on her local début recital at Aeolian Hall, was doubtless heard last night also by the home folks up in Vermont, among other "listeners in" over the radio. It still was a novelty to many concertgoers to note on the platform before the singer, like the wayside shrine in "Tannhäuser," a slender rack from which wires led to Station WJZ high above the Aeolian Building. Miss Wilder, singing in ordinary voice, gave a varied list of "Songs Since Schumann," including an elaborate "Prelude" by Kahn, lyrics by the late C. T. Griffes, in both English and German; a pair by Emil Polak, who accompanied at the piano, and a Louisiana folksong arranged by Schindler.

'Out of the Seven Seas' Here Nov. 19.

"Out of the Seven Seas," a new play by Kilbourn Gordon and Arthur Caesar, will open at the Frazee Theatre next Monday evening, Nov. 19, under the management of Mr. Gordon. The cast includes George Marion, Lotus Robb, Norval Keedwell, Wallis Clark, Audrey Hart, William A. Norton, Joseph Selman, Stapleton Kent, Alice Lee, Quinn Donn, Walter Punkett, Ray Hart and others. The play has been staged by Ira Hards.

Grand Guignolers in a New Bill.

The Grand Guignol Players, for their fifth week at the Frolic Theatre, last night presented a new bill of four one-act plays, equally divided as to comedies and thrillers. On the program were "Seul" ("Alone"), by Henri Duvernois; "Gardiens de Phare" ("Keepers of the Lighthouse"), by P. Cloquemin; "Le System du Docteur Goudron et du Professeur Plume," by Andre de Lorde and "Le Kama Soutra" ("How to Make Love"), by Regis Gignoux.

THE PLAY

By JOHN CORBIN.

Princess and Matador.

A ROYAL FANDANGO, a comedy in three acts by Zoe Akins. At the Plymouth Theatre.

Prince Peter	Cyril Keightley
Princess Aranjuez	Ethel Barrymore
Prince Michael	Teddy Jones
Prince Alexander	Charles Eaton
Princess Titania	Lorna Volare
Lady Lucy Rabid	Virginia Chauvenet
Mr. Wright	Harold Webster
Henriette	Denise Corday
Parrish	Walter Howe
Arthur	Drake DeKay
Chucho Panes	Joe Alessandro
Ampero	Beverly Sitgreaves
Pascual	Edward G. Robinson
Filer	Albert Poe
Steily	Frank Aniseri
Holt	Spencer Tracy

It is a very light fandango which Ethel Barrymore trips to the tune of a new comedy by Zoë Akins. She is a reigning princess and conceives a royal passion, or a royal caprice, for Chucho the Matador. Note that it is a passion or a caprice, as one chooses—or it is neither, if one prefer, or both! The fandango trips so lightly that never a toe touches the earth, so one can soar in fancy as one wills.

The matador conceives a devastating passion for the princess—all the more devastating because, as we are told with relentless insistence, he is a man of virginal purity. His passion is so devastating, in fact, that he faints at her feet at the end of their first interview. But this is an incessantly sophisticated comedy. One is also encouraged to surmise, if one prefer, that the matador has been overcome by the fumes of tobacco, never in his life having smoked until royal etiquette required him to light a cigarette which Her Majesty offered him.

This dualism of intention dogs the whole action, what there is of it. As the whimsical (or is it impassioned?) tale unfolds, the lovers' meetings are always attended by the matador's cousin and this Sancho Panza's intended bride, as also by his pious and domineering mother. The princess's lady-in-waiting is usually there, and her husband is generally in the offing, ready to serve as her confidant. In two of the acts her three charming children also assist in smoothing the course of true love. If the princess is passionate, she is also pure. In the third act, in which the lovers have fled to the matador's "little castle in Spain," the children are not present, but the royally sophisticated husband swoops down in an airplane, so the family group is as good as complete.

In all this there is a certain charm and humor, an originality of humoresque fancy which is Miss Akins's own. It is greatly enhanced by Miss Barrymore, who has never been a more ravishing vision of slender loveliness or played with subtler whim and caprice. It is also enhanced by the finely decorative scenes designed by Robert Edmund Jones.

Hitherto one has not always been able to give gangway to Miss Akins's dualistic humor and fantasy—at least this one hasn't been. The madness of the mad Varick in "Déclassé" impinged rather distressingly upon mundane actualities, even upon stale conventions of the theatre. The "Greatness" of the Texas Nightingale savored rather distressingly of silly commonplace. It was not mud and of the odor of the kitchen. In "The Royal Fandango" fantasy has a freer rein, for such is one's ignorance of princesses and Spanish matadors that one willingly believes anything of them, even two quite opposite things at the same time, or three of them, if they are in the least amusing. And not a few of Miss Akins's drolleries and absurdities were.

Unfortunately, the last one of all missed fire, and that was very bad for the evening as a whole. A plot cropped up which centred in a bomb, of Bolshevist origin, intended to blow up the Prince, in order to get him out of the way of Matador romance. Its interior seemed to be entirely filled by a clock that ticked a mighty tick, audible everywhere. The bomb was hustled off stage by timely vigilance and something exploded there. It could scarcely have been the bomb, but it may have been the plot.

Anyway Miss Barrymore donned a flying suit and sailed away with her husband, dropping a flower for the matador as she sailed overhead. If she had escaped before the bomb there might have been something left of the play. Anyway she shouldn't have dropped that rose so accurately; for, as the matador picked it up and kissed it, his Sancho Panza cousin said, clearly as a valedictory upon the whole performance, "It isn't real, you know!"

Cyril Keightly made the tenderly sophisticated husband positively charming and almost believable. Beverly Sitgreaves rendered a similar service of vitalisation to the Matador's mother. As the Matador, Jose Alessandro, who was speaking English for the first time on the stage, gave a really notable performance. There were moments in the first act when he (and Miss Akins, too) seemed actually to be creating a character, this peasant hero was so amusingly simple-minded and so credibly impassioned—or was it sick with tobacco?

"THE CUP" IS FORCEFUL.

Paula	Rosita Mantilla
Flick	Alfred Rigsby
Harry	John Irwin
Tony	Carlos Calde
Eddie	Tom Moore
Mary Shine	Josephine Victor
The Priest	O. P. Heggie

There is a good deal of crude force in this melodrama by William Hurlbut, and while it confines itself to melodrama it is frequently pretty good entertainment. But when the author digresses into religious paths he sounds a much less genuine note, at the same time weakening his whole structure.

Mr. Hurlbut's play, given its first performance last night at the Fulton, is entitled "The Cup," and the reference in the title, astonishingly enough, is to the cup of the Holy Grail. The astonishment may be conceded, perhaps, to one who saw a plain story of east side crooks unfold in the play's first act, only to have the Holy Grail suddenly interjected at the curtain.

It is, to be sure, a fantastic combination, and calls for a touch of the most delicate sort. This it has not received from Mr. Hurlbut in this instance, and, despite certain scenes of undeniable effectiveness, one departs with the feeling that there has been an unsuccessful attempt to weld irreconcilable elements. Even a vision of the Christ, with which Mr. Hurlbut brings down his second-act curtain, is in part forfeited.

Mr. Hurlbut's play follows the fashion of the day in its employment of strong language, and at least one expression used in the performance last night established a new mile-post for the drama. The play tells graphically and with commendable directness the story of an east side gangman, and even though the final scene is laid in a rectory there is no more than a passing suggestion that he intends to reform. He fells a woman and commits a murder before your eyes, and no melodrama could supply more.

It is the engaging Tom Moore, hitherto celebrated in the films, who plays the sacred cup into whose hands falls the sacred cup. Mr. Moore is just a villain, having only his gracious manner to commend him, and yet there is no doubt that last night's audience liked him. He is an easy and likable actor—a slightly tougher William Harrigan—and the stage should receive him with joy.

There is another good performance by Josephine Victor, who, as the heroine, is called upon to take Mr. Moore's blows in defense of the cup. Her work in this regard was particularly realistic. O. P. Heggie is also there—doing good work, of course, but almost submerged in the minor rôle of a priest.

"Isn't It So?" at the New Berkley.

"Isn't It So?" a comedy by Delia MacLeon, was presented last night at the new Berkley Theatre, situated on the south side of Fifty-second Street just west of Eighth Avenue. The play, which is the offering of Nancy Byers, a new producer, will be reviewed in THE TIMES tomorrow.

'EVERYMAN' AS 'VIA CRUCIS.'

Sir John Martin-Harvey Appears in an Adaptation of Morality Play.

VIA CRUCIS, a play in a prologue and two acts, adapted by Hugo von Hofmannsthal from the morality play "Everyman"; translated by the Hon. Eytil Armhurst and Dr. C. E. Wheeler. At the Century Theatre.

Prologue	Harold Carton
Death	Harvey Braban
The Devil	Michael Mackenzie
Everyman	Martin Harvey
Everyman's Mother	Marie Linden
Everyman's Comrade	Walter Pearce
A Cook	Muir Little
A Poor Neighbor	Eugene Wellesley
A Debtor	Gordon McLeod
A Debtor's Wife	Mary Gray
Everyman's Mistress	Miriam Lawes
Everyman's Fat Cousin	Alfred Ibberson
Everyman's Thin Cousin	Eugene Wellesley
Servant to Everyman's Mother	George Thirlwell
Mammon	Leonard Daniels
Belief	Mary Gray
Good Deeds	N. de Silva

Time has put a different color on such morality plays as "Via Crucis" since the days when they were performed crudely on village greens and rolling stage platforms, but they are worth preserving for their simplicity and sincerity. So at least it seemed last evening at the close of Sir John Martin-Harvey's production of the Hofmannsthal version in the Century Theatre when Everyman submitted to Death.

Five or six centuries ago, when such moralities were common to fairs and festivals, no magic of electric light gave assistance to the fable. But the lighting and the staging in the current performance accent to good purpose the simple passion of the play in this final scene. For the rest, the play seemed rather a delightful anachronism, seasoned with a fresh naïveté. From the moment in the prologue when a solemn mous besought the audience to "mark the matter of this moral play" contrast with present manners and present moralities was the chief diversion.

The merry wastrel was Everyman, hiding the folly of today with the luxury of tomorrow, bidding his varlet cook to spread the table deep with savories, summoning the keeper of his chests for heavy purses, buying pleasure grounds and ornate pavilions for his mistress and forever putting off riotous vows to a gloomier day. Nor was he lacking in virtue either, despite a humid thirst; for misery in others touched him to the quick; and he gave alms to beggars and secret aid to his debtor's family.

But for long moments in the play virtue dragged a lugubrious carcass across the stage and vice tripped merrily as much as it might. What of the feast, the dancers, the clowns, the wine bibblers, the dancing maidens, the singers in an Anglo-Saxon bacchanale held in honor of Everyman's mistress? Surely a merry scene, a spur to Falstaffs, a holiday even for Cyranos.

Life may be strewn with aisles of just such roses, but Death walks a dark and dusty way, as Everyman soon discovered. Alas! while the feast was still spowing tipsy and riotous, Death tolled his solemn bells and pointed a sinister finger at Everyman. And he, poor fellow, grew sober at once.

Where was his light heart then? Where were his comrades, trusting and faithful? They left him with a shudder. And his gold swelled him not at all. Only the gentle sweetness of Belief and Good Deeds stayed by him and saved him from the lurid, sulphur blasphemy of the Evil One. And simple in structure though "Everyman" is, it compels and illudes in these final moments.

Hofmannthal's adaptation has been turned into English verse in this performance, and into a verse also which matches the temper of the piece. So, too, does the acting of Sir John Martin-Harvey as Everyman and those who take the other twenty-six parts—Everyman's Mother, Everyman's Comrade, a Poor Neighbor, Everyman's Fat and Thin Cousins and the rest. For this is no sparkling Broadway comedy nor psychoanalytic trash, but folklore with a spirit still common to daily life.

ACT "ROMEO AND JULIET."

Sothern and Marlowe Warmly Received in Their Familiar Roles.

For the fifth and last week of their season in New York, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe put on "Romeo and Juliet" last evening at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theatre. Well-known to New York in these rôles, both players were received warmly by a good sized house, particularly strong in the balcony, for it is high up in the theatre that the love of Shakespeare seems to dwell these days.

Miss Marlowe was an appealing figure in gowns of gold, green, white and crimson. She was set in some charming stage pictures of dark green with bright flowers, or among the rich draperies of Verona of the days when Italy "held the gorgeous East in fee." Mr. Sothern's Romeo was characterized by a dark and Hamletlike passion overshadowing the lover's joyousness. There was dignity and a reverential treatment of the masterpiece.

In the minor parts of this tragedy of few hot days in Verona, there was ability enough to raise the street scene and the murder of Mercutio and Tybalt to a high pitch of dramatic interest. Scenes in the cell of Friar Laurence and what modern taste will accept of the comedy supplied by the nurse were also effective, and that there are always some people in an audience for whom the lines are new was evident from responses of surprised laughter.

There are some eighteen scenes in the play as presented last night, but as one of the greatest comes at the very end there was no haste to leave the play. Those who again saw Juliet fall on the dead body of her lover will have little doubt that the great love story of the world is still the story of one love, and not the story of many loves, be they of Don Juan, Casanova or the great Catherine.

'GO WEST, YOUNG MAN' HERE

"Satirical Comedy" by Fay Pulsifer Revealed at the Punch and Judy.

GO WEST, YOUNG MAN, a comedy in three acts, by Fay Pulsifer and Cara Carelli. At the Punch and Judy Theatre.

Mrs. Hector Brumble	Aline McDermott
Mrs. William Merrill	Enid Gray
William Merrill	Reginald Barlow
Claude Merrill	Percy Helton
John Starling	Everett Butterfield
Laura Harper	Kay Johnson
Mr. Comstock	Benedict MacQuarrie
Hortense DeWolf	Minna Phillips
Lucille Winterbottom	Marion Trabue
Dottie Dulcye	Ann Anderson
Miss Carbury	Blanche Latell
Miss Harper	Leslie Stowe
Hernandez	Benedict MacQuarrie

Mindful of bitter experiences in the past, with too early selections of the season's worst plays, one hesitates to apply this easy label to "Go West, Young Man," which opened last night at the Punch and Judy. However, it will do nicely as the season's worst play until something worse comes along.

The play is called "a satirical comedy" by Fay Pulsifer, its author, and maybe it is one. It satirizes, probably, esthetic dancing, boarding houses and oil stock promoters, among other things, and in a blood-curdling fashion.

Reginald Barlowe did a bad rôle badly, and Percy Helton was easily vanquished by a part that was neither fish, fowl nor beef herring. In the midst of the general chaos, however, a newcomer, named Kay Johnson, sweet, pretty and possessed of a delicate sense of comedy, emerged triumphant.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mme. Duse will act "Ceal Sta," the third play of her current program, this afternoon at the Century Theatre.

"The Camel's Back," by Somerset Maugham, will open tonight at the Vanderbilt Theatre.

"Children of the Moon" will end its engagement at the Comedy on Friday night, to permit of a Sunday night premiere in Chicago.

A new musical piece entitled "Sharlee," produced by John Cort, will open at the Sixty-third Street Theatre next Monday night. "Ginger" was withdrawn last Saturday night.

The Carmine Cassock.

UNDER THE RED ROBE, with Robert B. Mantell, John Charles Thomas, Alma Rubens, Otto Kruger, William H. Powell, Ian McLaren, Genevieve Hamper, Mary MacLaren, Rose Coghlan, Gustav von Seyffertitz, Sydney Herbert, Arthur Housman, Paul Fenser, Charles Judels, George Nash, Evelyn Connell, Martin Faust, Eleanor Sinclair and others; adapted from Stanley Weyman's novel, directed by Alan Crosland; prefaced by John Charles Thomas singing the prologue from "I Pagliacci"; Victor Herbert conducts his own orchestra. At the Cosmopolitan.

With the presentation of the film version of Stanley Weyman's novel "Under the Red Robe," at the Cosmopolitan Theatre last night, another French costume picture is added to the lengthy list of similar productions which already have been shown to the eyes of Broadway. All these photoplays emphasize the feeble mentality of the monarch of the time, the story being invariably spun around the exploits of a dashing young swordsman who fights his way into trouble and out of it, with a girl for his goal. In this respect "Under the Red Robe" is no exception. There is Louis XIII., who gives so much time to the grandeur of his court that he neglects his country. Toward the end of the picture he braces up and amazes his entourage by dismissing Cardinal Richelieu; then he flops with an obsequious apology accompanied by a great deal of ceremonial.

The scenes in many sequences of this film are so attractive that without much else they would be worth viewing. Incidentally the exteriors were taken in Maine and the interiors at 126th Street and Second Avenue, which is singular, considering that the romance deals with love, spying and politics in France 300 years ago. But a blade of grass in Maine is the same as a blade of grass in Normandy, and the bark and foliage of trees fit the scenes just as well as if the photoplay was done in the erstwhile realm of the giddy Louis.

There is an especially beautiful sequence where cavaliers are shown tackling each other in the middle of a shallow, fast-running brook, and other scenes in a forest, which might just as well be that of Fontainebleau, are extremely pleasing. The settings constructed on the studio grounds are ambitious and at times effective, but in instances they fail to give an idea of solidity or massiveness. There is the great castle, the drawbridge over a moat, very well done and answering the purpose; yet obviously the castle walls are of wood or paper. But this does not detract from the good work in several sequences by squadrons of riders and happy-go-lucky subjects.

The costumes in this film are especially good. Evidently the producers gave gone to much expense to have them faithful to the period. However, huge hoop satin skirts should be avoided by players who have to scamper along roadways and through narrow paths in a timber-flung country, for even if this handicapped performance appeared moderately graceful before the camera, there are staccato halts to it on the screen which make the players look awkward.

This romance inherits its title from the hue of Richelieu's cassock. Robert B. Mantell has the rôle of the dominating prelate, and quite often he forgets the accuracy of the camera and the exaggeration of a facial expression on the screen. His surprise is too theatric, and he fails to cloak the rôle with the interest it was possible to get into such a part. It would seem that Mr. Mantell could have done a great deal with the scene in which Richelieu is deserted by all except a drummer boy and the hero-spy. As it is shown, it is good—but flat. Alan Crosland, the director, could have instilled into the sequence so much suspense and atmosphere that it would have had all the sympathy of the last scene on the stage of Beau Brummell and his ghosts. Certainly a great opportunity was missed here.

It seems to be very difficult to make some of the beards and mustaches look as if they belonged to the actors. Again the screen is responsible for enlarging the seemingly slight deficiency. Nevertheless, this fault must have been perceptible in the first "takes," and it is surprising that it was not corrected.

The story has not been particularly well adapted, for it could be much stronger and more convincing. John Charles Thomas plays the heroic rôle of Gil de Berault, a swordsman and a cheery gambler who cheats at cards. Mr. Thomas is a good artist, but as a gallant screen cavalier he has not the chance to give vent to his chief talent and his posing and stiffness are not in keeping with a rôle which would be all the better for a little subtlety. It is rather an absurd proceeding when Alma Rubens in a fascinating hoop skirt is seen running in the woods followed by the rather plump Mr. Thomas. This Gil de Berault when on a spying mission for Richelieu falls in love with Renee de Cocheforet (Alma Rubens), whose brother he hopes to kidnap to save his own head from the block.

William H. Powell, who was splendid in "The Bright Shawl," does not seem to have as much opportunity in this feature, wherein he plays the Duke of Orleans.

Gustav von Seyffertitz is admirable as Clon, the dumb servant of Henri de Cocheforet, whose tongue was cut out when he was caught as a spy. Clon is branded with the fleur de lys.

Alma Rubens is capable in her part, but again she does too much posing, instead of acting, in front of the camera. Ian McLaren is very good as the King. This picture, like many others, may have outstanding failings, but the costumes, the exteriors and some of the sets make it a production that is satisfying on many points. It ought, however, to be cut to a more wieldy length. This might help the narrative.

The presentation was prefaced by Mr. Thomas singing the prologue from "I Pagliacci." Victor Herbert is responsible for the musical score and he conducted the orchestra.

WOMAN PINNED UNDER CAR.

Mother of Deputy Attorney General Cuff Injured in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cuff, 65 years old, of Hempstead, L. I., mother of Deputy Attorney General Thomas J. Cuff, was knocked down at Livingston and Bond Streets, Brooklyn, and pinned under an eastbound St. John's Place trolley car yesterday afternoon. The car was in charge of motorman James Burn of 728 Franklin Avenue.

As Mrs. Cuff disappeared under the car her screams were heard by hundreds of women shoppers in the neighborhood. So many persons crowded about the car that several mounted policemen and others on foot were required to keep them back while other policemen and the crew of the car tried to extricate Mrs. Cuff, who was caught under the forward truck. A call was sent to the B. M. T. coporation for a wrecking crew and an alarm was sent in for a hook and ladder company of the fire department in State Street, two blocks away.

Mrs. Cuff was released after she had been under the car for ten minutes. She was removed to Holy Family Hospital where it was found that she had suffered a fracture of the shoulder and internal injuries.

THREE VOLUNTEERS HELD AS 'FIREBUGS'

Nyack Thinks It Has Solved the Puzzle of Its Blazes on Monday Mornings.

YOUNG FIREMEN ARRESTED

Thirteen Years Ago the Town Had a Similar Experience With Its Own Model Department.

Nyack, N. Y., uncovered yesterday what officials believed was an arson ring within its own model volunteer fire department. Investigation of a series of destructive fires there the past month, all starting on Monday mornings about 1 o'clock, led to arrest of three of the fire fighters.

On arraignment before Police Judge Haas, alleged confessions of two of the trio were presented by Chief of Police Michael Furey. The prisoners were held without bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of arson in the third degree. They were Edgar Wanamaker, 18, member of the Jackson Engine Company; Frank Kirk, 22, express company clerk and member of the Jackson Engine Company, and Frederick Mutinsky, 21, a lunch-wagon waiter and member of Jackson Hose Company. They are lodged in the County Jail at New City. Supposed pyromania was advanced as explanation.

Nyack had its eyes open early yesterday for repetition of the suspected incendiary activities, following mysterious fires three consecutive Mondays which had burned the Towt boat house, the Lydecker barn and the Gurnee carpenter shop and lumber mill. Acting on a tip, Chief Furey concealed deputized citizens at the Nyack Pocketbook Factory. Mutinsky was later arrested there, the Chief told Judge Haas. Arrest of the other two followed.

PARIS COUNCIL SAVES RADICAL FROM POLICE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The Paris Municipal Council played a practical joke of political importance today on its own police. When the latter tried to arrest the Socialist Leon Midol, who was elected to the council a week ago, his colleagues placed him in a chair and stood in a close bunch around him. The police concluded that the man they wanted had left by a side door, which was open, and later the municipal fathers walked out in a body through the police with Midol hidden in their midst.

The comedy has rather a singular political angle. Here in Paris where the Prefect of Police is appointed by the Government, the Prefecture has the right to decide in accord with the State Prefects many matters which in America are prerogatives of civilian Magistrates. Thus though Midol had been elected to the City Council the question of his eligibility has yet to be decided by the Prefecture, as he is under warrant of arrest for actions leading to the strike of railroadmen when Secretary of one railroadmen's union in 1920.

The Communists and Socialists have been clamoring recently for an amnesty for him, and as in the case of the Communist mutineer Marty, their method of procedure was to get him elected to public bodies whenever the chance occurs.

Midol was known to have come to Paris for the opening of the Municipal Council's session today, and a big body of police gathered at the City Hall to prevent if possible his taking his seat. In some way he managed to elude them and obtained admission to the council chambers. The Prefect of Police, the Prefect of the Seine Department and the President of the Council, hearing he was present, refused to take their seats, but the Council itself decided it would go ahead with business. A motion was passed demanding an amnesty for the wanted man with only one dissenting voice, but by the time this was done the City Hall had been filled with police and the Prefect informed the Council he had a warrant for the arrest of Midol and was about to send an officer to arrest him.

When the officer arrived he found Midol and his colleagues of all shades of political opinion in the office of the President General of the Council, who refused to make delivery, protesting through the locked door that Midol was "his guest and had been elected to the Council by universal suffrage."

After some hesitation, the police got a locksmith to open the door. They were greeted by a great laugh as the councillors pointed to the side door gaping suspiciously open.

The officer in charge of operations at once dashed through the open door with his men and as they disappeared Midol rose from the President's chair, where he had been sitting surrounded by his colleagues, and walked with them out of the building.

WHITING, Ind., Nov. 12.—The Whiting Memorial Community House, a gift to the city of Whiting by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), John D. Rockefeller Sr. and John D. Rockefeller Jr., was dedicated here today. The building, which cost $500,000, was erected in memory of those who served in the World War.

Mayor Walter Schrage declared the day a holiday. The principal speakers at the exercises were J. Dickinson, Chairman of the National Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion, and Frank Henley, State Adjutant of the Indiana Department of the Legion.

In the Whiting refineries of the oil company about 4,300 are employed. Of this number 880 enlisted in the World War. The cost of the community house, said to be the finest in the country, was contributed as follows: Standard Oil Company (Indiana) $525,000, John D. Rockefeller Sr. $100,000 and John D. Rockefeller Jr. $75,000. The furnishings cost $300,000.

Produce Dealer's Skull Broken by Automobile Axle.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 12.—Joseph Albo, a produce dealer of 1,440 Park Avenue, Manhattan, who was beaten with an automobile axle at Elmont last night, died today with a fractured skull in the Nassau Hospital here. Mrs. Concella Pattadi, 60; Joseph Gambrio, her son, and Michael Petralis, all living in a house on Sun Street, Elmont, where Albo is reported to have received his injuries, were locked up in the county jail.

Chief William Phillips of the Nassau County police said that from what the prisoners told him he believes Albo, who is said to have been armed, went to the Pattadi house in an effort to force Mrs. Pattadi to tell him the whereabouts of Mrs. Albo, who is said to have left him several months ago. Phillips was told that Albo drew a revolver and was attacked by Mrs. Pattadi and Gambrio.

PALMER APPEARS AS BRITISH COUNSEL

Former Attorney General Opposes American Interests in Rio Grande Claim Case.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Former United States Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer was introduced today to the Anglo-American arbitration tribunal by Sir Cecil Hurst, the British agent, as council to represent British interests in the Rio Grande Land Irrigation Company case.

Mr. Palmer is visiting England on his honeymoon. His bride was sitting in the courtroom watching the proceedings, and this increased the general surprise at an American lawyer appearing before an international tribunal against American interests.

The case, however, did not proceed far this morning. Fred Kenelm Nielson had made the opening argument for the American Government on Friday. William C. Dennis, another of the American counsel, followed him today with a motion asking the tribunal to declare it had no jurisdiction, on the ground that the only party with a real interest in the matter is Dr. Nathan E. Boyd, who is an American citizen. Mr. Dennis contended there was no British interest in the dispute and consequently it could not be settled by the Anglo-American court.

Sir Cecil Hurst asked for adjournment until tomorrow, that he might have time to consider the evidence on which Mr. Dennis founded his motion.

The claim, which totals over $17,000,000, has arisen over a dispute concerning a permit granted a quarter of a century ago by the Department of the Interior to the Rio Grande concern to overflow certain lands in New Mexico in connection with an irrigation project.

The Department of Justice held up the project by injunction proceedings on the ground that it would affect the navigability of the Rio Grande River. The Government of Mexico also complained that the operations might result in depriving Mexico of waters in the boundary stream. The case was tried in New Mexico Federal courts and was three times before the Supreme Court of the United States, a decision finally being given against the company and the permit being canceled.

Fiji Island Claims Settled.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The arbitral tribunal now sitting in London under a treaty concluded between the United States and Great Britain has dismissed the claim of Benson Robert Henry against the British Government for $95,000 with interest at 4 per cent. from Feb. 11, 1882. This claim arose out of the confiscation by the British authorities of lands in the Fiji Islands to which Henry claimed title through warrants issued to him by the Polynesia Company, Limited, of Melbourne. Mr. Henry claimed 480 cares of land, but his claim was disallowed by the British Governor of the islands.

Frederick K. Nielsen, the American agent, reported to the State Department today that the tribunal has awarded £150 in favor of the United States on account of the confiscation by the British Government of lands in the Fiji Islands claimed by John B. Williams. This claim was for $20,000, with interest at 4 per cent. from 1880. Mr. Williams was formerly United States commercial agent in Fiji.

It was shown that Lieutenant Martin did everything humanly possible to save the life of the soldier.

DISPUTE KEDROVSKY'S DISAVOWAL OF SOVIET

Resolutions proclaiming "capitalism to be a deadly sin and the fight against the same to be sacred to a Christian" were adopted last May by the Moscow church authorities from whom John S. Kedrovsky, who asserts he is the real Metropolitan Bere of the Russian Orthodox Church, received his appointment, according to a statement yesterday by the Rev. V. E. Graves, Secretary of the Board of Trustees of the church in this diocese.

The statement is in reply to Kedrovsky's denial that he is connected with or appointed by the Soviet Government or the Soviet Living Church. Kedrovsky's attempts to supplant Archbishop and Metropolitan Platon have precipitated a struggle for control of the church which is now the occasion for court proceedings. The most important proceeding—Kedrovsky's application for an order to show cause why the Metropolitan Platon and his associates should not be removed from the episcopal residence on East Ninety-seventh Street—is to come up today in the Sixth District Municipal Court. Kedrovsky, who recently came from Russia and asserted that he had been appointed Archbishop of the North American Diocese of the Russian Orthodox Church, returned to the city yesterday from Hartford, where he formerly preached, and conferred with his counsel, Ralph Frank of 233 Broadway on the pending litigation.

Thomas J. Mahoney of 100 East Forty-seventh Street, counsel for Metropolitan Platon, said yesterday that he would move before the Municipal Court today for a ten days' adjournment on the application of Kedrovsky looking toward Archbishop Platon's removal, in order to contest before the Supreme Court the jurisdiction of the Municipal Court.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The outstanding movement in yesterday's financial markets was the fall in sterling. The stock market continued to draw interest by its early advance and subsequent decline, and the cotton market indulged in another spasmodic rise, although not to last Thursday's prices. But the decline in exchange on London was distinctly spectacular. It carried the rate to $4.35 1-16—the lowest figure reached at any time since the middle of March, 1922, and marking reaction of 37 cents to the pound sterling since this year's high price was touched in February.

Rates on Paris, Rome and Brussels also yielded, but the day's weakness manifestly converged on sterling, whose movement has become more striking than any reaction which has occurred in that market since it fell back from $4 to $3.58 in the Summer of 1921. The rather numerous causes for this decline are generally known. Most of them are temporary, some are imaginary, and their reflection in the rate has now been rather absurdly overdone. Apparently the present sellers of sterling have counted on the prospect of a general election in Great Britain as a barrier to any recovery in the rate. But that is assuming much. If, as is highly probable, the speculator in exchange has now taken the centre of the stage, he may have to meet his reckoning.

Prices advanced irregularly on the early stock market; some of the active industrial shares, including United States Steel, rose a point or more, and the railway shares were strong. But heavy realizing sales for speculative account turned the market abruptly downward, and it closed with advances and declines for the day pretty evenly balanced. Wall Street was disposed to ascribe the reaction to the announcement of cut prices for gasoline. It cannot get rid of the idea that prosperity and the investor's attitude are bound up with the price of oil. Yet there is probably no market in all the list, whose fluctuations in price have less significance as a sign of the industrial movement. In the earlier part of the day, stress was laid on Secretary Mellon's statement concerning the practicability of a $323,000,000 cut in income taxes. The Secretary's reasoning is impressive and convincing; but the financial community will have to consider it as a proposal, the prospect of whose enactment cannot yet be safely judged.

Inasmuch as the weakness of sterling has been at least partly ascribed to purely commercial influences, yesterday's cabled statement of Great Britain's foreign trade in October has a bearing on the movement of exchange. The statement shows England's imports to have been the largest in value of any month since January, 1921; exceeding those of October in either 1922 or 1921 by £14,000,000, or something more than $60,000,000. There can be little doubt that cotton accounts for this. Even in September our increased cotton shipments to England were worth approximately $20,000,000 more than in the same month a year ago, and the price went higher in October.

But the trade statement does not point entirely in one direction. Exports also have increased heavily; with three exceptions they are the largest monthly total since 1920, when inflated values cut a figure in the returns. At a result, the surplus of imports was not greatly above the monthly average of the year. It was in fact not £2,000,000 above the import excess even in October, 1913. The natural inference would be that, while circumstances have given to England's trade with the United States a turn unfavorable to England, her trade balance with the rest of the world has been holding up extremely well. In the ten completed months of 1923, total exports of British products have been in value £200,000,000 above the same period in 1913; an increase of 45 per cent. as against an increase of some 60 per cent. in average prices. On the whole, this is better than might have been predicted.

MONEY.

Stock Exchange call money easy, opening and renewing at 4½ per cent., a fractional concession from Friday's final rate declined to 4½, around midday, and ruled there until close. There was very little doing in fixed period money, with standing loans and new money loaned at 5 and 5¼ per cent. unchanged from previously prevailing charges. Commercial paper was moderately active at 5 per cent., though 5¼ was made on occasional trades.

Directors of the Sherwin-Williams Company yesterday declared an extra dividend of one-half of 1 per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent.

The balance sheet shows assets of $27,202,097, of which $1,891,403 is cash and $239,547 in notes receivable and trade acceptances. The inventory is given as $11,451,925 and the plants and equipment at $14,464,875.

GRAIN EXPORTS DECREASE.

Last Week 451,000 Bushels Under Week Preceding.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Grain exports from the United States last week were 1,698,000 bushels compared with 2,147,000 the week before.

Figures made public today by the Commerce Department gave the following comparisons between exports of last week and those of the previous week: Barley, 20,000 bushels against 205,000; corn, 79,000 against 95,000; oats, 181,000 against 64,000; rye, 26,000 against 109,000; wheat, 1,380,000 against 1,574,000; flour, 359,000 barrels against 349,300.

Canadian grain shipped from United States ports last week amounted to 1,675,000 bushels against 1,560,000 the previous week.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

A Day of Reaction.

Following more than ten days of almost continuously advancing prices, the stock market yesterday experienced reaction in prices. While some stocks, including American Can, Smelters, Du Pont, and a few others dropped a point or more, the declines in most instances were confined to fractions. The market was not without its gains, and in some instances advances of a point or more were recorded. The Erie stocks were the leaders in the low-priced railroad list, taking the place held by Southern Railway in Saturday's market. On the heaviest dealings witnessed in some time, Erie issues rallied more than a point. Specialties which moved against the trend included Consolidated Industrial Alcohol, the latter advancing on rumors of increased dividends. Davison Chemical. Aside from American Can, the market leaders were irregular. Studebaker reacted ¾ point, Steel common gained ⅛ while Baldwin was down ⅝.

The Taking of Profits.

Despite the fact that the financial district, especially that portion of it with speculative tendencies, has veered over to the side of rising prices amid the blare of trumpets and the rolling of drums, almost all of the people who bought stocks last week, and who have watched good-sized profits amass in the meantime, have been looking with one eye at the market and the other at their profits. Most of them explain that "a profit is a profit" and that it has been so long since they have taken one that they just want to try the experiment to see how it feels. At any rate, there was a good deal of this sort of selling yesterday by people professed to be thoroughly convinced this is a bull market but who also expressed the fear that this belief is not so universally held as to preclude the possibility of a good-sized reaction.

Mr. Mellon's Tax Proposals.

Much gratification was expressed over the tax-scaling program of Secretary Mellon as announced yesterday, but opinion was divided on the question as to whether his recommendations will receive the necessary support of Congress to put them into effect. "Congress is so evenly divided, especially in the Senate," one conservative banker summed up the case, "that it seems doubtful if any affirmative legislation can be accomplished along this line." As for the new proposals proving popular, he believed they should, "inasmuch as they help practically every class of a man with an income, from the man who pays a tax on $5,000 a year to the extremely wealthy individual with an income running into the millions." The financial district was particularly gratified at what appeared to be a fairly unanimous suggestion in the dispatches that President Coolidge would support Mr. Mellon's plan.

The Market and the News.

The stock market quite evidently can "take its news or leave it alone." When the market was in a declining mood even the most "constructive" developments left it more or less cold. On the other hand, since the advance has started, it is the opinion of many Wall Street people that it has been too prone to exaggerate the good news and to "play it along" for all it is worth. An indication that the market is not in any mood to become frightened at unsettling news was found in its action yesterday morning. It had before it two news items which could hardly be called bullish. One of them was the decline in United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage, the other a fresh reduction in gasoline prices. But these were viewed with complete complacency and equanimity, and the market at least started the new week in what was considered by professional Wall Street as very good fashion, despite the fact that profit-taking dulled its edge before the close of the day.

London as Seller of Sterling.

The further decline of sterling yesterday was described in five words by one foreign exchange dealer. "New York bought, London sold," he said. Just why London was a heavy seller could not be definitely determined, he suggested, there being no material change in a process which has been going on for some months. Selling of sterling for purposes of debt funding, he said, has probably been overemphasized; that proposition has now been practically provided for. A new factor in the situation, it was suggested, lay in the fact that Parliament will convene tomorrow, and in this connection the strength of labor and the chance of a new election has caused some misgivings among men of money, who fear higher taxes, and in at least some important instances are now transferring their sterling balances to dollar balances.

Now that it appears certain that there will be no let-up in the program of the railways for expanding their service into next year, necessitating large expenditures on a parity with those made this year, commission houses are calling attention to some old-time bond investment opportunities. The buying arguments thus set forth may be interpreted as signalizing a definite change in the public's attitude toward railway securities generally. One house that makes a specialty of dealing in railroad bonds advised its customers yesterday they could not do better than to invest their idle funds accordingly, and particular attention was directed to the old closed mortgages, which comprise about $3,000,000,000 of the $12,000,000,00 of railroad bonds issued. In this connection the point was made that "as the roads spend the additional billion a year required for the proper development of their plant, increasing equities of about 10 per cent. will go behind these mortgages each year."

Pipe Line Company Dividends.

The record of dividends paid by the pipe line companies which were subsidiaries of the old Standard Oil Company of New Jersey before it was dissolved will not make as favorable a showing this year as compared with 1922. While most of the Standard Oil marketing and refining companies declared stock dividends last year, the pipe line companies distributed large cash dividends. The Crescent Pipe Line Company in 1922 reduced its par from $50 to $25 a share and distributed a cash dividend of $25 a share. Yesterday it passed its quarterly dividend. The New York Transit Company distributed $30 extra cash last year and is now paying $2 a share quarterly against $4 a share quarterly last year. The Buckeye, which paid $27 extra cash last year, is now paying quarterly dividends of $1.50 a share against $2 quarterly in 1922. Wall Street is now wondering if the large extra cash dividend paid by these companies last year was a wise policy.

Government Withdrawals.

The announcement that on Thursday the Government would withdraw $5,448,000 from depositary banks in this district of the Federal Reserve system was taken to indicate that recent withdrawals from New York have been in preparation of the Treasury's disbursements of $46,000,000 as interest on some classes of its Liberty bonds. A smaller withdrawal will be made today, bringing the total in sight for the week to $13,548,000. Last week, withdrawals in the same moderate amount were made and also during the two previous weeks. The amounts have been so slight that they have produced no ripple in the local money market and yet within the last thirty days there has been effected an accumulation in the Treasury of enough money to pay more than half of the interest disbursement due on Thursday.

Beginning March 23, the Stock Exchange officially quotes Liberty Bonds in units and fractions, the fractions being 32ds of a unit, and the quotations after the decimal point representing one or more 32ds. In the above table, therefore, the figures of highest and lowest prices during 1923 and since date of issue are reduced to the form now used in the Stock Exchange quotations.

Coupons and Living Costs

The reason for this is of course quite clear—the more you can buy with your coupon, the more valuable is your bond.

In judging the rise and fall of commodity prices and basing your bond purchases accordingly, the selection of long or short term bonds is very important.

OFFER $20,000,000 RAILROAD BONDS

J. P. Morgan & Co. Heads Syndicate to Handle Southern Railway Issue.

FOR IMPROVEMENT NEEDS

First Financing of This Kind Since Early in September—Other Offerings.

A new issue of $20,000,000 Southern Railway development and improvement mortgage 6 per cent. bonds will be offered today by a syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co., and including the First National Bank, National City Company, Harris, Forbes & Co., Guaranty Company and the Bankers Trust Company. This is the largest piece of railroad financing announced in Wall Street since the first week of September when the Union Pacific offered $20,000,000 bonds.

The bonds, like the last issue of 6½ per cent., are secured up to 4 per cent., annual interest under the same mortgage covering the old 4 per cent. bonds, the 2 per cent. additional interest being covered by a supplemental indenture. Approximately $110,000,000 of bonds have been issued under this mortgage, including the current issue of $20,000,000 6 per cent. bonds, and $61,000,000 4 per cents and $30,000,000 6½ per cents.

The bonds will be sold at 96½ and interest to yield 6.25 per cent. They are non-callable and mature April 3, 1956. The proceeds from this new issue will be used for double tracking and yard improvements, which according to bankers will yield earnings equal to 20 per cent. on the additional investment.

The earnings of the company in the past seven years equaled 1¾ times interest charges and this year they will be equal to more than twice interest requirements, according to the latest estimates. The road this year is expected to report earnings of $14,000,000 after all interest charges, including the new issue, which after allowing for dividends on the preferred stock will leave a balance equal to $10 a share on the common stock.

Freeman & Co. and F. L. Fuller Company, Incorporated, of Cleveland have arranged to buy $5,400,000 6 per cent. equipment trust certificates of the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission. A syndicate is expected to distribute these bonds on a 6 per cent. yield basis in the near future.

A syndicate, headed by the National City Company and including the Bankers Trust Company and William R. Compton Company, are offering $5,000,000 City of Los Angeles (Cal.) 4¾ per cent. bonds, which mature serially from Oct. 1, 1924 to 1963, inclusive. The bonds are being offered at prices to yield 4.60 per cent., according to maturity. The proceeds of the issue will be used for harbor improvements.

A new issue of $2,156,000 City of Akron (Ohio) 5 and 5¼ per cent. bonds, dated Aug. 1 and Sept. 1, 1923, are being offered at prices to yield 4.65 per cent. for all maturities, by a syndicate headed by the Guaranty Company and including Ames, Emerich & Co., Eldredge & Co. and W. A. Harriman & Co. The bonds mature serially Oct. 1, 1924 to 1947, inclusive. These bonds, issued for sewers and street improvement purposes, according to the bankers, constitute a general obligation of the entire city.

A new issue of $1,000,000 joint first mortgage 7 per cent. serial gold bonds of the Oklahoma Iron Works, International Supply Company is being offered by A. C. Allyn & Co. The bonds are being sold at prices ranging from 100 to 100.96 to yield from 7 to 6 per cent., according to maturity. The bonds mature from Nov. 1, 1924 to 1933, inclusive.

The Well, Roth & Irving Company is offering a new issue of $737,000 Morehouse Parish, Louisiana Road District No. 2, 5 per cent. bonds, maturing 1924 to 1954, inclusive, at prices to yield 5.30 per cent.

Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., are offering $100,000 Milan County, Texas, Road District No. 2, 5½ per cent. bonds at prices to yield from 5.25 to 5.20 per cent. The bonds mature serially from 1924 to 1953, inclusive. Eldredge & Co. are offering two issues of bonds of cities in this State. One issue of $100,000 for the City of Schenectady, bearing 5 per cent. interest, is being offered on a basis to yield 4.30 per cent. These bonds mature from 1924 to 1927. The other issue of $140,000 is for the City of Yonkers. These bonds bear 4 and 4½ per cent. interest and are being sold on a 4.30 per cent. yield basis. They mature from 1924 to 1927, inclusive.

BARTLETT DENIES RUMOR.

He Says Cotton Exchange Is Not Trying to Close Odd-Lot Centre.

Edward E. Bartlett Jr., President of the New York Cotton Exchange, yesterday denied rumors the exchange had served notice upon an odd-lot cotton exchange "to close within twenty-four hours."

"The exchange," Mr. Bartlett said, "has no authority to take such action, and the statement that it was reported to have done so was unwarranted. While the Cotton Exchange is interested in zealously guarding its quotations and seeing that they do not reach any persons or firms not entitled to receive them and who might make improper use of them, we are not engaged in a campaign against odd-lot cotton exchanges as such.

"If any exchange is violating the law or perpetrating or attempting to perpetrate a fraud upon the public the civil authorities have the power and should take proper action to close it."

HABIRSHAW PLAN OPPOSED.

Dissenting Creditors Demand "Fair and Proper Reorganization."

The committee representing the dissenting creditors and bondholders of the Habirshaw Electric Cable Company issued a statement yesterday requesting the other creditors and bondholders to co-operate in opposing the present reorganization plan of that company.

The committee says that about $700,000 in bonds and creditors' claims have admitted opposition to the plan, many of which are already deposited with the Reorganization Committee, and that others representing $300,000 are all ready to join in a "fair and proper reorganization."

Liggett & Myers Stock Plans.

Stockholders of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company voted yesterday to divide the common and the common B shares of the company on a basis of four shares of new $25 par stock for each of the $100 par stock. PIGGLY WIGGLY STOCK OFFERS ARE STOPPED

Memphis Court Warns Brokers of Penalty for Frightening Small Shareholders.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Attorneys for the Piggly Wiggly Corporation today appealed to C. L. Marsilliot, Federal Master in Chancery, to rule immediately as to the solvency of the corporation, on the ground that the corporation is being embarrassed by the action of certain New York brokers in mailing cards offering $11 a share for Class A stock of the Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., and $15 for corporation stock.

Mr. Marsilliot overruled the motion, which also asked that he deny the plea of Clarence Saunders, former executive head of Piggly Wiggly, for a receiver for the corporation and that the hearing be confined in the future to an accounting procedure. Mr. Marsilliot announced that he would regard it as contempt of court action of any person "which tends to lead small stockholders to become frightened over the value of their stock."

Several New York dealers in inactive securities admitted that they had circularized stockholders of the Piggly Wiggly Corporation and Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., in an effort to create a market for the shares of those companies. They expressed surprise at news dispatches from Memphis to the effect that the Federal Master in Chancery had announced he would regard as "contempt of court" the action of any person which would tend to lead small stockholders to become frightened over the value of their stock, and said they did not believe their offers could be so construed.

One dealer said the action of brokers in making offers for the Piggly Wiggly stocks differed in no way from their efforts to "make a market" in any inactive stock.

No intimation that the circulars sent to stockholders of the company might be considered as interfering with the court proceedings, which followed the recent "corner," has been received by the New York dealers, and if such is shown to be the case, it was stated, they would discontinue offers.

WAR BOND INTEREST.

Government to Pay $68,000,000 on Nov. 15—$23,000,000 Comes Here.

Approximately $68,000,000 in interest will be paid by the United States Government on Nov. 15 to the holders of 4 per cent. Second Liberty Loan bonds of 1927-42 and on the 4¼ per cent. Second Liberty Loan bonds of the same issue. Of this amount about $23,000,000 will be paid to the holders of these obligations in New York.

The entire transaction, in the opinion of the financial district, will be accomplished without a ripple in the money market, since the Government has been drawing on the Federal Reserve Banks for the last month in anticipation of this large payment of interest. An instance of the gradual Government withdrawals is the $3,310,000 that will be taken from the member banks in the local district tomorrow. Another call for $5,443,000 has been made for Thursday from the member banks in the New York district.

Interest coupons payable on Nov. 15 may be sent to the Coupon Paying Division of the Federal Reserve Bank. Checks in payment of coupons thus deposited in advance will be ready for delivery at 9:30 Thursday morning.

FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

Hutton & Co., underwriting bankers of the new issue of Niederbank (Austria) shares, reported yesterday that subscriptions to the bank's stock had been received from all parts of the country. The bankers said that inquiry about the shares from foreign-born investors had been particularly large.

Jones Bros. Tea Co. Shows Gain.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

London Selling Puts Sterling at Lowest Since March, 1922—Continentals Also Down.

Foreign exchanges were erratic yesterday, the trend being very much a counterpart of the sessions of the past week. Sterling again drew the centre of interest, and as a result of heaviness abroad, communicated in lower cables. London sight drafts started at a decline of more than 3½ cents, at $4.35 3-16, lowest since March 17, 1922. There was a fractional dip from this point almost immediately, after which on some good buying by banks the absorption was better and the rate turned up narrowing the loss to one cent from Saturday's final. Trading circles attributed the weakness to London selling, following the chaotic condition of political affairs abroad, to which yesterday was added the unfavorable statement of British trade for October.

Paris checks were also weak, starting at a 4-point break at 5.54 cents, selling off to 5.53, with a recovery to 5.56¼ cents. Italian, Holland and Spanish likewise sustained losses, while the Scandinavians were firm and slightly higher. In the Far Easterns, where improvement was registered in the Chinese Exchange on higher silver prices, the Japanese yen declined almost ½ cent, to 48 cents, a new low for the year. South Americans were heavy and at concessions.

Quotations for German marks found Berlin checks nominally valued at 40 cents per trillion marks, unchanged from previous closing. At this level 2,500 billion marks were worth one dollar, compared with 4,000 billion a week ago, and 10,000 a year ago.

International Supply Company, all of the stock of which is owned by Oklahoma Iron Works, is engaged in distributing, throughout the Mid-Continent field, the products manufactured by Oklahoma Iron Works, together with complete lines of the very best grades of other oil and gas well supplies, for which it acts as jobber or exclusive agent in this field.

SECURITY: These bonds are the joint obligation of Oklahoma Iron Works and International Supply Company, and are secured by a direct closed first mortgage on all fixed property of the two Companies, specifically including the manufacturing plant of Oklahoma Iron Works, at Tulsa, Oklahoma, and the distributing houses, warehouses and repair shops of International Supply Company, located at fifteen strategic points in the Mid-Continent field of Oklahoma and Kansas.

An Independent Trustee Protects These Mortgage Bond Buyers

COMMONWEALTH First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds are attractive to conservative investors—large or small—because a banking institution of national standing is invariably appointed sole trustee for each issue of Commonwealth Bonds.

This feature (seldom found in real estate mortgage bonds) assures investors of getting what is due on the day it is due. Investment authorities agree that the Commonwealth policy of independent trusteeship is one that every investor should demand.

Will you give us the opportunity to tell you why? It is a story every investor can profit by. Call or write at once.

CRESCENT PIPE LINE DIVIDEND IS PASSED

First Time There Has Been No Payment Since Dissolution of Old Standard Oil.

OHIO FIRM CUTS ITS RATE

Famous Players Company Declares Regular Quarterly Dividend of $2 a Share.

Directors of the Crescent Pipe Line Company yesterday passed the regular quarterly dividend on the company's capital stock due to be declared at this time. This is the first time since the dissolution of the old Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, in 1911, that a subsidiary pipe line company has passed its dividend, according to statements made in the financial district. This action on the part of the Board of Directors breaks a succession of liberal dividends on the part of the company, especially in view of the disbursements made last year. In view of last year's dividend, Wall Street expressed surprise concerning the action of the board yesterday.

Last year when most of the Standard Oil companies distributed large extra dividends in the form of stock the pipe line companies distributed large extra dividends ranging from $25 to as much as $50 a share. Crescent Pipe Line, one of the group which distributed extra cash dividends, reduced the par value of its stock from $50 to $25 a share, but at the same time distributed an extra cash dividend of $25 a share, to conform with the change in par value and also declared another extra dividend of $2 a share. In addition to this the company last year paid quarterly dividends of 75 cents, making total payments of $50 a share. Early this year the dividend was reduced to 37½ cents a share quarterly and three dividends of this amount have been paid thus far in 1923. Payment of the regular dividend of 37½ cents a share quarterly would have called for disbursement of only $22,500 on the 60,000 shares of $25 par value stock outstanding.

The heavy production of crude oil in California has materially affected the earnings of the pipe line, as Eastern refiners which heretofore relied upon the mid-continent fields for their source of supply have since the beginning of this year taken oil from California, which could be obtained in large quantities and shipped east via the Panama Canal at prices lower than the cost of mid-continent crude. As a result of this it is estimated that earnings of the pipe line companies have been reduced 50 per cent. as compared with 1922.

Directors of the Ohio Oil Company yesterday reduced the quarterly dividend on its capital stock to 25 cents a share, payable Dec. 31, to stockholders of record Nov. 23. In the two previous quarters the company paid dividends of 50 cents a share, while in the first quarter of 1923 a payment of 75 cents a share was made.

The Famous Players Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share on the common stock, payable Jan. 2, 1924, to stockholders of record Dec. 15, 1923. Recently the stock of this company broke rather sharply on the New York Stock Exchange in connection with rumors that the dividend would be reduced or passed as a result of the company's program of curtailed operations. At the time, however, officials of the company announced that its new policy would in no way affect the company's dividend policy.

Owens Bottle Dividend.

Directors of the Owens Bottle Company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock and 75 cents a share on the common stock, both dividends being payable Jan. 1, 1924, to stockholders of record Dec. 16, 1923.

PLAN NEW FINANCING FOR CONSOLIDATED GAS

Directors to Discuss $30,000,000 Stock Issue Today—Shares Fall After Announcement.

Directors of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York will meet today to discuss proposed new financing. According to reports yesterday the company contemplates the issuance of $30,000,000 of new stock consisting of 600,000 shares of $50 par value each, which it is expected will be offered to stockholders at the par value on the basis of one share of new stock for each five shares now held.

Receipt of the news resulted in fairly heavy offerings of the present outstanding stock and a decline of four points from 62½ to 58½ followed. The shares closed at 58¾.

Robert E. Livingston, Director of Information of the company, yesterday issued the following statement:

"The question of the best method of permanently financing the large capital expenditures during the last year of the Consolidated Gas Company and its subsidiary companies, which have been temporarily taken care of through short-time loans, has been under consideration by the officers of the company for some time.

"A special meeting of the board to take action upon the matter has been called for Tuesday, at which the officers will recommend to the board that the necessary requirements be met by giving the stockholders an opportunity to subscribe ratably for new stock on the basis of $50 a share."

NEW YORK STANDARD NOT TO LIST STOCK

DISPUTE OVER LISTING FEE

Corporation Contended the Charge Should Be $22,500—Exchange Officials Demanded $90,000.

The Standard Oil Company of New York will not list its stock on the New York Stock Exchange and the trading in these shares will continue on the New York Curb Market. A last-minute hitch occurred in the negotiations between officials of the corporation and the Listing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange concerning the amount of money the corporation would be obliged to pay for listing, and the application filed by the corporation that its stock be listed has been withdrawn. This action caused surprise in the financial district as it had been definitely stated that the stock would be listed. In fact, the deal had gone so far that a specialist for the stock on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange already had been named.

The disagreement was as to whether the Standard Oil Company of New York should pay $90,000 or $22,500 for the privilege of listing. It revolved around a technical interpretation of the Exchange requirements for listing, growing out of the recent splitting of the company's shares of $100 par value into shares of $25 par value. The requirements of the Committee on Stock List of the New York Stock Exchange, over which the hitch developed, have been in effect since Sept. 1, 1922. The paragraph causing the issue is as follows:

"Applications (for stock list) must be accompanied by the required papers and agreements and by a check for $100 for each $1,000,000, or portion thereof, of each class of security (including stock of the par value of $100) or for each 10,000 shares, or portion thereof, of stock of a par value of less than $100 per share, or for each 10,000 shares, or portion thereof, of stock without nominal or par value."

The new capitalization of the Standard Oil Company of New York is $225,000,000, divided into 9,000,000 shares of the par value of $25. There were two interpretations which might be put upon the cost of listing, one, a cost of $100 per $1,000,000, or the other, $100 for each 10,000 shares. The Standard Oil Company contended that the charge for listing should be $100 per $1,000,000, or a total of $22,500. The Listing Committee of the Exchange is understood to have taken the stand that the correct charge should be $100 for each 10,000 shares. Over this difference of $67,500 there appeared to be no likelihood of agreement, so the application was withdrawn.

No one connected with the Stock Exchange or with the corporation would comment on the difference of opinion. It is the unofficial view of members of the Exchange, however, that it is obliged to live up to its own rules. It was pointed out that several other corporations whose shares have been split up recently and who have listed additional stock have paid for the privilege on the basis of $100 for each 10,000 shares. It was estimated that the Exchange might be obliged to refund something like $1,500,000 in listing charges to other corporations should the rule not be enforced in the case of the Standard.

DECEMBER WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOW

Slight Rally Later on Short Covering in Only Grain Market Open in America.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Chicago was the only big grain market opened in North America today. Scattered liquidation was on in December early with a break of around 1 cent, to $1.02, a new low on the present downturn and 6 cents under the high of last week. The selling, however, quickly ran its course, and, with short covering and some buying by commission houses, the finish was at net losses of ⅝@⅞ of a cent.

The visible supply statement was not given out, owing to the holiday in many of the leading markets. Toledo reported the arrival of 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat during the day.

The continued decline in sterling is being made much of by the local bears, who have apparently ignored the fact that, while sterling has been weak, the actual price paid for December wheat in Liverpool is off only about 1½ cents so far this month, while Chicago has dropped around 5 cents.

There were no material pressure on corn and the finish was ⅛@1 cent higher, December leading. Wet weather prevailed in the West, with the forecast for unsettled, and, with continued investment buying by commission houses, the local selling on the weakness in wheat was quickly absorbed.

In the last few days there has been a little change in sentiment, with some of the houses that have been bearish of late now over on the bull side, on account of the maintenance of cash premiums only the poorest of the sample grade selling lower than the December delivery.

NEW CARS FOR BROOKLYN.

200 Pay-as-You-Pass Type to Be in Service on Jan. 1.

The Brooklyn City Railroad Company will put 200 new cars on its lines about Jan. 1, 1924, it was stated yesterday by H. Hobart Porter, Vice President. They are part of a contract with Philadelphia and St. Louis car manufacturers for $3,100,000 of new equipment.

The new cars are of the pay-as-you-pass type and are being paid for out of the $6,000,000 budget raised for the purchase of new equipment and rebuilding of old equipment. In addition to the above the company has converted 75 old type cars into one-end-two-man cars at a cost of $175,000. The company is now carrying 21,000,000 passengers monthly, an increase of 3,000,000 monthly since independent operation of the road was begun in 1919.

MONEY TO GERMANY BY CABLE STOPPED

Western Union Halts Transfer Service Following Move by American Express.

FINDS RISK IS TOO GREAT

American Dollars Now Can Be Received There Only by Mail or by Tourists.

Following the action of the American Express Company in discontinuing dollar remittances to Germany, the Western Union Telegraph Company yesterday withdrew its money transfer service between the United States and Germany.

Withdrawal of this service was announced by J. C. Willever, Commercial Vice President of the Western Union, in the following order sent out to all offices of the company:

"Because of unsettled conditions in Germany the money transfer service is temporarily suspended."

Mr. Willever explained that the order was a logical sequence of the one issued by the American Express Company last Friday, it which it was stated that the risk of shipping American dollars into Germany had become so great that the business of transmitting them was no longer safe or profitable.

"The American Express Company has been paying our orders in Germany," he said, "and all of our currency shipments are made through the American Express Company. We are subject to the same conditions that govern the business of the American Express Company, and while for the last several years the telegraphic money order business with Germany has not been very active, the Western Union has been handling a large part of it."

As in the case of the American Express Company, whose injunction against the sending of remittances which had to be paid in American currency did not apply to ordinary remittances in drafts which are paid in the local currency at the current rate of exchange on New York, the order of the Western Union, according to Mr. Willever, is not expected to inconvenience American tourists to any great extent. The reason for this is that since the war the demand for this form of money transfer has greatly decreased with respect to Germany.

The action of the Western Union leaves but two direct channels for the transmission of American currency or its equivalent to Germany—the mails and personal conveyance by tourists or others going into Germany.

LIVERPOOL BUYING HELPS COTTON HERE

The combination of another wild advance in Liverpool to highest levels of the year and an estimate of 9,750,000 bales by a New York firm with a record of closely approximating the yield in November for three years past served to inflame the cotton market yesterday. Prices opened up half a cent and at one time attained a maximum gain of 115 points on some months. But the quantity of cotton for sale on a basis of 34 cents for both December and May halted the upward movement and a 30 to 40 point set-back occurred the last hour. The tone disclosed decided feverishness as well as excitement under a large volume of business. Final prices showed a gain of 75 to 87 points.

Liverpool came to the front with an advance of about a cent a pound and a violent upward move into new high territory for the season. The steadiness shown in that quarter on Saturday indicated acute apprehension in trade circles as well as confident speculative operations. But yesterday the entire advancing movement gained as great a degree of momentum as at any time before this year. Excitement appears to grow with the rise in values, and foreign prices continued to lead American markets. A year ago the situation was reversed. Liverpool proved a drag throughout the season, and each new high level attained on this side forced a tardy following from abroad. During the past three months, with hardly any exception, each upward movement has been led by Liverpool. January contracts advanced over 50 English points yesterday to 19.35d., and closed at the top, near positions selling above quotations for middling cotton. This brought a wave of buying, both here and in New Orleans, with an opening gain of half a cent or more. For a few moments following the call selling orders were being executed, but as the morning wore on buying became increasingly aggressive at steadily advancing quotations. With January in Liverpool selling 550 points over New York, differences proved widest of the season and led to heavy foreign buying throughout the first hour. A decline in sterling to $4.35 occurred during the morning.

The general drift in crop estimates below the ten-million mark has not only caused acute nervousness in trade quarters, but encouraged speculative activity. Immediate effects have been to create an inflamed condition of sentiment where violent price changes become an inevitable characteristic of each day's development. While advances yesterday found December contracts for sale, the demand for distant positions encountered only a limited supply. It became necessary for brokers to bid quotations up sharply in order to secure cotton. For weeks the floating supply of contracts has been far below that of previous years at this season, and at no time has any real pressure from marketing of the crop been experienced. In sections where a good crop has been grown this Summer, producers are taking advantage of record prices since values are attractive. But it is still a sellers' market, with more anxiety on the part of the trade to secure raw material than haste on the part of the grower to sell his year's production. Bad weather during the greater part of the picking season and resulting slow ginning have been contributing factors.

The upward rush carried prices over a cent above Saturday's closing and to a basis of 34 cents for December, March and May. Here the market ran into a quantity of December and May contracts too large to be absorbed, and a set-back of about 40 points occurred the last hour. A block of January for sale on the colse left the tone somewhat unsettled in final trading.

STARTLING STATEMENT from American Bankers' Association

FORGER IS CALLED BANKS' WORST FOE

REVEALS SOME SCHEMES

Clever Criminals Find Easy Victims —Advice and Warning Given In Statement.

Methods by which crooks obtain information or material upon which to work in passing worthless checks are described in a statement by the protective department of the American Bankers' Association. According to the statement, forgery leads among crimes of those who prey on banks, with holdups second. Of 363 persons arrested since Aug. 21 through the activities of the association, 268 were accused of forgery and eighty-one of hold-ups. "In the Eastern States," the statement says, "one operator obtained signatures through the careful scans of a depositor in disposing of soiled deposit slips. With one such slip in his possession he executes a facsimile of the customer's signature to a check for a large amount. Being an expert forger he has no trouble in passing the check. "Another operator's plan is to loiter about a bank awaiting the arrival of a depositor. After the customer has made his deposit the operator follows him to his office, later in the day calling upon him as the representative of a large electric light company, at the same time giving him a card listing all electrical apparatus used in the home, with the request that he check those he owns. The operator's manner is so plausible that the depositor readily signs the card, thereby furnishing the operator with just what he requires in order to successfully forge the depositor's name to checks.

"The losses through forgery and alteration of checks last year were estimated at $50,000,000. Much of this amount could have been saved if many of those whose indifference was induced by the feeling that insurance relieved them of obligation to prevent crime, had observed the few simple rules for safeguarding checks.

"Among the most important of these are that blank checks and canceled vouchers should be kept under lock. Checks marred by drawing should be destroyed and checks should never be signed in blank.

In the statement which appeared in The New York Times of November 5th (only partly reproduced), it appeared that over 73% of the 363 persons arrested through the activities of the Association since August 21st were accused of FORGERY!

RAIL CONSOLIDATION BATTLE IS RENEWED

A. H. Smith Warns New York of Danger of Further Loss of Export Traffic.

PHILADELPHIANS AROUSED

The interests of the Port of New York and the entire metropolitan district will be jeopardized if the Interstate Commerce Commission confirms its tentative allocation of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey to the Baltimore & Ohio in its general railroad consolidation plan, A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central, asserted yesterday. Such a step, Mr. Smith asserted, would mean further diversion of traffic to the port of Baltimore. Diversion to Philadelphia, he added, would follow control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey by the Philadelphia & Reading.

The New York Central, through Mr. Smith, has suggested to the commission that the Central Railroad of New Jersey be consolidated with the New York Central and that the New York Central further receive the Catawissa branch of the Philadelphia & Reading to give the New York Central a new trunk line to Chicago. Hearings on the consolidation plan will be resumed by the commission at Washington on Friday. Mr. Smith will be a witness Saturday or Monday and warmly advocate consolidation with his railroad.

"We are looking to the future in asking for the Central Railroad of New Jersey," Mr. Smith said. "We are in the centre of a population of sixteen or eighteen million people and if New York City's transportation facilities are congested now what will they be in ten years? With the Central Railway of New Jersey and one small branch of the Philadelphia & Reading we can develop another important trunk line to the West, which will be greatly needed in the future."

Export Traffic Here Menaced.

Mr. Smith said that the Baltimore & Ohio was interested in the development of the port of Baltimore, and declared that the consolidation of the Philadelphia & Reading and the Central Railroad of New Jersey with the Baltimore & Ohio would necessarily mean the diversion of more and more traffic to Baltimore and from New York.

"New York is the principal port in the United States and used to carry from 65 to 70 per cent. of export traffic. Now this has sunk to 41 per cent., but this doesn't seem to alarm any one."

Mr. Smith explained that he had offered, in case the Central Railroad of New Jersey was consolidated with the New York Central, to give trackage rights and adequate terminal facilities to the Baltimore & Ohio. Asked about the recent statement of E. H. Outerbridge, Chairman of the Port of New York Authority, that he might have a solution to suggest that both the Baltimore & Ohio and the New York Central could accept and which would provide two new trunk lines, Mr. Smith said that, so far as he could learn, this provided for joint operation by the two major railroads, which he said would be unsatisfactory to him.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, the New York Produce Exchange, the Maritime Association of the Port of New York and the Newark Chamber of Commerce have endorsed the New York Central plan, but Mr. Smith said that popular support for it here had been much less than in opposition against it in Philadelphia and Baltimore.

Telegrams between Mr. Smith and E. Hoff Knight, manager of the Port of Philadelphia Ocean Traffic Bureau, sustained the view that the interest of the Philadelphia & Reading lay in the development of the port of Philadelphia and that of the Baltimore & Ohio in the development of the port of Baltimore. This telegraphic correspondence was started by a telegram from Mr. Smith to Samuel P. Leeds, President of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce, in regard to the latter's speech at the conference of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce at Harrisburg on Oct. 18.

Mr. Smith to Mr. Leeds.

"I am writing to ask," Mr. Smith said in reference to parts of Mr. Leeds's speech, "if you will be good enough to telegraph me at my expense wherein our proposal damages in any manner whatsoever either Philadelphia or the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad, and why the plan which we have proposed will not be helpful to the general railroad situation?"

Mr. Leeds replied that he was fully acquainted with and had no objection to the Transportation Act or the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission. "But the people in this territory," he added, "do strenuously object to methods employed to bring about consolidation with non-co-operative companies."

Mr. Smith sent another telegram to Mr. Leeds asking him to specify the methods considered objectionable and repeating his assertion that the New York Central had not initiated any action with respect to the Central Railroad of New Jersey but had merely suggested an alternative. The following telegram from Mr. Knight was received:

"Your telegram to Mr. Leeds, President Atlantic Chamber of Commerce, relative his remarks against proposal of New York Central Lines to take over major parts of Reading and Jersey Central, published in morning papers, warrants answer from this bureau, which has taken a leading part in opposition, having already registered its disapproval before the Interstate Commerce Commission and Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce. The Reading is a Pennsylvania institution and a very important factor in the development of the Port of Philadelphia, the commonwealth's only seaport, and has invested vast sums in providing modern marine terminals for the prompt and economic handling of ocean commerce.

"The New York Central Lines have devoted their energies to the upbuilding of the Port of New York, the same as the B. & O. have done at Baltimore. By placing the facilities of the Reading in control of either company would have disastrous effect on the City of Philadelphia, the State of Pennsylvania, their commercial prestige, invested capital and the people generally. As a railroad executive, you certainly appreciate the fact that the only Pennsylvania line for Pennsylvania, used to manufacture sentiment and deceive our people, has been in operation for years, covered by through rates and giving satisfactory and dependable service. No reason has yet been advanced to warrant any disturbance of existing arrangements. Philadelphia shippers as a unit are opposed to your scheme.

Other Telegraphic Discussion.

New York, Oct. 22, 1923.

Your telegram 20th in reply to my message Oct. 18 to President Leeds of Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce received. I call your attention to following statement in my testimony before Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, May 16, this year:

"If the Philadelphia & Reading remains independent the needs of the New York Central Lines, so far as the Reading is concerned, would be satisfied by the acquisition of the Catawissa branch of the Reading, with terminal and interchange facilities as Tamanend."

Will you be good enough to point out in what way this proposal would have a disastrous effect upon the City of Philadelphia, the State of Pennsylvania, their commercial prestige, invested capital and the people generally."

In other words, I would like to know why the detachment of the Catawissa branch of the Philadelphia & Reading, naturally forming a part of the through Chicago-Williamsport-New York route, would in any way adversely affect the interests you represent. I also call your attention to the fact that the proposals which were made by the New York Central concerning the Reading, other than to protect the existing through route New York-Williamsport-Chicago, were entirely based, and so stated by me upon the assumption that the Philadelphia & Reading property would go to the Baltimore & Ohio system, as apparently contemplated by the tentative plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission. I shall appreciate it very much if you will let me hear from you promptly.

A. H. SMITH,
President New York Central Lines.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23, 1923.

A. H. Smith, New York.

Your wire received today. This bureau is familiar with your testimony before Interstate Commerce Commission. However, the practices of your representatives and the character of propaganda now being spread throughout Pennsylvania, particularly articles by Leigh H. Wilson in Sunbury, Lewisburg, Danville and other papers, showing real objects of the New York Central, indicate that your stand before Interstate Commerce Commission relative Catawissa branch has apparently been abandoned. I refer you to these newspapers for proof of this. We are absolutely opposed to any disturbance of the existing Philadelphia & Reading, Central Railroad of New Jersey systems.

E. HOFF KNIGHT,
Port of Philadelphia Ocean Traffic Bureau.

New York, Oct. 24, 1923.

Your telegram 23rd received. The proposals of the New York Central stand on my testimony of May 16, this year. They have never been modified. Any statements purporting to be made on our behalf in conflict with my testimony are unauthorized. However, I have been unable to find in any such statements which have been brought to my attention anything inconsistent with our position as stated in my testimony. I again call your attention to the alternate proposals made by the New York Central as stated in my telegram of yesterday, depending upon whether the Philadelphia & Reading remains independent or is to be assigned to the Baltimore & Ohio system, in accordance with the Interstate Commerce Commission's tentative plan. If, as you stated in your telegram of the 20th, the Philadelphia & Reading is to be regarded as a Pennsylvania institution and a very important factor in the development of the Port of Philadelphia, why should it control three miles of terminals and waterfront in the Harbor of New York through the retention of the control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey? I also observe you did not reply to the inquiry contained in my telegram of yesterday.

A. H. SMITH.

VOTING TRUST ENDS FOR CHESTER GRANT

Woodhouse Announces the Agreement of Ottoman-American Co. Is Dissolved.

ITALY TO AID DEVELOPMENT

Will Participate to Extent of 10% in All Activities, Says Statement to Stockholders.

The voting trust agreement of the Ottoman-American Development Company, owners of the Chester concession, which was drawn up for the purpose of assuring American control of the company which is to develop the concession, will be dissolved, according to a statement sent to stockholders by Henry Woodhouse. Mr. Woodhouse was appointed a committee of one by stockholders, to communicate with officials of the State Department at Washington for the purpose of ascertaining the views of the Department with regard to assuring American control of the company.

The State Department, according to correspondence made public by Mr. Woodhouse in his letter, notified the company that it is against its policy to interfere with "the internal affairs of private companies." Mr. Woodhouse also says that when the voting trust agreement was drawn up, on Dec. 4, 1922, it contained a statement that control of the company must be vested in American hands, in order to "secure the support of the State Department of the United States in the negotiations now being carried on for the purpose of obtaining a confirmation by the Grand National Assembly of the State of Turkey of said concession in favor of the company."

Mr. Woodhouse says in his statement that "upon conferring with officials of the Department of State I was surprised to learn that not only the department had not requested that such a trust be executed, but was not aware that reference was made to the department in the said agreement. And during the interview Mr. Woodhouse said that in view of the importance of this he asked that the statements be confirmed in writing. The correspondence with the State Department is continued in his letter.

The latter further says that the Italian Government will participate to the concession to the extent of $100,000. Under its agreement with the Italian Government the latter will participate to the extent of 10 per cent. in all activities of the company and will supply 10 per cent. of the engineers needed; 10 per cent. of the shipping of construction materials to Turkey will be in Italian ships, and Italy will have one director on the board.

The letter explains also how the 50,000 shares of the company's stock are distributed. The figures show that 20,000 are held in the treasury and 15,300 held in the voting trust. Henry Woodhouse holds 4,000 shares, Pouch & Co. 4,100 shares, S. T. Callaway 2,100, Major Gen. Wm. A. Brancker, K. C. B., 1,200, N. Charles Kennedy 1,000, J. W. Clayton 800, E. N. Lawton 800, F. S. NEW GASOLINE CUT BENEFITS THE EAST

LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1915

Another reduction of 1 cent a gallon for gasoline was announced in New York, New Jersey and other Eastern States yesterday. The reduction brings the new wholesale price down to 15½ cents a gallon and the retail price down to 18 cents, a drop of 8 cents a gallon from the wholesale price quoted in this State on Jan. 1 and the lowest price quoted since September, 1915. The price quoted in the boom year of 1920 was 21 cents wholesale, or double the current price, and the low price reached in this city in 1914, just after the outbreak of the World War, was 12 cents wholesale.

The Gulf Refining Company, leading independent, was the first to make a reduction. This was followed at once by reductions by the Standard Oil Company of New York, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and many independent companies operating in competition with the Gulf Company and the Standard Oil organizations.

The Gulf Refining Company first cut its price 1 cent a gallon in Maryland, Virginia to 14½ cents a gallon wholesale and 17 cents retail. In other New England States it reduced its price 1 cent a gallon, to 15½ cents wholesale and 1 cents retail. The price in this State was cut to 15½ cents wholesale. Immediately following this reduction the Standard of New York and New Jersey reduced their prices to 15½ cents a gallon wholesale to meet the cut by the Gulf Refining Company.

The average price of gasoline, based upon the prices quoted in thirty large cities, is now 12.48 cents a gallon, against a 1912 high average of 11.11 and a price of 19.3 on Jan. 1, 1921. The following compilation by Dow, Jones & Co. shows the prices quoted in thirty cities:

Predictions have been made in the oil trade recently that the price of gasoline may be reduced further during the Winter and some leaders said they would not be surprised of the retail prices dropped to 15 cents a gallon, or three cents below the current price.

L. M. KARDOS ADMITS $625,000 IN PROFITS

SAYS ALL WENT TO EXPENSE

Bankrupt Broker Contradicts Testimony of the Trustee's Accountant.

Louis M. Kardos Jr. of the bankrupt brokerage firm of Kardos & Burke admitted yesterday in a hearing before Referee Peter B. Olney Jr. at 68 William Street that he made $625,000 in three personal accounts maintained in violation of a stipulation in his partnership contract with former United States Treasurer John Burke.

This testimony contradicted that given several days ago by Joseph M. Kraus, accountant for the trustee. Kraus testified that in the account carried by Kardos in the name of Max Goodney there was a loss of $600,860. This was one of the accounts in which, Kardos swore yesterday, he made large profits. He asserted he gave a clerk power of attorney, but did not check up on the transactions. Kardos & Burke failed for $2,000,000.

Kardos said the Goodney account alone yielded him a profit of $300,000.

"I don't know," replied Kardos.

"It was your money?"

"Yes."

"Did you draw it out?"

"No."

"Where is it?"

"I think it was paid out in expenses of the firm."

"The whole of it?"

"Oh, more than that."

"Did you not make any arrangement with the firm to use it?"

"No."

"Did you ever tell Governor Burke it was used that way?"

"No."

Kardos said that when he went to Europe he entrusted to an order clerk power of attorney to trade for him in personal accounts involving more than half a million dollars. Asked whether he received a report from the clerk covering his return from abroad, Kardos answered:

"Oh, yes, I had a little talk with him."

The next hearing will be held at 11 o'clock Friday morning.

MERCHANTS DEMAND CUT IN CITY BUDGET

Association Points Out to Aldermen That Increase Will Be Passed on in Rents.

An appeal for the reduction of next year's budget was made yesterday by the Merchants' Association to William T. Collins, Acting President of the Board of Aldermen. The budget will be taken up by the Aldermen today and it has the power to reduce items that are not mandatory, although it cannot increase amounts. Reductions are asked for the following reasons:

"The budget adopted by the Board of Estimate amounts to more than $375,000,000 and for the first time in the history of the City of New York the cost of city government will amount to more than $1,000,000 a day during 1924 if this budget is not reduced.

"This budget of $375,000,000 is $22,000,000 greater than the 1923 budget and $2,343,000 greater than the tentative budget worked out by the city's financial advisors in the early part of October.

"The Merchants' Association believes that if the Board of Aldermen will call before it the various departmental examiners and question them concerning the actual needs of every city department, ways and means may be found for making a substantial reduction in the 1924 budget without impairing the effectiveness of any city department.

"A recent study conducted by the Merchants' Association indicated that every rent-payer in New York is contributing two months' rent a year in city taxes. That is to say, one-sixth of the yearly rent of the New York tenant is paid by the landlord to the city.

"Increasing the Tax Budget means increasing city taxes which in turn means increasing rents. In view of the burden already being carried by the rent-payers of the city, the Board of Aldermen will earn the gratitude of every tenant by making a sincere effort to reduce the Tax Budget for 1924."

BUREAU REFUSED FREE SITE.

Major Deegan Wonders Why Chelsea Was Chosen for Hospital.

William F. Deegan, Past New York State Commander of the American Legion, yesterday deprecated the efforts of the Senate committee investigating the Veterans' Bureau to uncover graft, urging instead constructive measures for the relief of the disabled with any criminal behavior in the past left to the Department of Justice.

Major Deegan cited the Chelsea Hospital case as one typical of the bureau's inefficiency. A large tract of land in Liberty, N. Y., was offered to the Government by the Chamber of Commerce there as a site for the erection of a tuberculosis hospital, he said. At Colonel Forbes's direction, the Bureau of Yards and Docks had begun preparations for the construction of the institution, Major Deegan said the former director of the bureau told him. A month later, he said, he was summoned to Washington and informed that the plans had been changed, and that Liberty, 1,800 feet above sea level, had been discarded as the hospital site. Instead the Government paid about $100,000 for a site in Chelsea about 110 feet high.

"Why that happened," said Major Deegan, "I don't know, and your guess is as good as mine," he added.

Citing the case of Harvey C. Byrd, a Bronx veteran, who went blind from mustard gas, and who, the Major said, had been waiting three months for relief, Major Deegan recommended abolition of Boards of Appeals at Washington and direct handling by local veterans' bureaus. He also recommended two Government hospitals for neuropsychiatric cases in this State, so that such patients might not be sent to State institutions, and favored a conference between President Coolidge and national educational leaders to improve vocational education.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—The William Wrigley Jr. Company, manufacturers and distributors of chewing gum, today announced plans for a recapitalization which in effect will be a "Christmas present" for stockholders and at the same time will result in broader ownership of the company's stock.

The directors voted to change the capital stock and to give stockholders three new shares for each share now held. The company has been paying monthly dividends of 50 cents regular and 25 cents extra, or $6 annually. This ratio of dividends will be maintained and made regular by paying 25 cents monthly on the new stock, or $3 annually.

Wrigley shares sold in the market today around $123, at which price the total present capital stock would be worth about $73,800,000. Several years ago, when the "company opener up" and offered a block of its stock for public subscription, the shares were marketed around $60. Since that time several stock dividends have been paid. The directors issued a statement explaining that the present recapitalization was voted "because of the increasing business and profits in the last few years."

In order to obtain broader public ownership of Wrigley stock, a group of large holders has agreed to sell 300,000 shares of the new issue to a banking syndicate, which expects to offer these shares publicly at between $40 and $45 within a few days. Application will be made to list the stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stockholders will vote on the plan on Dec. 4.

A banking group comprising Hornblower & Weeks and the Chase National Bank will acquire and distribute 300,000 shares of the new stock of the William Wrigley Jr. Company, under the plan outlined in the dispatch from Chicago. These shares, it is expected, will be offered privately by the firm at a price ranging between $40 and $42 a share.

Under the plan approved by the directors of the Wrigley Company, the present capital of 600,000 shares of $25 a share par value will be exchanged for the 1,800,000 new shares of no par value on the basis of three shares of the new stock for one of the old.

It is announced that inasmuch as the shares to be acquired by the bankers will be taken over from individual stockholders, the proposed offering will in no way increase the outstanding capital of the company. There will be no change in management.

OPTIMISTIC ABOUT CUBA.

Zayas, in Message to Congress, Calls Domestic Situation Good.

HAVANA, Nov. 12 (Associated Press). Cuba is in a prosperous condition, and her internal political situation is satisfactory, according to President Zayas's message to Congress, which was read in the Senate tonight.

The President referred to the recent agitation of the Veterans and Patriots' Association, saying that alarm had been created and that there had been threats of a revolution, and alluded to his decree forbidding the association to continue meetings outside of its own headquarters and to legal proceedings started against certain members of the association.

The Senate held only a brief session, to hear the message, which was sent to Congress last Monday when the new session was to begin, but which was not read then because of the lack of a quorum in the two houses.

The House has not yet gathered a quorum, and it was said today that some of its members who oppose the re-election of Zayas are holding conferences to find out how much strength they can muster; but whether this movement will result in any active opposition to the President cannot be foretold.

U. S. FOREIGN TRADE ON SOUND FOOTING

Is in Better Shape Than That of Any Other Nation, Commerce Department Says.

GROWTH IN THE LAST YEAR

Increased Imports Remove Top-heavy Export Balance—Slowing Up in Imports of Gold.

Foreign trade of the United States is in better condition than ever before and is in better shape than that of any other important nation, according to the Division of Research of the United States Department of Commerce. The last fiscal year, ended on June 30, was a period of significant shifts in trends which helped to put the American export and import industry on a sound footing. Imports increased and more closely approached the volume of exports, thus removing a top-heavy export balance which was in evidence during most of the post-armistice years, and there was noted also a gradual slowing up in the volume of gold imports.

The question of gold imports has occupied an important place in the study of Government officials and of bankers. Predictions had been made that the movement would continue until Europe was practically bereft of gold and could not, consequently, carry on trade with this country, thus giving each European nation a better chance to pick up the trade of its neighbors than the United States would have. But in the last fiscal year gold imports of this country fell off sharply, although they still continue in large volume. Net imports were $335,000,000 as compared with $441,000,000 in the previous year.

"This smaller amount, was, however, more than enough to offset the excess of merchandise exports over imports," according to the findings of the Division of Research, given in the current issue of Commerce Reports. "There seems little possibility of a renewal of a heavier inflow of gold," it is explained, and "while our gold surplus will eventually flow outward, there is no very active world demand for gold and there are advantages for Europeans keeping their gold balances in the United States."

Steady Growth of Foreign Trade.

"One of the most outstanding features of our 1922-23 foreign trade," the report says, "was the continuation through the first nine months of the year of the steady growth in both the value and the volume of imports that began in the Fall of 1921—a growth that steadily cut down the excess of exports over imports and brought the value of imports from March to the end of the fiscal year well above that of exports, reducing the year's excess of exports to the lowest figures since 1896. While each of the great commodity groups contributed to this growth in imports, approximately 75 per cent. of the gain in 1922-23 over 1921-22 was due to the increasing requirements of our manufacturing industries for tropical and other raw materials and partly manufactured goods growing out of our increasing industrial activity.

"Exports of crude materials, partly manufactured goods, and manufactures ready for consumption in 1922-23 showed substantial gains over the previous year, but decreases in foodstuffs exports approximately offset the gains in the first two groups, and the net gain in exports over 1921-22 was much more moderate than the gain in import trade. For the first fiscal year since the beginning of the war exports showed a normal seasonal fluctuation without interruption by erratic changes in prices or volume of trade. Exports are normally at a lower level during the first half of the calendar year than in the Fall months, and the decline in January to June, 1923, from the high figures of the previous October and November are not by any means an indication of a weakening export position."

In interpreting this improvement, the business man is cautioned to remember that the extremely low trade in 1921 "probably left stocks of many items abnormally low and the strong upward import trend since reflects both a building up of larger stocks and increased current requirements. On the other hand, rising prices in the United States and gradual recovery of production in Europe have been impairing the competitive power of the American exporter, while the healthy domestic demand for goods has made the American business man to some extent less keen for foreign markets."

Comparison of Markets.

Regarding the relative importance of European and other markets the report says:

"The Europe-Mediterranean region far outranks any other in our export trade and leads by a smaller margin in our import trade, accounting for 52 per cent. of total exports and 32 per cent. of total imports in 1922-23 and an even larger share of both in the preceding year and prior to the war. To Western Europe (United Kingdom, France and Belgium) alone is regularly accredited one-half of both the export and the import trade of this great region, which took 30 per cent. of our exports and furnished 17 per cent. of our imports in 1922-23.

"Latin America and the Far East have since the war been of about equal importance in both export and import trade, each absorbing yearly from 14 to 17 per cent. of our exports and supplying from 20 to 28 per cent. of our imports. For Latin America this is about the same percentage as prior to the war. The percentage share of the Far East in our trade in both directions is now nearly double that of pre-war years. Mexico and the West Indies are usually responsible for somewhat more than half of both our export and our import trade with Latin America.

"Northern North America ranks slightly above Latin America and the Far East as an export customer, but is not as important a supplier of imports. The stronger export position is partially due to some re-export of United States products and probably to a larger extent to a flow of investment capital into Canada."

Figures comparing the trade of this country and of ten other important nations show a remarkable growth of this nation as an international merchant. "The total gold value of the 1922-1923 exports of the ten important countries other than the United States was but 80.6 per cent. greater than in the calendar year 1913, while exports from the United States were 52.2 per cent. greater. The import trade of the United States in 1922-23 was 108.9 per cent. greater than in 1913, compared with an increase of but 15 per cent. for the total of the ten foreign countries.

"The export trade of Japan, Canada and New Zealand alone of the ten countries included showed a greater percentage increase than did the United States, but "the absolute amount of the trade of these countries is small compared to that of the United States, and the greater rate of growth is explained by the early recent commercial development of these countries."

The report also further says: "The stronger position of our foreign trade than that of most other countries is further shown by the fact that trade with the United States is a more important factor in the foreign trade of nearly every leading commercial country than it was prior to the war," and "the value of our exports exceeds that of any other country which imports are second only to those of the United Kingdom."

NEW JERSEY CROPS DECLINE

Estimates Show Decreases in Wheat and Potatoes.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 12.—Preliminary estimates of New Jersey crop contained in a report issued jointly today by the Federal and State Departments of Agriculture indicate considerable decreases in some yields.

The average yield per acre of sweet potatoes is estimated at 116 bushels, indicating a production of 2,360,000 bushels as compared with 3,500,000 bushels last year. Last year's crop was 94 per cent. of normal, while this year's production is but 85 per cent. The apple crop probably will be 564,000 bushels less than in 1922.

The average yield of white potatoes, according to the report, is ninety-six bushels to the acre, indicating a total 8,755,000 less than last year's.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A cablegram received by the Silk Association of America from the Sericultural Association of Japan conveys to the trade in this country the thanks of the Japanese industry for assistance given after the earthquake.

A meeting of silk buyers will be held today at the Dry Goods Alliance, 315 Fourth Avenue. Dress goods buyers will meet tomorrow.

The Majestic-Siegel-Levy Company, dress manufacturers, 205-219 West Thirty-ninth Street, will open today a branch office in Kansas City, in the Wrights Smoke Building. This is the seventh of the branches that the firm has established throughout the country.

Trend Away From High Lustre?

Stylers of dress goods lines looking ahead to Fall are giving considerable attention to the matter of lustre, some expressing the opinion that no great stress will be placed on extreme high lustre in certain cloths as has been the case for many seasons past. The new trend is said to arise from the marketing difficulties experienced with the high lustred napped fabrics of the bolivia order this Fall. While it is still an unsettled question as to the fate of the latter, it is claimed that the better trade is being compelled to find something to take their place, owing to the cheapening of them which removes them from the high grade demand. It is said in some quarters that, in place of the lustrous sheen, the soft bloom effect will come into vogue, not only in worsted suiting and dress fabrics, but in coatings as well.

Course of the Wool Market.

In discussing the raw wool market, an executive of a fine goods mill yesterday said that he looked for the present conditions to remain as they are for about six to eight weeks. With the primary markets strong and other countries willing to pay better prices for desired wools than consumers here, he did not see how quotations could go much lower, if they sag off at all. He looked for new buying on the part of the mills here to begin around the latter part of the year or slightly later. The absence of any considerable buying for the men's wear division of the trade, he thinks, may be changed during the heavyweight season. Wool buying for this branch for the Spring season so far has been practically negligible and will probably prove so until the heavyweight operations commence.

***

Men's Shoe Sales Ahead.

Reports from makers of the better grades of men's shoes say that advance business for Spring is substantially ahead, in both pairs and dollars and cents, of where it was a year ago. In some cases the increase ranges up to 20 per cent. While men on the road are turning in fair to good business generally, orders from the South reflect the confidence given the retailers by prospects of a continued high price for cotton. In the East the buying has been spotty, though better than that of a year ago. To date the "bright spots" in this part of the country are said to have been Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

***

Bedspreads to Be Advanced.

Substantially higher prices for cotton bedspreads will be quoted in this market in the next few days, possibly today, as a result of the sharp rise in the staple since the last Government crop report was issued. It is reported that the maximum advance will be about 10 per cent., but there is no guarantee that the increase will not be larger. Unless a further sharp rise in cotton takes place after the new prices are made, they will likely cover deliveries to July 1. At least one of the leading concerns in that branch of the cotton goods trade has been selling goods for delivery up to Feb. 1 on the basis of 21-cent cotton.

***

New Macy Buying Offices.

New local buying offices of R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., were opened yesterday in the 19-story addition to the store. They occupy the entire fifteenth floor of the building and include 40 private offices for the store's buyers, as well as a number of others for general use. Among the latter are six dressing rooms for models who accompany ready-to-wear salesmen. These rooms open on an assembly space in the centre, 36 by 28 feet, which can be used either for conferences of buyers or for holding style shows for the store's personnel.

Among the service features provided in the new offices are a room where salesmen may check their valises and packages over night; a special trunk room to accommodate the bulkier samples, and several packing rooms where salesmen will be able to repack their samples without the goods being seen by others. Two high-speed elevators run from the Thirty-fourth Street entrance of the new building directly to the buying floor, while at the entrance of the offices is a guide which gives the names of the buyers and the merchandise they purchase. G. H. Garty is in charge.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A fair business was put through in the local market for gray goods yesterday, mostly for shipments this side of Jan. 1. Quite a little of the business done was for immediate delivery, and in the printcloths it included 38½-inch 64-60s and 60-48s at 10⅞ and 9⅝ cents respectively. The best that could be done on 39-inch 68-72s was 12¾ cents. For deliveries past the turn of the year an eighth more was generally asked. Most of the trading reported in the sheetings was in the lighter constructions. It included spot lots of 36-inch 5.50s and 6.15s at 9½ and 8½ cents respectively.

Some Improvement in Overcoats.

Colder weather over the week-end had somewhat of a beneficial effect on retailers' sales of overcoats. This was reflected in a small way in the piece goods market yesterday, the jobbers reporting that they were selling some goods at concessions. It is commonly agreed, however, that there will have to be much more retail activity for the market to be liquidated properly for the opening of the heavyweight lines. It is still early to say whether or not the liquidation will be satisfactory, but most cutters meanwhile have stopped operations. This stands out in contrast to the active cutting last year at this time. A little later there will be some cutting of coats for the usual sales, it is said, providing market conditions make it advisable. Whether the date for holding such sales will be advanced depends on developments between now and the end of the month.

***

Winter Hat Showings Begin.

The first formal showings in this market of millinery especially designed for Winter resort wear took place yesterday. The displays for the most part consisted of trimmed hats, and the models shown are meant primarily for December, January and February retailing. The type of merchandise on view is that heretofore known as Palm Beach. While the number of buyers here for the opening and the amount of business booked were not large, the feeling among the houses that participated was that the response was satisfactory. The thought back of the project was said to be as much to introduce the idea of distinctly Winter resort hats as to do business in them in this market. Much of the business that will result from the movement will come from salesmen who have recently left for their territories with the new lines.

Buying of Broad Silks.

A slight quickening of interest in Spring silks is reported by wholesalers here, but buying is still slow. Toward the end of this month there usually occurs a pick-up in the demand, and the mills are looking to this to prevent further curtailment, which is now at a high figure. Retailers are doing some fill-in buying now, principally of the satin-faced goods, but there is a strong price resistance felt all through the market. The present competition of woolens and mixtures with silks, it is believed, will not be as strongly felt during the Spring, but whether market conditions will be satisfactory to the producers of other than the print lines, is a question in the trade. It is felt that, should there be any active buying of raw silk now, prices of that material would again move upward and further complicate the question of getting replacement costs.

PERU OPENS BUREAU HERE.

To Distribute Information to Foster Closer Trade Relations.

The Peruvian Government has appointed Señor Luis Lomer Laos as its Special Commissioner in the United States, it was learned yesterday. Señor Laos will open a Peruvian Bureau of Information at 601 West 142d Street to distribute industrial and commercial information, and to a limited extent political news.

In a statement given out yesterday Señor Laos said his country invited the investment of American capital in the wool industry of the Peruvian highlands, which are suitable for grazing immense flocks. Señor Laos emphasized that while the mineral and live stock wealth of Peru was of the greatest importance, Peru recognized that the United States was principally in need of a source of raw rubber, and he said that his country and its President, General Leguia, were friendly toward the United States, and would in his opinion, co-operate in the most cordial spirit in strengthening the economic ties that were drawing the two countries together.

Develops a New Fabric.

A new cloth, believed by its producers to have possibilities of taking the place of the high napped fabrics, is being shown by a local mill. The fabric, woven by a special process, was described yesterday as a development taken from tapestry weaving. Just as the high pile woolens had their origin in those of the plush order. It is of soft texture, with notable draping qualities and a fine bloom. The color range comprises twenty shades. It is being made in lighter weights for Spring and will, it was said, be brought out in heavier grades for general garment use for Fall.

GRAPE SHIPMENTS HIGH.

80 Per Cent. More Than Last Year Sent to City.

E. J. Cleaves, District Manager of the American Railway Association, announced yesterday that the special arrangements for handling the grape crop into New York City involving the cooperation of the Baltimore & Ohio, the Erie, and the Pennsylvania railroads would expire today. Under this plan the District Manager was able to bring 3,000 carloads of grapes into the New York market in two months, besides those that were handled over the regular terminals maintained by the Erie railroad.

While no total has been compiled of the amount of grapes handled through the New York terminal during the present season it is estimated that the number will be well in excess of 10,000 cars, and will probably be 30 per cent. higher than for the same period of last year.

PRINTERS COMBINE.

J. B. Lyon of Albany and Williams Company of New York Merge.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Nov. 12.—A certificate of incorporation of the Williams Press, Inc., was filed with the Secretary of State today. The new company is to be formed by a consolidation of the J. B. Lyon Company of Albany, State printers, and the Williams Printing Company of New York City. The firm will print eight nationally known magazines in Albany, it is said, when it gets under way.

Recently the J. B. Lyon Company, one of the largest printing establishments in the State, obtained the building of the Van Benthuysen Printing Company. It is reported that the State printing is to be carried on there and that magazine and other work in the main Lyon plant. The company is to be capitalized at $500,000.

The directors for the first year are David T. Williams, Roy L. Atwood and Edward C. Carrington of New York City, and Charles M. Winchester, Ernest A. Barvoets, Rollin B. Sanford and Harold P. Winchester of Albany. With the exception of Mr. Williams and Mr. Atwood, all the directors are connected with the J. B. Lyon Company. Mr. Williams and Mr. Atwood have been executive officers of the Williams company. Mr. Winchester is President of the Lyon company.

RECEIVERS FOR CATTLE CO.

Creditors of American Livestock Co., Denver, Include Banks Here.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 12.—Judge J. Foster Symes in a suit in Federal Court today appointed two receivers for the American Livestock & Loan Company of Denver, and its subsidiary companies. Creditors, it was stated by a large stockholder of the company, include banks throughout the country, among them the Chase National and others in New York.

A. E. Dericoles, former President of the company, and Fred O. Roof were named as receivers. Mr. Roof is President of the First National Bank of Walsenburg, Col., and a director in the Federal Reserve Bank of the Kansas City district.

The creditors, said Mr. Dericoles, are well secured. It is believed, he added, that if the assets are properly conserved the stockholders will realize par value.

The company has subsidiaries in the American Cattle, the Dana Cattle, the Tom Bell Cattle and the American Ranches companies. Price slumps in the cattle market and the losses incident to the recent storms throughout Montana and Wyoming, where it has large herds, were said to be the causes of the company's difficulties.

DISCUSS HOUSING FOR GIRLS

Speakers Offer Suggestions at Conference Here.

The problem of providing proper living quarters for working girls at a cost commensurate with their wages was discussed yesterday at a conference on rents, income and expenses held at the Hotel Pennsylvania under the auspices of the Association to Promote Housing for Girls.

Alexander M. Bing speaking on "Real Estate Values Affecting Rents," said it was true that commercial companies had failed to provide proper housing for workers at a price they could afford to pay, but the fault was not theirs. The problem was really a community one. Some plan must be developed along the lines of the association, he said.

"The question before the Housing Commission," said Sullivan W. Jones, State Architect, is simply how to provide adequate housing on inadequate incomes. Seventy-three per cent. of the families in New York State have incomes of less than $2,000 a year. Rent should not exceed twenty per cent. of the income, or $500 in the case of the maximum income of this class. If the average family may be said to consist of four people, quarters providing at least four rooms are essential, or about $10.50 per room per month. It is obvious that in New York City at least no accommodations at anything like this figure are obtainable."

Bernard L. Shientag, Industrial Commissioner Department of Labor of the State of New York, stressed the need for welfare legislation like the minimum wage laws to help solve the housing problem. The methods of the Association to provide proper accommodations for working girls were outlined by Miss Cornelia E. Marshall, President. The average rent for a decent room was $8, she said, while the average wage was $20 a week.

SALVATION ARMY REPLIES.

Denies Its Waste Paper Business Is a Commercial Undertaking.

The Salvation Army entered its defense yesterday to charges made by Charles McBride, treasurer of the Wilson Paper Stock Company, Inc., of 453 West Nineteenth Street, that the Army was unlawfully engaging in the waste paper business, and that its charter as a charitable organization therefor should be revoked. At a hearing before Deputy Attorney General John J. Dwyer, in charge of the New York City office of the State Attorney General, witnesses for the Salvation Army testified that its buying and selling of waste paper did not constitute engaging in business under the law, but was merely a part of its philanthropic work.

Colonel Edward J. Parker, head of the social and industrial activities of the Army, and Major Vernon Post, custodian of property, were the witnesses. They testified that the Army conducted its waste paper business at a loss, but continued it as the most practical means of aiding unfortunate men and women.

At a hearing held before Deputy Attorney General Dwyer on Oct. 30, Mr. McBride asked to have the Salvation Army dissolved under Section 181 of the General Corporation law on the ground that its waste paper business violated the provisions of the law under which the Army was created and that it abused its privileges as a religious and charitable organization. It was testified that the Salvation Army won contracts for buying waste paper from the Post Office and the Board of Elections in competition with commercial waste paper companies.

NEW RULES FOR PISTOLS.

Applicants for Permits to Be Fingerprinted, Enright Orders.

In General Order 43, issued last week by Police Commissioner Enright, new regulations regarding the issuance of pistol permits were outlined. Hereafter applicants for pistol permits, the order states, will be finger-printed and the prints sent to Police Headquarters where the Criminal Identification Bureau will examine them to determine if the applicant has a criminal record. This clause does not include applicants employed by banks, express companies and civil service employes.

All applicants approved by the Criminal Identification Bureau will be reported to Third Deputy Commissioner Joseph A. Faurot, who has charge of all pistol permits. Applications to carry arms will not be approved when possession of a pistol for self-protection will suffice. The new order cites also Section 1897 of the Penal Code, which provides that conviction of a felony acts as revocation of the permit. Applications to carry pistols must be made to the precinct commander where the applicants reside except where the permit is to be used in a business office, in which case application shall be made in the precinct where the business is located.

A PESSIMIST ON BUSINESS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Arthur W. Cutten, a leading Chicago speculator, who is admittedly bearish on grains, in a long summary of general conditions stated that the recent inspired wave of optimism which has permeated the stock market has had the temporary effect of changing the mental attitude of trade.

He goes on to outline general business conditions, which he analyzes as distinctly pessimistic, and concludes with the statement that a survey of world conditions fails to disclose any marked improvement either in its economic or political condition.

The statement had some effect on the grain markets, although Mr. Cutten has been doing little in wheat or corn for some time.

Frequenters of cabarets of the lower east side and the Bronx are mourning the death of Isadore Schwartz, 75 years old, a violinist, found asphyxiated yesterday in the kitchen of his home at 197 Eldridge Street as a result of a gas cock accidentally left open. His wife, Esther, who was found unconscious when neighbors broke in the door, was revived.

Schwartz's mother lived to be 104 years old and the violinist hoped to reach the same age and play his violin to the last. His mother, who died four years ago, attributed her longevity to drinking a cup of coffee before retiring. Schwartz did this, too. He played at a cabaret in 169th Street, the Bronx, Sunday night and when he returned home he heated some coffee before going to bed and failed to turn the gas off properly.

OPERATOR IN FOUR DEALS.

Jourmire Silverman Buys and Sells Properties Valued at $253,000.

In a series of four deals, involving properties valued at about $253,000, Jourmire Silverman disposed of five apartments and purchased one on the west side. Mr. Silverman bought, through Rosenstein & Williams, from the Conrad Glaser Realty Company 4,848 and 4,850 Broadway, a six-story tax-exempt walk-up apartment, 50 by 150, laid out in three and four room apartments accommodating thirty families. It rents for about $80,000 and was held at $170,000. Mr. Silverman sold, through G. Shaw to Annibell D. Walton, 2,064 and 2,066 Seventh Avenue, two five-story apartments, with one seven-room apartment on a floor, accommodating fourteen tenants.

It rents for $12,000 and was held at $75,000. He also sold, through the Star Realty Company to M. A. Cuttler, 50 and 61 East 115th Street, 50 by 100, two five-story buildings, with two five-room apartments on a floor, accommodating twenty families. It rents for $11,000 and was held at $62,000.

Mr. Silverman also sold, through J. J. Reichman to the Richman Realty Company, 2,110 Amsterdam Avenue, a five-story walk-up apartment, laid out in five and four room apartments, 30 by 100, accommodating fifteen families. It rents for $7,000 and was held at $46,000.

Estate Sells Tenements.

Nathan Wilson, an operator, purchased from the Campbell estate the three five-story flats on the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and 110th Street. The structures occupy a plot 75 by 75, and were held at $125,000.

The Fairbury Realty Company, Inc., purchased from Frank W. Mosher the three five-story tenements at 219 to 223 East Forty-fourth Street, having a frontage of 75 by 100. The buyer intends to improve the property. Victor Friend & Son, Inc., and Norman Gumbinner were the brokers in the transaction. The property was held at $88,000.

William Goldstone and Simon Myers sold to an investor 1,785 Madison Avenue, a five-story flat on lot 33 by 103, through I. Cohen as broker.

MANY business men seem to believe that since Burroughs is the pioneer and leader in the adding machine field and because Burroughs builds the large machines for handling the figure work and bookkeeping of large institutions, that every Burroughs is high priced.

This is a mistaken idea. This Burroughs machine, for example, costs only $125., even though it is a Burroughs. And it is built with the same high ideals and with the same high grade materials that go into the bigger machines that bear the name Burroughs.

Its price, $125., is made possible by tremendous production—over 200,000 are in use. It can be bought on easy terms, $12.50 down and easy monthly payments.

~and yet it's a Burroughs
